HOME RULE BILL GETS 80 MAJORITY

Passed to Second Reading for the Third Time in the House of Commons.

O'BRIENITES DON'T VOTE

Conciliatory Speeches Are Made by Redmond, Birrell, and Other Leaders.

CELEBRATION BY IRISHMEN

Crowd Outside Houses of Parliament Cheers Result of Division and Gives Ovations to Ministers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 7.—The second reading of the Home Rule for Ireland bill was carried in the House of Commons last night by a majority of eighty, the vote being 356 to 276. The bill has therefore passed its most crucial stage in three successive sessions, as required by the Parliament act.

An interval of some weeks will now elapse, but the bill will reach the House of Lords early in May, and ought to be on the statute book by June.

The tone of the closing debate was distinctly conciliatory. John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, declared he would go a long distance in the direction of giving increased representation to the Unionists in the Irish Parliament, especially in the south and west, for the sake of a settlement, in regard to which, he said, the eleventh hour had not yet passed.

In Sir Edward Carson's speech, Sir John Simon, the Attorney General, said he recognized a great and significant advance. The offer of the Government respecting Ulster, Sir John said, was still open.

Mr. Bonar Law, the Opposition leader, offered to consent to the bill as amended by the Ulster proposals if it were approved at a general election. Further, he expressed his willingness to renew the "conversations" with the Government if it desired.

But though the atmosphere of the debate was calm, it cannot be said that any great progress was made toward a settlement. The suggested way to peace by Federalism received scanty support, and all the other various plans for conciliation were again canvassed, yet no bargain was struck.

Government's Offer Final?

It would seem that the Government has made its last offer and that the Unionists must either accept or refuse it between now and the third reading of the bill unless they are reconciled to seeing the bill become law in its present shape.

The Daily News, (Liberal,) commenting on the situation, says:

"The most criminal attack on the liberties of this country ever designed by a political party has been brought to nought, and the Unionists know it. They may still preach sedition in the army, but there will not be help for them again from that quarter, and the Home Rule bill under the authority of the Parliament act will proceed to its inevitable conclusion.

"The Unionists are now finally face to face with that implacable fact. For one or two years they refused to look at the realities of the struggle, and, instead of making terms with the Government, have chosen to rely on rebellion in Ulster, mutiny in the army, and help from the King.

"With the failure of all these expedients for intimidating the Government they are now reduced to the alternative of accepting the bill in its original form or with the modifications which Premier Asquith offered them a month ago in order to meet the objections in regard to Ulster."

Government Majority Lower.

LONDON, April 6.—The announcement of the figures of the vote on the motion to reject the Home Rule bill evoked louder cheers from the Opposition than from the Ministerialists, the Opposition interpreting them as indicating a dwindling Government majority. The diminution, however, is accounted for to some extent by the abstention from voting of the O'Brienites.

A large gathering of Irishmen, all carrying green flags, assembled outside the House of Parliament to-night to celebrate the passage of the bill. They cheered wildly when the result of the vote was announced, and gave ovations to the members of the Government and the Nationalists as they left the House of Commons.

The second reading of the Home Rule bill was carried the first time by a majority of 101 and the second time by a majority of 98. To-night eight O'Brienites abstained from voting and two Liberals voted against the Government. One Nationalist was absent through illness. Three Laborites were also absent, and Charles F. G. Masterman, who had previously voted as a member of the Government, lost his seat in the election for Bethnal Green last February.

Premier Asquith took no part in the voting, as he recently resigned his seat to stand for re-election on his appointment as Secretary of War.

The speeches to-day were generally

JUMPS FROM HIGHBRIDGE.

Moving Picture Performer Comes Up Smiling After Leap.

Barney MacFee, a youth from Tarrytown, anxious to outdo the exploits in high jumping which have made Rodman Law well known in the moving-picture world, jumped from the centre span of High Bridge into the Harlem River yesterday afternoon. The distance of the jump was 127 feet. It had not been made successfully before, although two men have died in the attempt.

From the moment he began to poise himself upon the bridge railing, preparatory to the jump, until policemen fished him out of the water, moving-picture machines and cameras were turned upon him.

The camera operators and policemen who attempted to stop the jumper, said that MacFee fell like a plummet to the water, and that when he came to the surface he was smiling over his accomplishment. The first they saw of him, they said, after he disappeared below the water, was one arm which waved gaily at the "movies" men and the camera operators.

To make the jump, MacFee went to the eastern edge of the bridge in an automobile. He climbed to the railing of the centre span, while the camera operators arranged themselves on a barge anchored below. While these preparations were being made, two policemen from the Highbridge Station put out in a rowboat under orders to capture the moving picture operators, while the reserves, under command of Capt. Reitch, started across the bridge to capture MacFee.

He jumped, as he explained later, before he was really ready, in order to complete the act without interference. He had made no preparations for being rescued from the river, but the two policemen in the rowboat, who were on their way to intercept the camera men, fished him out of the water and carried him ashore. This was a welcome addition to the scene for the camera men.

MacFee and the moving picture and camera operators were arrested. Magistrate Krotel found MacFee guilty of disorderly conduct at a hearing in the Morrisania Court, but allowed him to go under a suspended sentence. The moving picture cameras and film were seized and taken to Police Headquarters.

WEBB BECOMES A FIREMAN.

Husband of Former Miss Gaynor Joins Manhasset Department.

William Seward Webb, Jr., who graduated from Yale in 1909 and married Miss Gertrude Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor, became a fireman yesterday when the Town Board of North Hempstead, L. I., appointed him to its volunteer force and assigned him to duty in the Manhasset-Lakeville district, which embraces his home and the homes of many other well-known business men of Manhattan.

"I must remind you that failure to respond to a fire alarm in your district will subject you to a fine of $5," Chairman Christ of the Town Board told Mr. Webb.

"I'll listen for the fire bell and try to avoid the fines and do my duty," the young man replied.

Dr. William Seward Webb, Mr. Webb's father, married a daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, and he is a Director in many railway and other corporations.

Martin Schenck is the Chief of the Manhasset Fire Department, and his company is composed of the wealthiest group of fire fighters outside of New Rochelle. He sees to it that every one answers the alarms and runs with the engine or gives a very good excuse for his absence. In his company are Philip Boyer, a Wall Street broker, and H. S. and C. B. Mason. William F. Sheehan, Ralph Pulitzer, and Justice Pendleton have homes near the large estate owned by Mr. Webb at Manhasset.

DOMINICAN REVOLT GROWS.

Sharp Fighting in Santiago Between Rebels and Government Forces.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The latest Dominican uprising, fanned into flame by Gen. Arias's resentment of the attempt by President Bordas to make a change of Governors in Santiago Province, has resulted in some sharp fighting in Santiago City, according to a belated report received to-day from Commander Bostwick, on the American gunboat Nashville at Puerta Plata.

Under date of April 4, Commander Bostwick reported:

"Tuesday, 9 A. M., fighting between Government forces and insurrectionists at Santiago. Insurrectionists still holding the castle and part of town. Governor of Puerto Plata has sent all aid possible, and has requested further aid from San Domingo be sent. Telegraph has been cut in interior; no direct communication with San Domingo."

Commander Bierer, on the gunboat Wheeling, in Southern Dominican waters, reporting under date of April 4, said:

"Hostilities began at Laveca and Santiago, March 30. Arias states that he does not went war, but he objects to change of Provincial Governors, and will sacrifice himself rather than accept ridicule. President Bordas, through Minister Lovaton, has notified the Governors that Bordas is, under the Constitution, President until another one is elected, and that he will again call for the elections as soon as Congress decides upon the number of electors for each Province. Congress has not yet decided the number of electors for each Province."

HIS HEARSE A BIPLANE.

Russian Flies to Cemetery with Rich Man's Body and Earns $100,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 6.—A strange posthumous enthusiasm for a, to him, new form of locomotion has been displayed, according to the St. Petersburg press, by Ivan Sopornowski, a Russian millionaire. During his life M. Sopornowski was extremely conservative and even refused to enter a motor car. In his will, however, was a clause bequeathing $100,000 to any airman who would convey his coffin to the graveside in an aeroplane.

A young airman named Posoff offered to undertake the task, and, placing the coffin in his biplane, flew to the cemetery, where he made such a bad landing that he nearly killed himself. M. Sopornowski's relatives reluctantly paid him $100,000 out of the estate.

CARRANZA DEFINES HIS FOREIGN POLICY

He Recognizes Our Right to Act in Behalf of Other Nations.

HIS ESTEEM FOR WILSON

Thinks His Friendship and Bryan's Sincere, He Tells Peace Forum Representative.

EL PASO, April 6.—A carefully worded communication from Gen. Carranza, dealing with the rebel foreign policy, was made public to-day by Dr. Henry Allen Tupper of the International Peace Forum. Dr. Tupper interviewed Gen. Carranza on the subject at the request of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, and the summary of the General's reply was made public, with Carranza's consent. The letter follows:

"I have read with much interest the letter of Senator Sheppard, which you were so kind as to forward to me. In regard to the matters contained therein, I beg to state the following:

His Admiration for Wilson.

"I posses a deep admiration for the American people, and hold in great personal esteem President Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan, the Secretary of State of the United States of America. I know they are men of the very highest mentality as well as moral and political aims, and for that reason I think that their friendship toward Mexico and the sympathy evinced for the principles of the Mexican Constitutionalists are not only sincere, but entirely disinterested and are the result of the existing harmony between the aims of the cause which I have the honor to represent and the ideals of American democracy.

"I possess such a high opinion and esteem of the political purposes and sagacity of the American Government, and I am so well satisfied as to their loyal friendship toward Mexico that, in spite of the great responsibility which is imposed upon me as the chief of a well defined political party, which reckons with the intellectual, moral, legal and economic elements sufficiently to be considered a decisive factor in political matters, not only of my own country, but of foreign countries as well, I have experienced no difficulty in dealing in an unofficial and expeditious way with all matters of an international character, which have been presented by the United States, and especially is this true because I deem it the duty of my party to see to it that these relations are cordial and intimate with those who in good faith sympathize with our purpose and are in accord with our aims and ideals.

"As long as I am at the head of the Constitutionalist Army, or in any other office, my policy will be to strive in such a way as to have our international obligations complied with, and have our relations with foreign Governments become more and more cordial, and especially with such countries as have their destiny linked with the political, economic, and commercial interests of Mexico.

"I sincerely regret that incidents of an international character should have given rise to an interpretation not entirely in accordance with my real attitude as Chief of the Constitutionalists. I have striven to place myself in the legitimate light deserved by the high aims of our party, without overlooking the cordial suggestions which were offered me within the attitude just expressed, neither evading responsibility nor ignoring diplomatic customs and usage.

Our Right to Represent Foreigners.

"In pursuance of this attitude, all representations and matters called to our attention by the United States in an unofficial way have, in the past, received our prompt attention, and I assure you that hereafter the same attention will be given to all representations and matters presented to us through the United States in behalf of other nations in conformity with international diplomatic usage and custom, notwithstanding the fact that we have always deemed it preferable to avoid responsibility being thrust upon the United States by other powers as a result of its attitude toward the political conditions now existing in the Republic of Mexico.

"In accordance with the views above expressed, I have repeatedly stated and now reiterate that I am at all times disposed to give attention, for instance, to foreign representations brought to my attention through the offices of American representatives, provided, of course, that we are notified that such mediation is at the request of such Power.

"I can conceive no better evidence of the spirit of cordiality and friendship which we bear toward the United States than our willingness to receive unofficial representations and claims made by the United States Government in regard to all matters concerning its citizens within the Republic of Mexico. In this regard I must, however, call your attention to the fact that we could not, without sacrificing our hard-fought-for prestige, consider representations made through the good offices of the United States, in behalf of foreigners, unless we were previously informed that such mediation had been requested of the United States by the interested nation.

"As I decide to reciprocate with the disinterested suggestions of Senator Morris Sheppard, called to my attention through kindness, I beg of you to advise him of the ideas hereinabove expressed, which ideas are the expression of our desire to harmonize national dignity with the cordial relations which on account of our common interests and principles must exist between the American and Mexican people.

"Assuring you of my pleasure in reiterating the above principles, yours very truly. V. CARRANZA."

ORDER RESTORED IN TORREON.

Consular Agent Carothers and Spanish Exiles Start for the Border.

Special to The New York Times.

TORREON, April 6.—Slowly order is coming out of chaos, and the town is resuming its normal status after the two weeks of fierce fighting and the awful scenes attending the defense and capture of the town. The streets have been cleared, all of the bodies burned, and the regular routine of business resumed, as if there had not been a complete change in the civil and military affairs of the city and surrounding district. All of the Federal fighters have either been incorporated in the rebel army or shot, there being only thirty prisoners in the camp at the present time.

Interest turned to-day from the military manoeuvres to the expulsion of the Spaniards, who have gone to the frontier by order of Villa. The scenes attending the expulsion of Spaniards from the other towns of Northern Mexico are being repeated here. It is the intention of Villa to drive the Spanish colonists

UNDERWOOD WINS AT ALABAMA POLLS

Returns from Forty Counties Give Him a Substantial Lead Over Hobson for Senator.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 6.—Scattering and incomplete returns from forty out of sixty-seven counties show Oscar W. Underwood is leading Richmond P. Hobson by a substantial vote in the race for the United States Senatorship in the Statewide primaries. At 10:30 o'clock to-night Underwood campaign leaders claimed victory by from 20,000 to 30,000 votes. No statement was made at the time by Hobson's campaign manager.

The weather throughout the State was ideal for the primaries. Indications to-night were that the total vote was largest in years. While several personal encounters at the polls were reported, none was of a serious nature.

Early returns indicated that the three-cornered contest for the Alabama short term in the United States Senate would rest between Ray Rushton of Montgomery and Frank S. White of Birmingham. These two candidates apparently had distanced Watt T. Brown of Ragland.

Ex-Gov. B. B. Comer was leading the three other candidates in the Gubernatorial contest, according to early reports. At that time his nearest opponent was Charles Henderson of Troy. R. F. Kolb of Montgomery was running third.

John W. Abercrombie, Representative from the State at large, and Congressman J. T. Heflin from the Fifth District were unopposed in to-day's contest.

Early returns from the eight Congressional districts in which there were contests were so meagre that it was impossible to estimate the final outcome.

Ends A Long Fight.

To-day's Democratic primaries, ended the long contest for the vacancy in the United States Senate between Oscar W. Underwood, majority leader of the national House of Representatives, and Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson. In addition to nominating a Senator for the term beginning March 4 next, Democrats to-day voted for a successor to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Joseph F. Johnston, a Governor, and other State and county officials.

Other candidates before the primary aside from Messrs. Underwood and Hobson were:

For the short term in the United States Senate—Watt T. Brown of Ragland, Ray Rushton of Montgomery, and Frank S. White of Birmingham.

For Governor—B. B. Comer, ex-Governor of the State; Walter D. Seed of Tuscaloosa, now Lieutenant Governor; R. F. Kolb of Montgomery, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and Industries, and Charles Henderson of Troy, President of the Railroad Commission.

For members of the national House of Representatives, John W. Abercrombie, from the State at large; Representative George W. Taylor and O. L. Gray, Choctaw County, First District; Representative S. Hubert Dent, Jr., and Woodford Maybry, Montgomery, Second District; Representative Henry D. Clayton and Henry B. Steagall, Dale, Third District; Representative Fred L. Blackman and E. L. Deason, Chilton, Fourth District, and J. T. Heflin, Fifth District.

To succeed Representative Hobson in the Sixth District, William B. Oliver, Tuscaloosa, and William B. Bankhead, Walker. Representative John L. Burnett and L. B. Raine, Etowah, Seventh District.

To succeed the late Representative William Richardson in the Eighth District, W. W. Callahan; of Morgan; J. H. Ballentine, Madison; C. L. Watts, Madison, and Judge E. L. Almon, Colbert.

To succeed Representative Underwood in the Ninth District, George W. Darden, Blount; Jere C. King, George Huddleston, and Nathan L. Miller, all of Jefferson.

Voting Was Slow.

The long ballot made the voting very slow. Mr. Underwood cast his vote in the Twenty-first Precinct of Birmingham. Representative Hobson voted at Greensboro.

Stringent rules formulated by the State Democratic Committee governed the primary. Officials had been instructed to permit only Democrats who voted for Woodrow Wilson for President to cast ballots.

The polls were opened at 8 o'clock. In the country districts they were closed at 5 o'clock and in the cities at 6 o'clock.

The candidate nominated for the short term in the United States Senate, to expire on March 4 next, will be ratified at a special general election on May 11. On the same day a second primary will be held to settle cases where candidates for State offices failed to receive a majority of votes cast to-day.

The actual election of a United States Senator for the long term beginning March 4, 1915, and of State and county officers, will take place at the general election next November. This will be merely a ratification of to-day's primary.

MOBILE, Ala., April 6.—Mobile and South Alabama polled the heaviest vote in years at the Democratic primary to-day. Early reports from South Alabama indicated that Representative Underwood was leading Representative Hobson in the race for the nomination for the long term in the United States Senate, and that B. B. Comer was running ahead of his opponents in the Gubernatorial contest.

Meagre returns reached here from the First Congressional District indicated Oscar L. Gray was leading Representative George W. Taylor, and in the Second District Woodford Maybry appeared to have a slight lead over Representative S. Hubert Dent, Jr.

AGAINST INSURING FIRE ZONE

Boston Mayor Asks Companies to Bar Incendiary Section.

BOSTON, April 6.—Mayor Curley announced to-night that he would ask insurance companies to refuse to insure property in the West End and part of the North End, comprising that section of the city in which most fires occur.

This action, he explained, was due to the belief that many of the fires in those districts have been of incendiary origin, with collection of the insurance money as the object.

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 6 A. M. to 5 P. M. All voters registered for the last general election can vote at their old polling places if they have not changed their voting residence.

BURTON TO RETIRE FROM THE SENATE

Ohio Senator Not to Seek Re-Election, Fearing Defeat by Factional Dissensions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio startled political circles to-night by announcing that he would retire from the Senate at the expiration of his term next March. The announcement was entirely unexpected.

In a statement Senator Burton cites several reasons for his decision not to seek renomination, one being that the chances for Republican success in his State might be impaired through his candidacy because of factional dissensions in which he was involved. Ex-Senator Joseph B. Foraker, whom Senator Burton succeeded five years ago, has announced himself as a Republican candidate for the seat.

Mr. Foraker has come out in opposition to President Wilson's policy of repealing the free tolls provision of the Panama Canal act. Mr. Burton, on the other hand, is one of the President's foremost defenders, and will deliver a speech in the Senate upholding the President's stand.

In his statement Mr. Burton mentions his advocacy of the Repeal bill as a factor that might make him unpopular as a Republican candidate. Senator Burton's statement reads:

"I am averse to becoming a candidate for re-election to the Senate, and shall not be a candidate unless circumstances arise which I do not anticipate will occur. While on some accounts I should be glad to continue in Congress, where I have been actively engaged for more than 20 years, I have no importunate desire to return to the Senate. But more important than this—my chief anxiety is for the success of the Republican Party in the State of Ohio at the coming election. The prospects are extremely favorable. Yet it is possible that some one who is less involved in factional dissensions of the last two years would be more favorably regarded. Any personal ambitions of mine should be subordinated to the success of the principles which I have advocated.

"Again, my convictions have compelled me to take positions in legislative matters which, temporarily at least, have been unpopular. For example, the proposed repeal of the Toll Exemption act of 1912 is with me a matter of conscience. My views on the subject of neutralization of the Panama Canal and its utilization on terms of equality by all nations were expressed so long ago as the year 1900. They were influenced at that time by frequent conferences with Secretary Hay, with whose diplomatic policies I was in entire sympathy. Though I should prefer to see this dispute referred to arbitration, partly because of the great impetus it would give to the settlement of international controversies by an arbitration tribunal, nevertheless, if this course is not feasible, I shall support the President's resolution for the repeal of that portion of the act exempting our coastwise shipping from payment of tolls.

"It is my intention to take a more active part in the discussion of present-day problems in Ohio than I have ever taken before.

"During the years of my service in the Senate I have been compelled to remain at Washington most of the time. The extra sessions of Congress each alternate year and the protracted length of all sessions have prevented me from devoting the time which I desired to my native State. I should enjoy the opportunity of advocating certain reforms and seeking to analyze the tendencies of the time with entire freedom and without the handicap of any candidacy for office. Indeed, I have come to be more interested in certain great questions now confronting us than in the holding of any office.

"I most earnestly appeal to all who have affiliated with the Republican Party in Ohio to ignore personal controversies, to make concessions, and to unite upon principles which the conscience of the people can approve."

Senator Burton is known as a man of scholarly attainments and a deep student of the Constitution and legislative affairs. He is the author of several books, among them "The Life of John Sherman" in the "American Statesmen" series. He served thirteen years in the House of Representatives and for ten years was Chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors. He was a member of the National Monetary Commission and is President of the American Peace Society. At the Republican National Convention held in Chicago in 1908 he presented the name of William H. Taft for the nomination as President. After his graduation from Oberlin College in 1872 and until he was elected to Congress he practiced law in Cleveland.

MICHIGAN CAPITAL "DRY."

Anti-Saloon Forces Win in Ingham County—Victories Divided.

DETROIT, April 6.—Practically complete returns from the twelve Michigan counties which voted to-day on the local option question, gave the "drys" a victory in the winning of Ingham County, in which Lansing, the State capital is situated. The "wets" won back one of the other counties and lost one to the anti-saloon forces. Ingham County, which had been "wet," went "dry" by more than 400 votes.

The county situation follows. Clare went from "dry" to "wet." Roscommon and Ingham went from "wet" to "dry." Midland, Kalkaska, Mecosta, Benzie, Shiawassee, and Wexford remained "dry." The latter two by small majorities. Osceda, containing one saloon, was conceded to the "drys" by the "wets," although the early returns indicated a "wet" victory. Arenac and Ogemaw remained "wet."

In case Osceda County remains "dry," Michigan as the result of to-day's election has thirty-four "dry" counties and forty-nine counties are "wet."

In Grand Rapids, where the first non-partisan election was held, Mayor George E. Ellis was re-elected.

RUNAWAY ELEVATOR TAKES THREE LIVES

Pushed Off in a Panic, Passengers Plunge Six Stories to Shaft's Bottom.

GIRLS STRUGGLE IN CROWD

Screams Attract Thousands in Broadway at Busy Hour — Low Gate on Car in Place of Door.

Three persons plunged to death at 596 Broadway last night when an old-fashioned elevator, operated by a hand cable, ran away in a twelve-story building. The car rapidly descended six stories to the basement, automatically reversed itself and started on a return to the roof. On this upward flight the terrified occupants, nearly a score, attempted to escape, and their panic-stricken effort caused the fatalities.

The accident happened at 6 o'clock, when neighboring loft buildings were discharging hundreds of men and women after the day's work. Screams and shouts from the elevator shaft attracted a crowd that increased rapidly, until there were thousands in Broadway.

The Dead.

ANSELMO, ROSELLA, 18 years old, a laundry worker, living at 12 Delancey Street.
GALRIANO, S., 25 years old, identified by a pay envelope containing $9.01. Address unknown.
LETTINA, COLETTA, 45 years old, a laundry worker, living at 12 Delancey Street.

There were eighteen persons in the elevator when it became unmanageable at the fifth floor. Terence Clark, the operator, tugged at the wire cable in vain as the care shot to the basement. It was a combination freight and passenger car, protected by a wooden gate three feet high instead of a door.

The frightened passengers, screaming, pushing, and fighting, forced this gate upward, and two of them jumped under it to safety as the elevator passed the second floor on the upward trip. Three more, including the operator, jumped or were pushed to the third floor as the elevator passed, but after that gates at the floor exits were closed and those who jumped fell to the bottom of the shaft.

As the figures of the three persons who were killed darted past him Clark lay on the floor of the third story with his head protruding into the shaft, shouting at the top of his lungs to his brother, Joseph, engineer in charge in the basement, to shut off the steam power. Joseph Clark turned off the power in time to stop the elevator near the ninth floor, where the remaining passengers escaped and made their way to the street in a screaming, hysterical group. Six of them were women and girls and four were men.

Fire Truck 20 dashed up in response to a telephone message that its members were needed to chop people out of a stalled elevator. The police reserves from the Mulberry Street Station and a squad of detectives from headquarters responded to a riot call.

Policemen Hayden and Hetterick found the three bodies in the basement, lying over girders, from which an iron cover had been broken away by the fall. Mrs. Lettina was still breathing, but she died a few minutes later in a basement room. Dr. De Reconda, arriving with three ambulances from St. Vincent's Hospital, found he could do nothing.

The first of the victims to be identified was Rosella Anselmo, whose father pushed through the crowd into the basement. He flung himself across the body and cried out in his grief until ambulance surgeons were forced to lead him away. Felipe Lettina, 16 years old, identified his mother.

Coroner Hellenstein called a number of those who escaped from the elevator to the Mulberry street Station House, including Terence Clark and his brother, Joseph. Terence Clark made this statement:

"The style and equipment of the elevator were old, but both myself and my brother oiled the equipment each morning and inspected it to see that it was all right. Yesterday morning we found it in working order. I made four or more trips with full loads in the hour after work ceased. On each trip I carried eighteen or more passengers.

"On the fatal trip I noticed something go wrong at the fifth floor. The elevator speeded up, and it was evident that it would not respond to the cable. It passed the ground floor at high speed, struck the bottom with force enough to jar every one, and started up again at full speed. The fighting and screaming became horrible.

"I saw the people trying to pull up the gate on the car, and while I tugged at the cable with one hand I tried to keep the gate down with the other. Two people jumped at the second floor and landed all right. That started everybody to pushing and fighting for a place to jump. Those nearest the open gate for by this time it had been pushed clear up had no chance to save themselves. They were simply pushed off. I was pushed off at the third floor and two or three people with me."

Coroner Hellenstein said he believed Clark was not in any way responsible for the accident. Clark was paroled without bail and told to report for a further examination this morning at 10 o'clock. He gave his address as 426 Columbus Avenue.

Jennie Aunnente, 18 years old, of 25 Bedford Street, Brooklyn, said she was shoved off the elevator at the second floor. She had bruises on her arms and face. Benjamin Steinberg, who was shoved off at the third floor, corroborated the story of the operator. He was treated for bruises and shock, after which he left for his home, at 203 New Sand Lots Road, Brooklyn.

SEIZES A COAL MINE.

Mob Beats Guards and Drives Workers from "Open Shop" Pit.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 6.—A large crowd of men took possession of the Bache-Denman Coal Company's mine, near Midland, to-day, beat two guards, pulled the fires from the boilers, chased away the workmen, hung an American flag on top of the tipple, and marched away, led by a band.

The mine began operating under the open-shop policy to-day. Heretofore it had employed 200 union men.

The company has announced its determination to inaugurate the open-shop policy at its six other mines in Western Arkansas and Eastern Oklahoma next Fall. At present they are closed for the Summer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 6.—One of the daintiest Paris actresses, Mlle. Jeanne Provost, has set all Paris talking and started a new fashion by appearing in the crowded foyer of the Théâtre Réjane during a dress rehearsal of "Concert," a new play, with her bare feet shod in pretty sandals which were fastened around her ankles by cross ribbons in the old Greek style.

"It is delightful to have one's feet quite free," she said to those who questioned her. "Why should women cram them into narrow boots with four-inch heels?"

Jewelers already are having toe rings made for sandal wearers.

Mlle. Provost was the actress who launched the trouser skirt.

VINCENT ASTOR ENDS SUIT.

Settles for $3,100 with Man Whom His Automobile Hit.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 3.—The trial of the suit for $10,000 damages brought by Charles E. Palmer, a telephone lineman of Irvington, against Vincent Astor, came to a sudden halt before Justice Keogh this morning.

Palmer alleged that on Sept. 30, 1910, he was on his motor cycle riding north on Broadway, Tarrytown, when Mr. Astor, in an automobile bound south, swerved over and struck him. Several ribs were fractured and his leg was brcken in two places.

Mr. Astor did not want to appear in court, as he was busy preparing for his coming wedding. His attorney agreed to settle with Palmer for $3,100 and Justice Keogh dismissed the jury.

GUILTY, STABS PROSECUTOR

California Murderer Assaults Attorney as Jury Announces Verdict.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 6.—Rioting marked the close of the murder trial of Paul Aubain in the Superior Court here this afternoon when the prisoner, immediately after being found guilty by the jury, leaped over a railing and stabbed Assistant District Attorney Dempster McKee with a knife fashioned from a spoon. The wound was an inch deep in the flesh near the right shoulder.

STRICKEN AT PRAYER.

M. H. Pulaski Dies at Service Over Relative's Body.

While attending a prayer-service over the body of a deceased relative, Mrs. Hannah Foster, at 302 West Ninety-second Street last night, Morris H. Pulaski, a lace importer of 215 West Ninety-eighth Street was stricken with apoplexy and died.

The prayer service was the first of three daily services it was planned to hold according to the Jewish custom. Dr. Rudolph Grossman of the Temple Rodeph Sholom had just opened the prayer when Mr. Pulaski was stricken. Dr. Israel Strauss of 116 West Fifty-ninth Street, who was summoned, said that death had been instantaneous following the stroke. Mr. Pulaski is survived by four sons and four married daughters.

MOTHER IN JAIL FOR DEBT.

Mrs. Gallo Leaves Eight-Year-Old Daughter to Care for Her Home.

Mrs. Gioacchina Gallo left her lodgings, at 244 East Forty-fourth Street, yesterday morning with the youngest of her six children in her arms, and with a Deputy Sheriff walking by her side set out for the Ludlow Street Jail, where she will spend the next three months as a judgment debtor. Meantime her eldest child, 8 years old, will keep house for her husband and the other four children.

Mrs. Gallo sold a fruit stand to Dibrono Saveria and Ignazio Stabile, who, after the bargain had been made, found that the fruit stand was not as it had been represented. They obtained judgment for $188 and costs, but Mrs. Gallo would not pay, and the counsel for the creditors prosecuted her.

WARSHIP FIREMAN KILLED.

Two Others Injured in Blowout on the Destroyer Aylwin.

NORFOLK, Va., April 6.—Everett Harmon, of Jacksboro, Tenn., a navy fireman, was killed and two other men were seriously injured in a blowout in the forward fire room of the destroyer Aylwin early to-day.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Bartholomew Glynn, a water tender, injured on board the Destroyer Aylwin at Norfolk, lives in New York, where his brother, Michael Glynn, resides. James H. Eaton, fireman, second class, also injured, is a son of Mrs. Maggie O'Rourke of Philadelphia. Everett Harmon, the man who was killed, came from Jacksboro, Tenn. His next of kin is Edgar Harmon of Buffalo, N. Y.

SURGERY WITH HIS KNIFE.

Injured Veteran Cuts Off His Thumb and Binds It Up.

BOONTON, N. J., April 6.—Eighty-year-old William Decker, who was with the Harris Light Horse Cavalry in the civil war, is the marvel of the physicians of Rockaway Valley, two miles back in the mountains from here. He is showing them his right thumb, which, after its end had been cut off by a buzz-saw, he unjointed with a knife, pulling the flesh over the end of the stump.

When the old man injured himself, his family wanted to send for a doctor, but he would have none of it. "Some of you take a knife and unjoint the thumb," he instructed them, but they were afraid to undertake the job. Decker is left-handed, so he found it easy, working with his uninjured hand, to push the flesh back and unjoint the thumb. Then he bound it up in a handkerchief and to-day the injured thumb is entirely healed.

"No ether or cocaine for me," Decker told the physicians. "A good doctor only needs to be a good carpenter, anyway."

ROCKEFELLER, JR., DEFIES UNION RULE

Will Sacrifice All in Colorado Rather Than Subject Miners to Union Dictation.

FIRM FOR "OPEN SHOP"

Americans, He Tells Congressmen, Must Have Right to Work Where They Please.

SAYS HE DOES HIS DUTY

Is a Director, but Must Trust Details to Trained Officers—Testifies for Four Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., testifying to-day as a Director of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in the inquiry which the House Committee on Mines is conducting into the Colorado coal strike, declared unequivocally for the principle of the "open shop," and assented that he and his associates would prefer that they should "lose all of their millions invested in the coal fields than that American workingmen should be deprived of the right under the Constitution to work for whom they pleased."

Mr. Rockefeller said that he thought his chief duty as a Director was to place honest and capable officers in control of the business. He said he would rather relinquish his interests in Colorado and close down the mines than to recognize the unions under the circumstances. He was not opposed to unions as such, he said, but he did object to unions which tried to force men to join them and which deprived men of the liberty of working for whom they pleased. He said that a recognition of the Mine Workers' Union would mean the repudiation of the employes who had been faithful enough to remain with the company during the strike.

Might Consider Arbitration.

Mr. Rockefeller said he favored arbitration in industrial disputes generally, but in the present instance had supported the officers of the company in their refusal to submit the question of unionizing the mines to arbitration. Later in his testimony he said that he would consider arbitration of the dispute in the Colorado field if he could be assured that a fair and unbiased Board of Arbitration could be obtained. He suggested Federal Judges as the best qualified to serve on such a board.

It was brought out that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., owned about 40 per cent. of the securities of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. The witness testified that his father's interest on the Board of Directors was represented by Starr J. Murphy and John D. Green, as well as by the witness himself, and that J. H. McKenna and L. M. Bowers were "indirect representatives."

It was the younger Rockefeller's debut before a Congressional investigating committee. Although steadily interrogated for four hours, scored with intimations of non-interest in employes, indirectly rebuked for having assumed no personal supervision during the strike, and in a way baited with the accusation that he was a sociological uplifter who had not taken a direct interest in the striking miners in Colorado, Mr. Rockefeller stood his ground solidly and refrained from getting excited over the unexpected trend of the hearing.

Mr. Rockefeller was called as a witness not only because he is a Director of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, which has a big steel plant at Pueblo, the "Pittsburgh of the West," but also on account of the virtual control of that great property by his father. The witness said that he himself held just enough stock in the company to qualify him as a Director.

When pressed hard by Chairman Foster for an explanation of his alleged lack of personal interest in the welfare of the men and questioned as to his duty in the matter, Mr. Rockefeller said that he had conducted his business just as his father and he had conducted their philanthropies, by employing the best men to look after the details and upholding those men so long as they attended to business, and were considered capable and worthy. He said that he had absolute confidence in the officers of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, and was willing to rely upon those men.

Never ruffled over the way in which Chairman Foster and other members of the committee questioned him, Mr. Rockefeller, polite and thoroughly suave, insisted that he was doing all he could to keep in touch with the situation. He said his office had a man of exceptional ability on the ground in L. M. Bowers, Vice President of the company, and that the members of the Rockefeller family were disposed to stand by him in the Colorado affair or in any other matter in which he might be a representative of the Rockefeller investments.

Rely Upon Trained Agents.

When pressed closely by Chairman Foster for an opinion as to whether, while Mr. Rockefeller was paying close attention to sociological, welfare, and religious work, the company in which he represented his father's interests was allowing a severe industrial warfare to develop in Colorado, Mr. Rockefeller pointed to the large batch of correspondence he had had with Vice President Bowers, and reminded the committee that specially trained agents had been employed in many of the more important social investigations of the Rockefeller interests.

"I believe," said Chairman Foster, "that you are connected with sociological and uplift movements and that you were recently the foreman of a Grand Jury which reported upon the white slave traffic. Do you not thing you might have paid some attention to these bloody strike conditions out in Colorado, where you have 1,000 employes in whose welfare you seem not to have taken any deep personal interest?"

"I have done what I regard as the very best thing in the interest of these employes and the large investment I represent," said Mr. Rockefeller. "We have gotten the best men obtainable and are relying on their judgment. We follow the very same policy in philanthropic and social work that we are following in business; that is, we put the best men we can in charge."

"While you were engaged in social uplift work," said Chairman Foster, "did it ever occur to you to investigate conditions among your own employes?"

"When I was foreman of the Grand Jury," replied Mr. Rockefeller, "I did not personally acquaint myself with vice and white slavery, because there were other men so much better qualified to make an investigation and report. They were experienced in the business. I was not. I sent Dr. Flexner to Europe for the same reason."

Not a "Dummy Director."

Replying to questions, Mr. Rockefeller said he had not attended a Directors' meeting of the Colorado Company in ten years, nor had he seen the Colorado properties in that period.

"Are you a dummy Director?" asked Representative Byrnes of South Carolina.

"I do not so regard myself," replied Mr. Rockefeller.

"I believe," said Chairman Foster, "you are affiliated with certain philanthropic and sociological organizations, including the Rockefeller Foundation?"

"Yes," said Mr. Rockefeller, "we contribute to them."

"You were also interested, I believe, in the Chicago Vice Commission's work and were the foreman of a New York Grand Jury which investigated the white slave traffic," said Mr. Foster. "Still, with 10,000 striking miners in Colorado, what have you done to look after them?"

"I have done," said Mr. Rockefeller, "what I regard as the best thing I could have done in the interest of the employes and the large amount we have invested. I do not know what else I might have done."

"What have you done personally to end this strike?"

"I have done nothing personally," said Mr. Rockefeller. "My only knowledge comes from the correspondence I have had with the men in charge there. So long as we have officials there we must let them handle the situation, and the position taken by the officers will be upheld by us as long as we deem them worthy of confidence. I have every confidence in the ability of Mr. Welborn and Mr. Bowers."

"Do you think the fact that the Government is taking some interest in this strike ought to be a hint to you to take at least a passing interest in the affairs at your mines?"

"I have not taken just a passing interest," Mr. Rockefeller replied very quickly, but without the least excitement. "The strike has caused us great concern, but all we can do is to keep in touch with the men we trust. Should we reach the conclusion that they are not doing the right thing, then we would take the matter up with them."

Father's Interest in Company.

When asked as to the Rockefeller holdings in the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the witness said his father held the following securities of that concern: Common stock, 139,807 out of 342,353 shares; preferred stock, 7,943 out of 20,000. Bonds, Colorado Industrial Company 5 per cents, $14,450,000 out of $33,437,000. General 5 per cents of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, $266,000 out of $5,638,000

According to the witness, the only dividends paid by the company were in 1913. He said a cumulative dividend of 8 per cent. due on the preferred stock had at that time accumulated to 75 per cent. He said that 35 per cent. was paid on the accumulated dividend and 4 per cent. on the 8 per cent. dividend due that year.

Mr. Rockefeller told the committee that Vice President Bowers had been looking after the Rockefeller interests for many years. He did so formerly in the East. Mrs. Bowers's health failed and she had to be taken West in 1907. Mr. Bowers asked whether he could be of service in the West, and was asked to investigate some investments that the Rockefellers had in the West at that time. Then he became Treasurer of the Colorado Company, and afterward was made Chairman of the board by the board itself, without any knowledge on our part." Mr. Rockefeller said he mentioned these things to show that Mr. Bowers's "long continued relationship with the company has been controlled by the board because of his great value to the enterprise."

Q. (by Chairman Foster)—You have never taken the time personally, nor have any of the Directors, to find out for yourselves from personal knowledge whether these miners had a grievance or not? A.—I have the utmost confidence in the man in charge.

Q.—I know, but you have not done that? A.—I have not found it necessary in the discharge of my duty.

Q.—As a Director of the company you thought that all necessary for you to do was put your name on the roster of officers as a Director, not even attending the stockholders' meeting, turn the matter over to somebody else, and say "Go ahead"? A.—We spent ten years testing out the man that is one of the men in charge.

Q.—Do your Directors duty goes further than that? A.—I do not know of any way in which I could more adequately and completely discharge my duty than in that way.

Q.—Don't you believe that you, looking after the welfare of the other civilians of the United States—that somewhat closer relations between officers and that class of men, these 6,000 coal diggers who work underground, many of them foreigners, ignorant and unacquainted with the ways of the country, would be an uplift to them and make them better citizens? A.—It is because I have such a profound interest in these men and all workers that I expect to stand by the policy which has been outlined by the officers, and which seems to me to be, first, last, and always, in the greatest interest of the employes of the country.

Q.—But you do not regard it as a matter personal to you to look into these matters yourself? A.—Oh, I am giving it constant and close attention.

Q.—You have spent a lot of money, thousands of dollars, looking to the civic uplift in different parts of the country, have you not? A.—We have spent some money in those ways.

"And yet, with 10,000 employes, you have simply trusted it to two or three men out there?" asked Chairman Foster.

Strike Costing $1,000,000

According to the estimate of the President of the company, Mr. Rockefeller said, it was costing the Rockefellers "about $1,000,000 to stand for the principle which we believe is to the ultimate interest of those men."

"And," interjected Chairman Foster, "that is to fight the union?"

"That is to allow them to have the privilege of determining the conditions under which they shall work," replied the witness.

Q.—And not that men shall get together and talk over their own interests? A.—They have every right to do that.

Q.—Collective bargaining and sale of their labor—you want to fight that? A.—I do not say that. Not that outside men, who have no interest in them or in their employers, shall come in and impose upon them that organization.

Q.—You are an outsider with respect to Colorado, are you not? A.—I do not live there. I am an outsider, except in a representative capacity.

Q.—You have not been there for ten years? A.—I have never lived there. I am an outsider to the extent of being one who is spending a million dollars in helping to look out for the interests of those people.

Q.—And is the man who works to be excluded from going in and looking out for the interests of that class of men? A.—I think that when we help a class of persons you have to give them a right to say whether they will be helped or not.

Q.—But are the miners who invest their money there the only ones? A.—Certainly not, but the men have not expressed any dissatisfaction with their condition. The records show that the conditions have been favorable. If the men should express themselves as dissatisfied—

Q.—You have had a strike there within a year? A.—A strike has been imposed upon the company from outside.

Q.—How can you have a strike without dissatisfaction? They could not make men go out of the mines for nothing. A.—They could not make the men go out? Then I do not think you have as much knowledge of the conditions as I have.

Strike Brought On by Threats.

Mr. Rockefeller said that "Black-Hand" letters had been received, along with threats of violence to the wives and daughters of workmen, and that these were the ways in which outsiders "make men go out."

Chairman Foster wanted to know whether that was the way they had brought on the strike, and Mr. Rockefeller said it was.

"I assume," said Mr. Rockefeller, "the technical way in which the fight was brought on was the calling of this convention, in which there was no bona-fide representative or delegate from any of our men. I claim it is hardly a republican method of dealing to have a strike brought on in convention without any representatives of the men who are to strike being present."

Mr. Rockefeller said the miners had no grievances that he knew of, whereupon Mr. Foster said he would send Mr. Rockefeller a copy of the testimony taken at the hearings.

"Very well," said Mr. Rockefeller, "All the things contended for during the strike had been conceded by the company previous to the strike."

Q.—Do you think that a Director like you are, of a company like the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, should take the responsibility for the conduct of that company? A.—In these days, when interests are so diversified and numerous, of course it would be impossible for any man to be personally responsible for all the management of the various concerns in which he might be a larger or smaller stockholder. It would be simply impossible to do that, and all that any man can do is to find the ablest men that he can find and put the responsibility squarely on them.

Q.—You think that relieves the stockholder or Director of any responsibility for the management of that company? A.—I do not know of any way in which a company can be run except by putting the responsibility upon the officers, and then holding them to it, and seeing that they perform in a proper way the tasks imposed upon them.

Q.—Do you think there is a difference between a man who represents his own interests or somebody else's interests, which he is willing to turn over to a third party in the management of a company? A.—Do you mean, does it make any difference in his responsibility?

Q.—In his responsibility. A.—Not the slightest. I hold myself just as responsible as though I owned this stock myself.

Q.—You do not consider yourself a dummy Director in the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company? A.—I do not.

Q.—But you do represent some one else, and not yourself? A.—I do, because since his retirement from business some fifteen years ago, my father has given no personal attention to the conduct of any of the private businesses in which he is an investor.

Q.—And you have attended no meetings of the Board of Directors since this strike started in Colorado? A.—I have not, but I have kept in close touch with the affairs of the company.

As to Guns and Ammunition.

When Chairman Foster asked Mr. Rockefeller what he knew about "the purchase of guns and ammunition in Colorado," Mr. Rockefeller said he knew nothing about it. He said he had not the slightest idea whether his company had bought any guns or ammunition.

"How much has this strike cost your company directly?" asked Chairman Foster.

"I do not know definitely," replied the witness. "Mr. Bowers told me it was estimated that before the end of the fiscal year the loss resulting from the strike would be in the vicinity of $1,000,000."

Q.—You do not know directly how much it has cost you? A.—I can only know what he said. If he says that is his opinion, I presume it is as good a guess as any one could make.

Q.—I will give you the information that he has testified that directly it has cost your company $350,000. Do you know whether a considerable sum of money has been spent for guns and ammunition? A.—I have not the slightest idea whether any part of that money was spent for that.

Q.—Do you know there have been imported into Colorado from West Virginia the machine guns that were used in the West Virginia strike? A.—I do not.

Q.—What do you think about that? A.—If the local authorities in Colorado have not been able to provide adequate protection for the employes of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, I should regard it as the first duty of the officials of the company to provide such protection.

Q.—Buy machine guns? A.—I would not undertake to suggest to them how to do it.

Q.—To buy plenty of guns and plenty of ammunition? A.—I would not undertake to suggest to them how to do it, but I would say, Be sure you protect our men who are faithful.

Q.—As a Director, did you authorize the expenditure of this money for guns and ammunition? A.—No, it would not come to us to authorize any expenditure for the conduct of the strike. That is left in the hands of the officers.

Q.—Did you authorize the employment of the Baldwin-Felts detectives? A.—I have never heard of anything of the kind. All these matters have been cared for by the officers.

Q.—You do not knew what this money has been spent for? A.—Except that I know it has been spent in proper ways, to conserve the interests of the employes.

Asked whether the officers of the company had ever taken any interest in Colorado politics, Mr. Rockefeller replied:

"I should hope that the officers of any company in which I was interested would, as citizens, take a very active interest in the politics of the country in which they live."

Chairman Foster wanted to know how many liquor saloons there were on the Rockefeller Colorado property.

"I have not the slightest idea," said Mr. Rockefeller. "I should hope there are not any."

"Does your company own the saloon buildings?"

Dealing With the Liquor Evil.

"I do not know that, but I know that when I was in Colorado one of the things that interested me most was to see the earnest efforts which had been made by the then officials of the company to deal with the liquor question. They realized that the employes, being largely foreigners, were in the habit of drinking, and their study was to see how the liquor evil should be reduced to a minimum; and they tried different methods of handling that.

"One method was to have a saloon in which the bartender was paid a salary and received no commission on the drinks sold. Another that interested me deeply was the establishing in several places of clubs for the employes, of which the local officials of the company and the employes themselves were officers. In these clubs drinks were served; treating was not allowed, and drinks were not allowed to be sold to a man that was under the influence of liquor in any degree. In those various towns the officers have studied with the utmost care to see how they might reduce to a minimum the evils of intemperance among the men."

Mr. Rockefeller told the committee he did not know whether the company or an outside individual held the licenses for the saloons, and, when asked why he had never looked into that, said he had absolute confidence in the men in charge, knew their views and felt satisfied they were doing "the very best that can be done in the common interest."

Mr. Foster asked Mr. Rockefeller whether he had built any churches "out there." The witness answered that there was reference in the correspondence to the church which was recently built, and another which was built by the company, and another which was undergoing repairs when the strike began, but that other than that he had no information.

Mr. Foster wanted to know whether Mr. Rockefeller was aware of the charge that the schools were crowded and that the children received insufficient privileges. Mr. Rockefeller answered that it would be somewhat surprising to him if that were true, because the officers of the company had not only provided school facilities, but the very best teachers obtainable, according to his information from the officers. Asked whether there were any high schools in the Rockefeller mining camps, the witness said he did not know.

"Well," exclaimed Mr. Foster, "you have not. I can tell you that."

Q.—The miners who work for the company are compelled to rent your property? A.—They are not compelled to work for the company.

Q.—I say, if they work they are compelled? A.—If they work they must live somewhere, and you own all the land in town owned by the company. Where could they live?

Knew Nothing of Company Checks.

Q.—Do you think that's the way to conduct an industrial concern? A.—Certainly; we must house the men somewhere.

Q.—Do you know that in these incorporated towns usually the store manager is the Postmaster? A.—I think that is usually true in most small towns, is it not, whether they are mining camps or otherwise?

Q.—That is the condition out there. Do you know your company up to a short time ago—it is claimed it is stopped now—was issuing company checks in competition with the Government in issuing postal money orders, so that your company has been getting a profit out of that? A.—I do not.

Q.—That is true, Mr. Rockefeller. It is claimed it was stopped last Fall, but it was done up to the time this investigation began. A lot of these conditions have gone on there which you know nothing about? A.—It would be inevitably so.

Q.—Do you not think, Mr. Rockefeller, it was your duty to know just what the conditions were? A.—We have often thought that the companies in which we were interested were somewhat favored investments, and we have usually found that employes of such companies were about as happy, about as contented, and about as well treated as any employes.

Chairman Foster told Mr. Rockefeller that "they had a strike out in Colorado about once every ten years," whereupon Mr. Rockefeller retorted that 90 per cent. of the employes were not in favor of the present strike, adding without raising his voice:

"Sometimes one has a burglary, but is it one's fault? I know that there was a strike ten or about a dozen years ago brought about the same way. There are no mining camps in this country where there have been less trouble and fewer strikes than in the camps owned by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. I think that must inevitably reflect very creditably upon the Directors and management."

When the Chairman asked Mr. Rockefeller if he knew anything about an automobile being protected with armor plate by his company, he responded: "It sounds very interesting, but I have not heard of it."

"It was built," said Chairman Foster, "in the shops of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company."

"I did not know they produced automobiles as well," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"They put machine guns on it, going around through the country," said Mr. Foster.

The Duty of Employers.

Mr. Foster said that when the militia was ordered out many of the mine guards were sworn into the service of the State and kept on the payrolls of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company. Asked whether he thought that made the militia a non-partisan preserver of the peace, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"If the local authorities in any community were unable or did not render adequate protection to the workers, it was the duty of the employers of the laborers to supplement that protection in any way they could."

When asked whether he thought it was better to swear in the mine guards as part of the militia than to get them outside, Mr. Rockefeller said he would not undertake "to form an opinion as against the opinion of the Governor of the State."

"All this disturbance and loss of life—killing upon both sides—out there has not been of enough importance to you to cause you to say, 'Let us have a meting of the Directors,' and find out more about it?" asked Mr. Foster.

"I have been so greatly interested in the matter and have such a warm sympathy for this very large number of men that work for us that I should be the last one to surrender the liberty under which they have been working and the conditions which to them have been entirely satisfactory—to give up that liberty and accept dictation from those outside who have no interest in them or in the company."

Q.—But the killing of people and shooting of children—has not that been of enough importance to you for you to communicate with the other Directors and see if something might be done to end that sort of thing? A.—We believe the issue is not a local one in Colorado. It is a national issue whether workers shall be allowed to work under such conditions as they may choose. As part owners of the property of the law-abiding men in this country is so immense, so deep, so profound that we stand ready to lose every cent we put in that company rather than see the men we have employed thrown out of work and have imposed upon them conditions which dare not of their seeking and which neither they nor we can see are in our interest.

Q.—You are willing to let these killings take place rather than to go there and do something to settle conditions. A.—There is just one thing that can be done to settle this strike, and that is to unionize the camps, and our interest in labor is so profound and we believe so sincerely that that interest demands that the camps shall be open camps, that we expect to stand by the officers at any cost. It is not an accident that this is our position.

Q.—And you will do that if that costs all your property and kills all your employes? A.—It is a great principle.

Q.—And you would do that rather than recognize the right of men in collective bargaining? A.—No, Sir—rather than allow outside people to come in and interfere with employes who are thoroughly satisfied with their labor conditions. It was upon a similar principle that the War of the Revolution was carried on. It is a great national issue of the most vital kind.

CANADA RAISES DUTY.

United States Tariff Offer of Reciprocal Wheat and Flour Is Declined.

OTTAWA, April 6.—An increase of import duty on a number of iron and steel schedules was announced by Finance Minister White in his annual budget speech made before the Canadian House of Commons to-day. The change affects all three tariff classifications, the "preferential" which is charged on imports from Great Britain and most of the British colonies, the "intermediate" applied in the case of treaty countries, such as France, Belgium, and Austria, and the "general" under which import duties against the United States and Germany are levied. The lowest rate is charged on the preferential and the highest on the general tariffs.

Under the increase announced to-day, wire rods which heretofore have been imported free are made subject to a duty of $2.25 per ton British preferential, and $3.50 per ton in the intermediate and general schedules. The duty on wire, which is included in this schedule, will be refunded in case it is used for fencing purposes. Up to the present, structural steel weighing more than thirty-five pounds per yard has paid $2 on the preferential, $2.75 on the intermediate and $3 on the general schedules per ton. The increase provides that up to 120 pounds per yard structural steel shall pay $4.25 preferential, $6 intermediate, and $7 general whenever the Government is satisfied that steel of this character can be made satisfactorily in Canada.

Tubing of iron or steel up to four inches in diameter, on which in the past 20 per cent. has been paid under British preferential, 30 per cent. in the intermediate, and 35 per cent. in the general schedules, will continue to be imported under the tariff, as will also all tubing up to ten inches in diameter, on which substantial reductions were formerly made.

The offer of the Underwood tariff, now in force in the United States, for the free admission of Canadian wheat, was refused. The present American tariff gives free admission to the wheat and flour of any country that admits free of duty these articles from the United States. The Canadian Finance Minister announced that his Government believed in protection for the farmer, and would therefore continue the Canadian duties in these schedules.

HOLLAND SOCIETY ELECTS.

William Leverich Brower Again Chosen President.

Two hundred members of the Holland Society of New York met at the Hotel Astor last night and elected the following officers:

President—William Leverich Brower; Vice Presidents—Gerard Beekman, John Van Vorst Boorgaem, James Cornell Van Sicklen, Ellis Warner Dusenbery, I. Reynolds Adriance, Gilbert D. B. Hasbrouck, Dr. James N. Vander Veer, Horace Silliman Van Voast, Dr. Edward J. Wynkoop, Robert Lefferts, David Barclow Van Vame, R. Garrett Sip, Dr. Byron Van Horn, Frank Van Cleve, Jacob T. B. Bogardus, William H. Hendrickson, Philip Van R. Van Wyck, Harry Abraham Van Gilder, Dr. William Harman Van Allen, Henry L. Van Winkle, Col. Adelbert Cronkhite, U. S. A.; Commander Warren Jay Terhune, U. S. A.; Treasurer—Arthur Hoffman Van Brunt; Recording Secretary—Edward Van Winkle; Corresponding Secretary—Seward G. Spoor; Trustees—Class of 1918, William Leverich Brower, Garrett J. Garretson, Frank Hasbrouck, Augustus Van Wyck, and John W. Vrooman; Trustee, Class of 1915—Seymour Van Santvoord.

President Brower enjoys the distinction of being the first re-elected President of the society.

The Treasurer's report showed that the society had a balance of $8,422.68. The society has 1,003 members. Last year 21 died and 26 were dropped, either through death or some other cause. It was announced that the effort, extending over five years, to erect a statue in New York in honor of "William the Silent," known in the history of Holland as the man who successfully combated the Spanish invasion in the sixteenth century, was now successfully terminated.

The statue with its pedestal will be forty feet high and will be an exact reproduction of the statue of William the Silent that was placed some years ago in the centre of the main square of The Hague, facing the Halls of Justice. Charles Van Wyck, a Holland sculptor, will make the statue from the original plaster cast of the statue now in existence. The statue is expected here next Fall.

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 6 A. M. to 5 P. SAYS REPEAL FOES HIDE BEHIND FLAG

Tolls Exemption Means Robbing Treasury to Aid the Shipping Trust, Is McCumber's View.

OPEN SESSIONS FOR BILL

O'Gorman Decides on Publicity of Committee Meetings — Public for Repeal, Says Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6 —Though the Tolls Repeal bill will not enter even the committee stage of the Senate's consideration before to-morrow, its formal discussion in the Senate began to-day with a vigorous argument by Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, who is one of the six Republicans certain to support the President for repeal. Mr. McCumber's thorough study of the question from a legal and economic point of view held the attention of his hearers through four hours, and the galleries broke into applause at his closing plea for support of the President in his struggle to maintain the honor of the nation.

Mr. McCumber refused to discuss the political aspects of repeal further than to say that all political arguments ignored the vital points of the subject, and attacked it from the rear. The Democratic platform, he said, had no part in the Repeal bill's serious consideration, and Mr. Wilson was President of the United States and not of the Democratic Party. Senators of the opposition, he said, had hinted that it would be difficult to convince the people of the validity of remote treaty obligations and economic "ruts," but he was willing to make a fight for education rather than use popular ignorance as his weapon and his justification.

The points at issue, said Mr. McCumber, were the economic policy involved and the obligation of the United States to make good her treaty pledges. Neither of these points, he said, were met in any of the petitions and memorials he had received, so that he assumed the country was excited about irrelevant details. It was absurd, he said, to characterize the repeal of the tolls exemption as a surrender of American sovereignty over the canal, when that sovereignty existed only by virtue of the treaty that now qualified it.

Shall We Hide Behind the Flag?

"Will we hide behind the flag," he asked, "while we burglarize the American treasury for the benefit of the coastwise shipping interest?"

Mr. McCumber read two long letters he had received, one from Joseph H. Choate, American Ambassador at the Court of St. James's when the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was negotiated, and the other from Henry White, then Secretary of the embassy at London. These were the only two men living, said Mr. McCumber, as far as he knew, who had had anything to do with negotiating the treaty.

Both of them were emphatic in their statements that in the whole correspondence between the two Governments, the informal conversations in London, where most of the negotiations were carried on, and the correspondence between the embassy and the State Department there was not a single implication that American shipping was to be treated differently from the shipping of foreign nations. Such an implication would have been saying, added Mr. Choate, that five-sixths of the American shipping was to be exempted inferentially without a single word on the subject having been uttered or written. That, he said, was absurd.

Mr. McCumber made a telling point in saying that when the Senate was considering the Hay-Pauncefote treaty for ratification in 1901 it was proposed specifically to reserve to the United States the right to exempt American coastwise shipping from the tolls, but the amendment was rejected by a vote of 43 to 47. The late Senator Bacon of Georgia, said Mr. McCumber, voted for that amendment, and afterward explained that he did so to reserve a right which the rejection of the amendment killed forever.

"I cannot but feel, and deeply feel, that this is not a mere question of dollars and cents," said Mr. McCumber. "The matter of the payment of these tolls is a bagatelle, but we cannot measure national integrity in dollars and cents. We can throw our dollars to the wind, but we cannot throw national character to the wind. The President of the United States has taken a lofty stand in this case, and no matter whether we be Democrats or Republicans we ought to stand by him in his efforts to uphold the national integrity of this Government in the face of the whole world.

Treaties Mean Some Surrender.

"Do we talk about our surrendering our little domestic concerns? Mr. President, we never make an agreement with any other nation but that we surrender some of our domestic rights.

"We are surrendering nothing more than we surrender when we make an agreement that gives to the trade of one nation the same rights in our country that we give to the others. In that case we are doing the same thing; we are surrendering a right over our internal affairs. Every reciprocity agreement made in relation to tariff or any other matter is an agreement whereby for a just and valuable consideration we in turn surrender some other consideration.

President Wilson told visitors to-day that editorial expressions in the press and correspondence from disinterested observers all over the country revealed support of the Administration's stand for tolls repeal. The President added that he did not expect the question to be a campaign issue.

Publicity for the deliberations on the repeal bill was determined upon to-day by Senator O'Gorman, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals, after a conference with his colleagues. Whether hearings are to be held will be decided when the House repeal bill and various compromise Senate measures are formally taken up.

WANTS MORE TOLLS DATA.

Knowland Learns Wilson Has None and Calls for Taft Records.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Representative Joseph R. Knowland of California offered to-day in a revised and more sweeping form his resolution seeking to obtain from the Wilson Administration all diplomatic correspondence relating to the question of the repeal of the free tolls provisions of the Panama Canal act. The resolution was modified as a result of suggestions made to Mr. Knowland at a session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee held to-day for the purpose of considering the original resolution, which asked that the President and Secretary Bryan transmit to Congress any correspondence that might have any bearing on tolls exemption.

When the committee met to-day, Representative Flood of Virginia, its Chairman, stated to Mr. Knowland, who was on hand for a hearing, that he (Mr. Flood) had been told very positively by President Wilson that he had had no correspondence or notes regarding the tolls question since the new Democratic Administration had come into power. It was suggested that the Knowland resolution might very well be amended.

After the adjournment of the committee, Mr. Knowland reintroduced the resolution, changing its text in a way which he believed would bring from the State Department all the data that was in the possession of the Taft Administration, as well as any other information that may be in the archives of the State Department dealing with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and various provisions of the Panama Canal act of 1912.

A gentlemen's agreement was reached by the Foreign Affairs Committee that consideration of the new resolution be deferred for about three weeks.

Strong sentiment developed in the committee against the Knowland resolution, but it was realized that it could not be pigeonholed because it was privileged and could be called up in the House if not acted on by the committee within a certain time.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut also introduced a resolution requesting the President, if not incompatible with the public interest, to give the Senate all information, records, and correspondence relating to the negotiation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Senator Brandegee favors the repeal bill.

much more conciliatory in tone than those which marked the bill's earlier passages, John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, who opened the debate, again held out the olive branch to Ulster in a speech of great eloquence, but insisted that it was impossible for him and his colleagues to agree to the permanent exclusion of Ulster and to abandon the principle of "Ireland a nation."

"I think in the present circumstances there is nothing for the House of Commons to do but proceed with the Home Rule for Ireland bill as it stands," was Mr. Redmond's closing sentence.

Mr. Redmond pleaded that the present stage of the controversy was so critical that all energies must be devoted to facing the realities. He continued:

"The country as a whole is sick and tired of the Irish question, and it must be settled here and now."

Declaring that it was impossible for the Irish Nationalists by agreeing to the permanent exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the Home Rule bill to abandon the principle of "Ireland a nation," Mr. Redmond added:

"The real question of the moment is how far each side is prepared to advance toward agreement."

The Nationalists, Mr. Redmond said, would have been glad to accept the scheme proposed by Sir Horace Plunkett in February by which a plebiscite would be taken after a certain number of years on the question whether any section of Ulster desired to continue subject to the Irish Parliament.

Mr. Redmond said he was in sympathy with the general proposal of a scheme of federation, but vague talk on the subject, he declared, was mischievous and could not solve the present difficulty.

Amid great cheering on the Ministerial side of the House, Mr. Redmond then summed up his view of the situation, saying that, although he would not do or say anything to preclude the possibility of a fair and honorable peace, he thought there was nothing else to do at present than proceed with the bill in its present form.

In the course of his speech Mr. Redmond said:

"The House of Commons owes it as a duty to Ireland and to England to pass the Home Rule bill, and not to be deterred from doing so by threats of armed resistance. I am profoundly confident that when the bill has been once passed, it will never be repealed. The change which has taken place during recent years in public opinion regarding Home Rule will never be reversed."

Carson Repeats His Offer.

Following his Nationalist compatriot came Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, who declared that the Government's attempt to "jump" Ulster with naval and military forces had made him skepical of any reality in its professions of peace and conciliation.

Sir Edward suggested that Mr. Redmond, like the Government, was trying to create an atmosphere favorable to himself without an attempt to find a practical compromise. The talk of federalism had not, he said, advanced the settlement of the Ulster question an iota. If the Government had said it was willing to hang up the Home Rule bill until a federal solution had been passed into law, then, said Sir Edward, the sincerity of the Ministerial offer would be unquestionable. He contended, however, that the adoption of the present Home Rule bill would effectually bar the way to federalism.

Sir Edward Carson then repeated his offer that, if the Government would agree to allow Parliament to decide at the end of a six years' period of exclusion whether or not Ulster should have the continued right of local option, he would call an Ulster convention and submit the question to it. The only solution, declared Sir Edward, was to leave Ulster out of the operation of the bill until her consent to inclusion had been won.

Sir John Simon, the Attorney General, told the House that the Government's offer to Ulstor of temporary local option was still open, but that Ireland could not be permanently divided. The Government, he said, was aiming at Irish unity and was therefore unable to concede permanent exclusion to Ulster. If the efforts to reach a compromise should fail the Government was going to carry the Home Rule bill as it stood.

Timothy Healy (Independent Nationalist) charged Mr. Redmond with deluding Ireland. From Sir Edward Grey's speech announcing that there must be an appeal to the electorate before the bill came into operation, he said, it was clear that the whole matter was the purest gamble. The plea for conciliation made by William O'Brien had been heeded, instead of calling the Ulstermen "Orange dogs" and "carrion crows," the question would have been much nearer settlement than it was.

Mr. Healy then announced that the followers of William O'Brien would not vote for the second reading of the bill.

Situation Perilous, Says Bonar Law.

Andrew Bonar Law, the Opposition leader, said that the Government was pushing the bill through under a system which was virtually a one-chamber Government. He recalled a phrase once used by Sir Edward Grey that "a single-chamber Government means damnation and disaster," and said that the prophecy was being fulfilled; Sir Edward had himself done his best to make it come true.

At the same time, continued Mr. Bonar Law, the Unionists were ready to make every reasonable sacrifice to avoid the calamity of civil strife. There were only two ways whereby that could be averted; one was the exclusion of Ulster from the bill, the other an appeal to the people. If a proposal were made for a renewal of the "conversations" between the leaders of the two parties, as Sir Edward Grey had suggested, the Opposition would accept it, but he feared that nothing would come of it while Mr. Redmond exercised the power to veto any proposals put forward by the Opposition.

In his opinion, said Mr. Bonar Law, the situation was never more replete with danger than at present. If the Government chose, it had the power to ruin Ulster and its own country, but it would never succeed in compelling Ulster by force, and against its will, to go outside the protection of the British Parliament.

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, wound up the debate with an optimistic speech. He argued that civil war was impossible. He was amazed at the patience displayed by the Catholics and Nationalists in Ulster under great provocation. It showed, he said, that there was no need of civil war to effect a settlement of the question. Ulster must be won; her opposition must be overcome, but it could not be by force; hence the Government's proposals.

Mr. Birrell made pointed reference to the strong objections in Ireland to the permanent exclusion of Ulster, and appealed to the Unionists not to press the Government too hard in the matter of a time limit. The Government, he said, was shutting no door to a settlement, and was keeping open every proposal which had been made.

The closure was carried by a vote of 356 to 272, and the amendment for the rejection of the bill was then defeated. The announcement of the figures, showing the reduced Government majority, was received with Opposition cries of "Where is your independent majority?"

The departure of Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey from London without waiting to participate in to-night's division was much commented on in the lobbies of the House of Commons to-day, but it was later learned that it had no political significance. Sir Edward is merely taking a few days' holiday, which he arranged for some time ago. Lord Morley is taking his place at the Foreign Office.

BELFAST, April 6.—Col. Sharman-Crawford was to-day returned, unopposed, to Parliament as Unionist member for East Belfast to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the death on March 25 of Robert James McMordie.

Col. Sharman-Crawford is Vice Commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, and as representative of the club was present at Sandy Hook during the contests for the America's Cup.

GOUGH A HERO TO HIS MEN.

Troops Sympathized with Unionist Officers—Tension Now Relaxed.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, April 6.—The Globe's special Ulster correspondent cables from the Curragh Camp:

"There is a lull here after the storm of resignations, and the tension is greatly relaxed. The feeling among the troops against active service in Ulster was more widespread than was generally believed. The non-commissioned officers and the bulk of the men were prepared to stand by the officers had matters been pushed to extremes. As Asquith admitted, some one blundered.

"It is impossible to rid Carsonites and soldiers of the impression that the disposition of troops and munitions of war denoted active service. The intention of the officers not to comply with orders was known to Sir Edward Carson in time to enable the volunteers to prepare for eventualities. The volunteers were ready to mobilize to capture the police barracks and overpower the police in the north while the army was disorganized. Volunteer scouts stood by Ulster church bells for two nights while the tension was highest to give the signal throughout the province.

"Gen. Gough is a hero in the eyes of the Carsonites and the troops here. Gough and the other officers involved are mostly of the Irish landlord class. The orders for trebled guards and ball cartridges to the Irish military barracks have now been withdrawn. Further evidence that the tension is relieved is the fact that the troops are now making preparations for annual drills and training.

"Following the second reading of the Home Rule bill, The Irish Times, the leading Unionist paper in Ireland, sees no reason to depart from the stand hitherto taken. The only escape from the Ulster peril, it says, is a general election. It is utterly opposed to Carson's demand for exclusion. The opinion of the leading men in Dublin is that, although the hopes of immediate settlement are dashed to the ground, a movement will take shape soon throughout Ireland among the moderates compelling Ulster to submit to a reasonable settlement."

DANIELS DEFENDS NAVY LIQUOR BAN

And Indicates That It May Be Modified When Foreign Ships Attend Canal Opening.

PRESIDENT COMMENDS HIM

But Makes It Plain That He Had No Hand in the Order — Secretary Gets Many Congratulations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—It became known definitely to-day that President Wilson had not been consulted by Secretary Daniels before Mr. Daniels issued his order abolishing the use of all intoxicants on ships of the navy and in navy yards and other shore stations. When the President was asked if he had any part in the issuance of the order, he answered that it was purely a Navy Department matter. Incidentally he spoke highly of Secretary Daniels as an officer of the Government. The President's opinion of the order was not ascertained, but everything indicated that he had no intention of interfering with it.

Mr. Daniels indicated to-day that in certain circumstances the order might be modified for temporary periods. The question was raised as to what course would be pursued with reference to the entertainment of foreign officers aboard American warships. It was mentioned in this connection that awkwardness might be experienced when foreign fleets came to the United States for the opening of the Panama Canal next year. Secretary Daniels said that some adjustment of the problem would be made in due time to avert all difficulty. He also said that there were numerous details in regard to the order that would be met when the time came. Asked if he thought there would be any disposition by officers to disregard the order by drinking in their rooms or in quarters, the Secretary said that he had not the slightest fear about that, because he believed officers of the navy were men of honor and would obey the regulations.

It should be remembered, Mr. Daniels said, that a very large proportion of navy officers were in favor of such an order and would hail it with great satisfaction. He thought, possibly, these would not make as much noise in discussing the order as some few might in opposing it, but as for the complete success of the new regulation, the Secretary said he had no fear whatever.

Secretary Daniels said that he was satisfied that there were a good many people throughout the land who were not displeased at his action. In fact, telegrams kept pouring in upon the Secretary all day commending his course. Secretary Daniels spoke of the liquor prohibition to-day as something he felt he must do as a matter of duty.

"I think the most powerful reason for any man could have for this action," said Mr. Daniels, "are the cases that pass over my desk of young officers whose efficiency, and honor even, have been wrecked by drink. And I am sorry to write in most cases where I have not had a chance to inquire into the circumstances I have found that the downfall of these men can be attributed to wardroom temptations. There they have learned to drink and have formed the habit of drinking. A good many young officers have come through to me with a habit, and of course it may be assumed that only the worst cases come to me."

Senator Tillman of South Carolina, Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, spoke approvingly of the Secretary's order.

"I am not a prohibitionist," he said. "I drink a little whisky myself. But liquor ought to be kept out of the navy and army. I recognize that there is too much drinking, especially among the officers. The great difficulty about this order will be in its enforcement."

A remark made by Brig. Gen. Gorgas, the new Surgeon General of the army, who took office to-day, that every man would be better off without alcoholic drinks, was construed in some quarters as meaning that Gen. Gorgas would advocate for the army a prohibitory order similar to that issued for the navy. But Gen. Gorgas said he had not given serious thought to the question and was not prepared to discuss it.

METHODISTS INDORSE IT.

Conference Commends Daniels's Wine Ban for the Navy.

A resolution indorsing the action of Secretary Daniels in excluding alcoholic beverages from the navy was adopted unanimously yesterday by the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in session at the Eighteenth Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

A copy of the resolutions signed by Bishop Luther B. Wilson, the presiding officer of the Conference, was ordered s

ALIENIST STUDIES PRICE'S ACCUSERS

Counsel for the Pastor Said to Think One Woman's Kiss Was a Hallucination.

HE DENIES ALL CHARGES

Mrs. Moore Says Minister Kissed Her and That His Action Drove Husband from the Church.

An alienist under instructions to watch the actions of the women witnesses against the Rev. Dr. Jacob E. Price, the pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal Church charged with "unministerial conduct," has been present in the Metropolitan Temple at Seventh Avenue near Fourteenth Street, where the pastor is being tried by an Ecclesiastical Court, a friend of Dr. Price said yesterday. It was suspected, the friend said, that one of the women was subject to hallucinations and that the kiss she alleged that Dr. Price gave her was a "dream kiss." It is not known whether the alienist will testify.

Mrs. William Duke Moore, of 3,485 Broadway, one of the complainants against Dr. Price who had refused to testify because of the notoriety attaching to the trial, appeared unexpectedly as a witness yesterday and said that Dr. Price had kissed her on the cheek and that his action had driven her husband, whom she was trying to convert, from the church.

Dr. Price took the stand in his own defense and denied the charges against him, but did not finish his testimony before the adjournment of the court late in the afternoon. Mrs. Hilma Dohl, the Swedish widow who charged Dr. Price with improper advances toward her, was called three times in rebuttal, and her daughter, Miss Prudence Dohl, who is twenty years old, corroborated her testimony in part. Mrs. Dohl exhibited an anonymous postal card evidently written by a woman which she said she received yesterday morning. The card attacked her character and warned her not to testify again.

Mrs. Moore said that she first went to Dr. Price about a year ago to solicit his influence in converting her husband. Dr. Price called at her home several times for this purpose, she said, and made a favorable impression upon Mr. Moore because he talked baseball.

"Any man who can talk baseball must be human," she quoted her husband as saying.

"About the first of last September," Mrs. Moore continued, "my husband was called out of the State by the illness of his mother. He had been away three weeks when I happened to mention his absence to Dr. Price. In a few days Dr. Price called upon me. My husband was still absent, his mother being at the point of death. Dr. Price offered consolation and we both got upon our knees and prayed for my husband's mother and that he might soon be brought into the church.

"When he got up Dr. Price came over and kissed me on the cheek. I was surprised and did not know what to do. I simply said: 'Don't do that; I have no kisses for any one except my husband.' He said that he had made a mistake, and then added that I had attracted him the first time he saw me. He told me not to tell my husband of the incident because he probably wouldn't understand it, and then he left.'"

Mrs. Moore said that after thinking the matter over she decided not to tell her husband of the minister's kiss for fear that it would result in a conversion, which she considered near at hand. She thought that Dr. Price had simply yielded to a momentary impulse, and should be pardoned for the one offense. Mr. Moore's mother died, and on his return to New York Mrs. Moore sent for Dr. Price to come and comfort him.

Last November, Mrs. Moore said, after her husband had heard Claude Doré, counsel for the complainants against Dr. Price, and others say that Dr. Price had been kissing women, he asked her if Dr. Price had ever tried to kiss her. She answered that he had not, but when the charges against Dr. Price were printed in the newspapers she told her husband the truth, she said. She and her husband then went to Dr. Price's home and he received them with outstretched hands and smiling. Neither of them would shake his hands, she said, and Mr. Moore spoke harshly to the minister, whose only reply was: "Sorry, sorry, sorry."

Mrs. Moore was crying when she came from the trial room. When asked the cause of her tears she said that the effect of her experience upon her husband was what she most deplored.

"You may think that there is not so much harm in one little kiss upon the cheek," she said, "but it has destroyed the hope of my life. I shall never be able to get my husband into a church again. He says that preachers are all wolves in sheeps' clothing. I read in the paper yesterday that Dr. Price had said, 'Hurrah, hurrah for our country.' He can now say hurrah for himself, that big man who has driven my husband from the church forever."

Dr. Price said, according to information given to a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES, that Mrs. Dohl came to his house in 1912 with a letter of introduction from a Swedish pastor. She said that she had two children to support and had not been able to get work as a seamstress.

She said she asked him to help her out of the church's fund. Dr. Price said that he gave her $10, and that she then asked if she could not do some work for the church in payment. He replied, he testified, that if she would attend the services of the church and be a good Christian that that would be sufficient.

"She then began to cry with gratitude," Dr. Price was quoted as saying, "and I patted her on the shoulder to quiet her, as any pastor might do. I do not believe that she thought anything of this friendly action of mine at the time, because she said nothing about it. It was only after certain persons had poisoned her mind against me that she began to imagine some improper motive on my part."

When she was called in rebuttal, Mrs. Dohl admitted the truth of Dr. Price's testimony up to the point where he gave her the money. It was then, she said, that he put his arm around her and made the improper advances which she charged in her direct testimony.

Miss Prudence Dohl followed her mother to the stand, and said that Mrs. Dohl had not told her of her experience with Dr. Price until after the charges against him were made public, but that shortly after the alleged incident occurred she had said:

"Prudence, I have no confidence in Dr. Price, and if he ever lays his hands on you, slap him in the face."

Another clash between Claude Doré, counsel for the complainants, who has been refused admission to the trial room, and Dr. Jamieson occurred yesterday. Dr. Jamieson came out of the courtroom and asked Mr. Doré if he had any more witnesses, and Mr. Doré asked in return what stage the trial had reached.

"I'm sorry, but I can't divulge any of the proceedings of the court," Dr. Jamieson replied.

"That's not treating me fairly," Mr. Doré retorted. "You haven't treated me fairly since the trial began. You say you are not the prosecuting attorney and that I am, and yet you will never tell me what is happening in the trial nor will you allow me to cross-examine the witnesses for the defense."

Several of the witnesses for the prosecution, after they had testified yesterday, said that Dr. Price had sat with his head in his hands as though he was dejected. After the adjournment of the court Dr. Belcher denied that the minister had lost hope. He pointed to Dr. Price, who was in the room, and said: "Look at him. Does he appear to be downcast?"

Dr. Price smiled broadly. He assumed a pugalistic attitude and was almost frisky for a moment. Then he put his hands on the shoulders of two reporters and said:

"Of course I am cheerful. Don't I look it? I know I'm going to be acquitted. I eat three good meals a day and haven't lost a minute's sleep since the beginning of this business."

VETOES 16 PRIVATE BILLS.

Wrong Road to Court of Claims, Says Glynn—Measures Approved.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—Gov. Glynn to-day approved thirty of the thirty-day bills left with him by the Legislature and disapproved nineteen. Among the bills vetoed were sixteen to confer jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to settle with individuals or corporations in matters involving a total of several hundred thousand dollars.

"If the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims should be enlarged, or the general law is otherwise inadequate," says Gov. Glynn, "the general law should be amended so that the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims will be governed by general rules applicable impartially and not by special legislation in favor of particular claimants."

The Governor also disapproved Senator Thompson's bill to extend the corporate existence of the Enterprise Land Company on the ground that "the only new purpose for extending the corporate existence of the company is to give it new rights of actions for damages or to open up some statute of limitations which has expired."

Senator Torborg's bill authorizing the Public Service Commission to contract for telephones in the subways was approved. The Governor also signed Senator Simpson's bill authorizing the trustees of the College of the City of New York to employ a curator or a trustee to receive and open bids, and Senator Herrick's declaring the New York Law Institute shall be deemed a non-stock literary incorporation.

Other measures approved were Senator McClelland's, permitting the New York College of Dentistry to possess personal and real estate to the amount of $1,000,000, instead of $650,000; Senator Thompson's, providing that a writ of habeas corpus may issue to bring up a prisoner confined under any other sentence than death for a felony, in the discretion of a Justice of the Supreme Court, whether or not the application is made in behalf of the people to bring him up as a witness on the trial of an indictment; Assemblyman Schimmel's, providing that the Court of General Sessions of New York County shall be divided into six parts, instead of five; Assemblyman Tucholkas, incorporating the Copernicus Educational Aid Association, and Assemblyman Walker's, authorizing the trustees of Bedford Street Methodist Church, New York City, to sell land adjoining the church property now used as a cemetery and to remove the bodies therefrom.

The Adler bill making it a misdemeanor for any person knowingly to make a false statement derogatory to the financial condition of any private banker was also signed by the Governor. The measure has the approval of the State Bar Association.

The State Conservation Commission will have $100,000 at its disposal for emergency use in extinguishing forest fires under the terms of the J. G. Jones bill, signed by Gov. Glynn to-day.

LINEN PROMOTERS GUILTY.

Sterling Debenture Officials to be Sentenced To-day.

The jury which the last four weeks has been trying before Judge Anderson in the Federal District Court the Directors of the Sterling Debenture Corporation and the officials of the Oxford Linen Mills found them guilty last night at 11:41 o'clock. The defendants were Benjamin C. Mudge, a chemist and inventor; Wilbur F. Stone, a patent expert; Elwyn A. Barron, a prospectus writer; George H. M. Middlebrook, Henry H. H. Platt, Frank W. Shumaker, and Capt. W. S. Edwards of the Sterling Debenture Corporation of 133 East Sixteenth Street. Frank E. Winchell and Samuel E. Finley were named as well in the indictment, but pleaded guilty and were used as witnesses by the Government. Edwards, Barron, and Stone were recommended to mercy by the jury.

The charge against the prisoners was conspiracy to use the mails to defraud. The jury was out for seven hours, and the defendants will be sentenced at 10 o'clock this morning.

CURATE FOUND VICE IN GILLEN'S DISTRICT

Dropped His Clerical Garb to Go Out and Study Disorderly Places.

HIS TESTIMONY DAMAGING

Inspector's Defense Relies on Mayor Gaynor's "Outward Order and Decency" Letter.

James H. Gillen, the suspended Inspector of the lower Tenderloin, had just opened his defense against the charge of permitting disorderly resorts in his district to run wide open at Police Headquarters yesterday, when a young man in clerical attire entered the trial room. Assistant Corporation Counsel Stover, who is prosecuting Gillen, announced that he would like to reopen his case and the young curate took the witness stand. He did not know Gillen and was unaware of his presence a few feet from the witness chair. He considerably damaged the Inspector's chances for a clean bill of health.

The curate was the Rev. Samuel McKibbin of St. Chrysostom's Chapel, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, one of the Trinity parishes, and better known as "the little church on the corner." Mr. McKibbin said he had compiled a hotel and theatre guide for the district between Thirty-first and Sixty-ninth Streets and between Fifth and Ninth Avenues at the instance of his vicar, the Rev. Dr. C. M. Moller. It was intended to extend the work of the parish. The guide, with several pages of church advertisement, was left in all hotels whose names were found on it. It was intended to be used by patrons of these hotels.

The young curate told how he had made an investigation of the hotels in the lower Tenderloin, preparatory to listing them in the guide. To make his work more effective, he said, he dropped his clerical garb and adopted ordinary attire. He loitered about, observed, and listened to all that went on about him on the streets and in the hotels.

The Rev. Mr. McKibbin found forty-four hotels in his district which he considered worthy of listing. But these forty-four did not include any of the ten or more hotels which Inspector Gillen is charged with allowing to run as disorderly resorts. Mr. Stover asked the witness why they were not included, and he replied that, after investigation, he had considered it wise to leave them off.

"I didn't want to list a disorderly house in the guide," he said.

Referring specifically to a number of places which were raided over Gillen's head by "Honest Dan" Costigan and his squad on March 10, the Rev. Mr. McKibbin gave his frank impressions. He classified them as "bad," "worse" and "the worst of its kind in the city." He told how he had watched one place, the Hotel Plumm, for half an hour at a time and how he had seen six and ten couples enter and leave within that time.

"I knew the women by sight," he said. "I had seen them walking the streets so many times near my parish."

Cocaine selling, he said, was going on in broad daylight in Gillen's district. He complained particularly of the block on Seventh Avenue between Thirty-eight and Thirty-ninth Streets and said that block was the centre of the illegitimate drug traffic in the Tenderloin.

On cross-examination by Bruce Ellison, attorney for Gillen, Mr. McKibbin did not amend his statements. When asked whether conditions had not improved recently he replied that the general morality of the neighborhood had become even worse.

The curate was preceded by Dr. Franklin Evans of 129 East Tenth Street, Executive Secretary of the Gramercy Neighborhood Association. Dr. Evans told of the bad reputation of hotels in Gillen's district, notably along Third Avenue, but admitted that he had not gained his information at first hand.

All of the other witnesses of the day were members of Gillen's staff before it was scattered. They testified for their former chief, and they did it well.

Gillen was also a witness in his own behalf for a few minutes, and showed at least one line of his defense. It leans directly on the well-known "outward order and decency" order which was issued by the late Mayor Gaynor. When Gillen assumed charge of the lower Tenderloin on March 1, 1913, Commissioner Waldo summoned him and gave him specific instructions as to what to do with suspected disorderly places, he testified. Those instructions included a letter which Mayor Gaynor had written to Waldo on March 5, 1912, and in which the "outward order and decency" policy was defined. Mayor Gaynor had instructed that no patrolman was to enter a room of a hotel with a woman.

"If a house harbors women, and men are seen going in and out of the house in considerable numbers," he wrote, "that alone proves it to be a house of ill-fame. Let all Inspectors, Captains, and the whole force be properly instructed and directed in this matter."

Waldo, it appeared from Gillen's testimony, sent the new Inspector to see Chief Magistrate McAdoo, and Magistrate McAdoo concurred in the Mayor's views.

"I instructed my men in accordance," testified Gillen. "I impressed them that they must follow the suggestions closely and that they must not raise any question which would go to the Police Commissioner. Shortly after I assumed charge of the district two of my men obtained evidence against a place by entering rooms. Commissioner Waldo objected and transferred the two men. They had made eleven arrests and had secured eleven convictions."

One after the other Gillen's former plain clothes men, all of whom are now pounding the pavements in far-off precincts, told how they had carried out their Inspector's orders to the letter. Not one of them had ever stepped into a room of a disorderly hotel or house. Under this policy, it appeared from the testimony, street solicitors were arrested in great numbers whereas there were comparatively few arrests of disorderly resort keepers.

Among the complaints investigated, some of them said, were complaints against the Madison Square Hotel, the Medallion, Tekusski's Café, the Cumberland Hotel, and Mumm's Hotel. Mr. Stover made a point of bringing out that it was very odd that Gillen should have tried to get evidence against these places named, whereas he failed to include them in his monthly reports of "suspected places" made to the Police Commissioner.

Gillen's men said that hotel clerks threw them out when they tried to get evidence against the hotels. One of Gillen's men, a clumsy witness, said he and his partner, while waiting for evidence in the Lakewood Restaurant on March 7 and did not succeed. On that very day, Mr. Stover brought out, Costigan's men made a case against the Lakewood. Gillen's man, on cross-examination, admitted that he had asked for the proprietor of the Lakewood when he and his partner arrived. He called him "the boss."

"What did you want with the boss?" asked Mr. Stover.

"We wanted to ask him whether he was harboring disorderly persons," replied the patrolman.

"How in the world did you expect to get evidence by telling the boss who you were and what you were after?" asked the Corporation Counsel.

The defense will try to show, it is believed, that the number of arrests while Gillen was in charge of the district exceeded the arrests under former Inspectors. The prosecution will offset this, it is believed, by an analysis of the arrests and by reciting the number of acquittals of disorderly resort cases under Gillen.

The trial will be continued at 11 A. M. to-day.

WILL SOON ANSWER GUNMEN

Gov. Glynn Has Been Reading the Minutes of Their Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—Gov. Glynn hopes to be able to announce to-morrow or Wednesday his decision on the four gunmen's application for a respite until after the second trial of Lieut. Becker.

He said to-day that he spent Saturday afternoon, most of yesterday, and part of this morning going over the minutes of their trial. He hopes to finish reading the case to-night or to-morrow and make up his mind as to his duty in the matter.

WOODS TO BE NAMED POLICE HEAD TO-DAY

Mayor Is Expected to Announce Choice on Return from Atlantic City.

R. B. FOSDICK AS ADVISER

Patrolmen's Duties to be Expanded and Aid of Philanthropic Societies to be Invoked.

When Mayor Mitchel returns to his desk at City Hall this morning after spending the week-end at Atlantic City, one of his first acts, it is believed, will be to appoint Arthur Woods as Police Commissioner.

Many of those in the confidence of Mr. Mitchel and Mr. Woods, who is now acting as the Mayor's secretary, remained later than usual at City Hall last night expecting the Mayor to appear and formally announce the selection, which is regarded as beyond the possibility of a change of decision.

While Mr. Woods would not talk about the Police Commissionership in advance of receiving the appointment, it was observed that he was very busy during the afternoon arranging his affairs to permit his speedy departure from the position he occupied.

Mr. Woods had as his guest for lunch Raymond B. Fosdick, who recently returned from a tour of inspection of the police systems of Europe. It was understood that Mr. Woods and Mr. Fosdick talked over police problems and the possibility of Mr. Fosdick's becoming an adviser, or a member of the department, under the new administration.

Mr. Fosdick, when questioned, said he had no idea of entering the Police Department here, and that he intended to sail again for Europe within three weeks to check up several matters connected with European police departments which had come to his notice since he made his investigation. He added that the Police Department here, as he believed it would be organized, would have his closest co-operation so far as it might be possible for him to assist in a non-official capacity.

It is expected that Mr. Woods will assume his new duties at once, upon receiving the Mayor's appointment, and that he will not wait until April 15, the time set by Commissioner McKay as the latest date he would consent to remain on duty.

Commissioner McKay, it was learned at Police Headquarters, has his personal effects packed and is ready to depart on a moment's notice. It was the general belief among his associates that he had received word he would be relieved to-day.

From persons in the confidence of both Mayor Mitchel and Mr. Woods it was learned that the Police Department under the new regime was expected to tackle the problem of crime prevention in much the same spirit that the FireDepartment has attacked the problem of fire prevention.

The new Police Commissioner will expand the duties of patrolmen on post, requiring them to report every condition that may attend the formation of criminal or the affording of opportunities for crimes. These reports, where they disclose conditions of poverty, will be referred to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor and other societies in the field of philanthropy and charity. It is to be part of the new police policy to bring all city departments, such as Health and Correction, into close co-operation with the police and to extend this co-operative activity to all private organizations of a responsible character dealing with sanitation, health, and poverty.

Mr. Woods, who is 40 years old, was sent to Europe to study police conditions in 1907 as an official of the Citizens' Committee on Police. Upon his return he advocated changes in the police system here, and to enable him to carry some of them into effect he was appointed Fourth Deputy Commissioner by Commissioner Bingham. In the recent campaign Mr. Woods was one of Mayor Mitchel's managers.

CITY VS. STATE, SAYS GLYNN

Governor's Mind Open on Maier Water Bill, Pending Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—"It is a fight between New York City and the rest of the State," said Gov. Glynn to-day concerning the controversy over the Maier Water bill, on which there will be a public hearing before the Governor next Friday. The bill would place water supply companies under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission. Mayor Mitchel of New York has characterized the bill as "vicious," but Gov. Glynn said to-night that almost all the rest of the State seemed to be in favor of it. He said he was receiving scores of letters daily for or against the bill, and he made it plain that his position on the measure would not be determined until after the hearing.

The up-State support of the bill arises from the fact that many cities and towns receive their water supply from private companies. The people of those places seem to believe that water rates could be better regulated to their advantage by the Conservation Commission.

GIRLS CAUGHT AS BURGLARS

Boxes of Candy Taken from Man's Room Lead to Arrests.

After searching for a week for burglars who knew how to jimmy a lock with skill and yet preferred boxes of candy to any other kind of loot, Policeman Smith of the Lenox Avenue Station arrested last night Helen Travers, 20 years old, of 2,658 Eighth Avenue, and Lillian Bryan, 15, of 272 West 143d Street.

Miss Travers was locked up in the Lenox Avenue Station, charged with burglary, while Miss Bryan, on account of her age, was sent to the Children's Society on a charge of juvenile delinquency.

Howard Lawrence of 204 West 142d Street, whose room was entered, reported to the police that he was unable to account for the burglary, as only three boxes of candy, a fountain pen, and a comb were taken, while many articles of value were undisturbed. He hunted up Policeman Smith last night with a report that he himself had received a clue while calling upon Miss Bryan. He said he had seen a box of candy at her home which he was sure had come from his room.

NINE DIE IN BRIDGE SHAFT.

Overcome by Poisonous Gas—Nine Other Men Rescued.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 6.—Nine men were killed and nine others narrowly escaped death when a shaft leading to the underground workings on the foundation for the Harahan Bridge, being constructed across the Mississippi River became filled with poisonous gases. All of the dead were white men. Those rescued are negroes. Divers recovered the bodies.

The dead are: Peter Watson, Liberty, Ind.; Wc Winkler, Chicago; John Clayton, St. Paul, Minn.; A. W. Johnson, Brooklyn; P. J. Farrell, Kansas City; Mike Burke, Providence, R. I.; Thomas Leonard, John King, and Jack Powers, residence unknown.

The cause of the gas formation is unknown. One physician said the bodies bore evidence of carbon-monoxide poisoning, which might have been formed through the burning of the oakum and rubber lining on top of the caisson. Another surmise was that a deposit of "marsh gas" was penetrated in making the excavations.

The accident occurred about 100 feet inland on the Arkansas shore of the river. The first intimation those at the top of the shaft had that the men had been overcome was when no report came from the descending crew. Watson volunteered to go to the aid of the men and was overcome while descending the shaft. The shaft then was filling with water and the negroes were hauled to the surface in a bucket through the supply shaft. Before the last man was started for the top water had reached his waist. He was Jim Daniels, shift foreman, who refused to leave until the others of his crew had been hauled to safety.

WIDOW MRS. SIEGEL NAMED WEDS AGAIN

Mrs. Eddy Married to Broker to Whom Her Engagement Had Been Announced.

ESCAPES BOSTON SUBPOENA

Wanted There to Testify in Siegel Investigation—Merchant Denies All Wife's Charges.

Mrs. Dana Eddy of Dorchester, Mass., who was named as one of two corespondents by Mrs. Henry Siegel in her suit for divorce, was married on Saturday in Providence, R. I., to James Salisbury Brown, a broker, to whom she had been reported engaged. The couple have left that city, according to Henry Tiepke of Providence, legal adviser of Mrs. Susan Brown, the broker's mother.

After admitting the marriage had taken place, Mr. Tiepke said that he had no idea where Mr. and Mrs. Brown had gone. The bride is wanted by District Attorney Pelletier of Boston as a witness when the special Grand Jury begins its investigations of the affairs of the Siegel store and bank.

The marriage license was taken out by Brown on March 28. As Mrs. Eddy was not a resident of Rhode Island, five days' notice of the marriage was required by law. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George E. Hathaway of the Westminster Unitarian Church, better known as the Woodbury Memorial Chapel.

According to the District Attorney of Boston the authorities have no intention of letting Mrs. Eddy-Brown get out of their reach. They will make every attempt to have her testify about any knowledge she may have of Henry Siegel's affairs and the account which she is said to have had at the Siegel store.

Attorney Tiepke says he has advised Mrs. Eddy-Brown to go to Boston and testify before the Grand Jury, but she had said they would finish their honeymoon first. She added, the lawyer said, that Mrs. Siegel's accusations were unfounded and unjust. She declared she knew Mr. Siegel just as she knew Joseph Siegel and his wife. She said that Mrs. Siegel's suit had not hurried her marriage at all.

"We had planned our marriage long ago, and it came just as we planned," she said.

The engagement was announced last July.

Henry Siegel has prepared an answer denying Mrs. Siegel's allegations, and the answer is to be served on his wife's attorneys, Rockwood & Haldane of 60 Broadway. In her complaint Mrs. Siegel charged her husband with unfaithfulness at various times between Nov. 28, 1898, which was some months after their marriage, and March 30, 1914. Lemuel E. Quigg, who has been retained by Siegel to represent him in the divorce action, issued this statement yesterday afternoon:

I have been retained by Mr. Siegel to defend the action his wife has brought against him for divorce. He has verified his answer, denying specifically every allegation of the complaint that constitutes a ground of action, and it will be served within the statutory time.

Mrs. Siegel separated from her husband under the terms of a separation agreement which by him was performed until the moment when his financial misfortunes compelled him to cease contributions. Concerning the fact that Mrs. Siegel has taken this moment to bring an action for divorce, and the fact that she has mentioned the names of two women, each of whom is engaged in business, as corespondents, the fact that there have been imputed to her references to his business affairs, Mr. Siegel has no other comment to make than that these facts seem to speak for themselves.

The complaint of Mrs. Siegel also names a Miss Smith, whom she describes as a trained nurse. The other woman she speaks of only as Mrs. Eddy of Dorchester, Mass.

WIFE SUES HENRY C. REILLY.

Seeks Separation from Man Who Was Court Clerk Many Years.

Henry C. Reilly, for twenty-four years Chief Clerk of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, is being sued for separation by Mrs. Agnes Reilly of 154 Broadway, Flushing. Mr. Reilly was retired a year ago on a pension of $2,000 a year.

Mrs. Reilly's attorney, John L. Lindsay, made a motion before Justice Van Siclen in the Queens County Court yesterday for counsel fees. Mr. Lindsay said that Mr. Reilly had left home on Jan. 31 last and that papers in the action had been sent to an address left by him. Justice Van Siclen replied that if he found the service satisfactory and the court had jurisdiction he would grant the motion for alimony and counsel fees.

The Reillys have four children. Mrs. Reilly charges cruel and inhuman treatment.

WERNER'S CLOTHING HELD.

Morosini Heiress Forbids Its Removal Without a Receipt.

Arthur M. Werner was notified by detectives guarding his wife's mansion at Riverdale-on-Hudson yesterday that Mrs. Giulia Morosini Werner had instructed them to refuse him admittance to her under any circumstances.

Werner sent an emissary to Elmhurst, the Morosini estate at West 254th Street and Riverdale Avenue, with a flag of truce in the shape of a letter in which the banished husband asked for permission to call. The messenger was authorized also to take away things Werner desired from his wardrobe. The detectives declined to deliver the articles to the messenger. They explained that they had been instructed to get a receipt from Werner for whatever articles he obtained.

Werner will go to Elmhurst to-morrow to arrange for removal of his things. To avoid meeting her husband when he appears at the house Mrs. Werner has decided to remain with friends in Garden City, L. I.

What legal proceedings, if any, Mrs. Werner and her attorney, Joseph B. Cotton, Jr., contemplate, is not known, but it was rumored yesterday that she might attack the divorce obtained by Werner's first wife, Alice Redding, by raising the question of legal residence at Carson City previous to the issuing of the decree. Mrs. Werner was a Roman Catholic, it was said, and for that reason did not consider divorce proceedings.

Acquaintances of Werner said that he had never been happily situated in the part of a "country gentleman," and that he missed the companionship of his former friends. Sometimes he had policemen as guests at the house. Mrs. Werner did not always approve of these visits, it was said.

The Simpson Crawford Store, opened yesterday morning by the Simpson Crawford Corporation, an entirely new organization, reported the largest business that the store had done in the last ten years. The store was opened at 9 o'clock when Alexander MacLachlan, its new President, standing on one of the side balconies, sounded the gongs that started 1,500 employes to work in the various departments of the establishment. CARRANZA DEFINES HIS FOREIGN POLICY out of every city he takes, and he has already ordered his troops to force the Spaniards, especially the priests, at San Luis Potosi, Saltillo, and any other towns that are taken by the rebels to leave the country. There is a strong feeling against the Spaniards, and the fact that they are almost always prosperous indicates, in the minds of the ignorant peons, that they have taken what has not belonged to them.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, April 6.—Extensive preparations are being made here for the reception of the Spaniards exiled from Torreon by Villa. Alfonso Sisenieges, Spanish Consul at Chihuahua, who is a refugee here, is in charge of the preparations for caring for his countrymen. He has cabled the fact of their expulsion to Madrid and said to-day that immediate action was expected by King Alfonso, as he had declared that no more such acts as the confiscation of Spanish property and the expulsion of Spanish citizens would be tolerated by his Government. A sharp demand is likely to be made upon Washington to protect the Spaniards, although they are all leaving before such a protest can be made.

Much interest is being taken here in the William S. Benton case as a result of the contemplated report of the Carranza commission. British subjects assert that Fierro is simply being made the scapegoat for Villa, and they do not believe the report that Benton was killed at Samalayuca, even if this is the official finding of the commission appointed by Carranza.

CAPITAL WON'T BELIEVE IT.

High Foreign Office Official Says Torreon Has Not Fallen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—A high official of the Foreign Office to-night personally denied to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that Villa had captured Torreon. He said that authentic information had been received to the effect that Gens. de Moure and Maas had already arrived at Torreon to reinforce Velasco, completing the rout of the rebels.

It was represented to this official that it was ridiculous to continue to report Torreon safe while dispatches were published in the United States, bearing Torreon dates, apparently confirming the report of its capture.

"I know," he said, "that such messages are being published, but you can state that these have been fabricated by insurgent publicity agents, and that they are without foundation."

The Government to-day decided to expel from the country the correspondents who are said to have been sending false reports regarding the situation, particularly at Torreon. The same high official says that the Government knows that several correspondents have cabled their papers full details of the fall of Torreon when the Government's advices indicated that it was still held by the Federals. "It is peculiar," he said, "that some foreign correspondents can get full details, while the Government, with all its machinery, is unable to get more than the briefest flashes of news."

While no names were mentioned, it is understood that among those under suspicion are the correspondents of several large news services.

Business establishments here to-day were all at sea regarding Torreon. The newspapers here have not received or published anything which looks like corroboration of the reports of its fall, and Government denials continue. Persons coming from Saltillo since the reported date of the capture of Torreon say they feel confident that the rebel claims are unfounded.

Otherwise, business is transacted as usual and the official activity of the capital is undisturbed. President Huerta appears frequently in public and is apparently perfectly confident of his ability to deal with the situation. A prominent diplomat who has been besieging the Ministers for news about Torreon said to-day: "If Torreon has been taken, the Huerta Cabinet should go on the stage; they are the best actors I have ever had the pleasure of meeting."

An American Red Cross surgeon will leave here to-morrow for Torreon. He expects to accompany some military column going in that direction, and carries with him a large supply of medical and surgical accessories. The German Military Attaché, Von Poppen, will probably go also.

Additional reinforcements are constantly leaving here for the North, and general mobilization is reported throughout the North in the direction of Torreon, which at least indicates that the Government has not abandoned hope.

A military observer said to-day that even if the rebels had captured Torreon it now seemed doubtful if they would be able to hold it long.

CAROTHERS TELLS OF FIGHT.

Says Torreon Defenders Quit from Sheer Exhaustion.

JUAREZ, April 6.—George C. Carothers, special representative of the State Department, who has been through the Torreon engagement with Gen. Villa, returned here to-night to assist in negotiations looking to the welfare of the 600 Spaniards ordered out of Torrean by the rebels.

He brought with him the first nonpartisan eyewitness account of the battle. Mr. Carothers kept a brief diary of the events which he witnessed, but he was too greatly fatigued after his trip, which began at Torreon yesterday, to give more than a brief outline to reporters.

"The rebel loss," said Mr. Carothers, "was 600 killed and 1,400 wounded. We don't know the Federal loss accurately, except that Villa found in the hospitals 805 of their wounded."

Asked why Gen. Velasco evac

'MRS. PAT' MARRIES CORNWALLIS WEST

Two Hours After Latter's Divorce from Lady Randolph Churchill Becomes Absolute.

ASSAULT ON PHOTOGRAPHER

Bridegroom Snatches Camera Away and Drives Off with It—He Is 39 —Wife's Age Given as 47.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—A sensation has been caused by the news that Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress, was married this afternoon at a Kensington registry office to George Cornwallis West, two hours after the decree nisi against Mr. West in favor of his former wife, who now again becomes Lady Randolph Churchill, had been made absolute by the President of the Divorce Court. Lady Randolph Churchill is a daughter of the late Leonard Jerome of New York. The grounds for the divorce were statutory —desertion and misconduct.

Very few persons were in the secret of to-day's marriage. Some of Mrs. Campbell's closest friends knew it was to take place, but were given to understand that none but the witnesses was to be present. They were also made to promise not to mention it to any one until after the ceremony, and they were not told the date or place.

Mrs. Campbell's wedding dress was of black silk, trimmed with plaid ribbons, with a white net vest. She wore a large black hat.

The only parties present besides the bride and bridegroom were two witnesses, who accompanied them and signed the register as James Tillett and George Davy.

Mrs. Campbell is to play the principal part in George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," which Sir Herbert Tree will produce at His Majesty's Theatre next Saturday. The rehearsals have been suspended until Wednesday, when Mrs. Campell will return to London. After the marriage ceremony today the couple motored into the country.

When the wedding party left the registry office a photographer attempted to take a snapshot of the bride and bridegroom. Mr. West went up to the man, snatched away the camera, and, jumping into the motor car, drove off, carrying the camera with him.

The ages of the bride and bridegroom were given on the marriage certificate as 47 and 39, respectively.

Mrs. Campbell was the child of a romantic union. Her father, John Tanner, was a successful merchant. While traveling in Italy he fell in love with a beautiful circus performer, Luigia Romanini, whom he married and brought to London. He furnished a fine house for her in Kensington Gardens, and there Stella Beatrice Tanner, destined to become one of London's leading actresses, was born.

George Cornwallis West will be 40 years old next Nov. 14. Mrs. Patrick Campbell was married for the first time thirty years ago.

Mr. Cornwallis West was holding a subaltern's commission in the Scots Guards in 1900, when London society was astonished by the news that he was engaged to be married to the brilliant Lady Randolph Churchill, whose husband had died in 1895. He comes of one of the distinguished families of England, his father being Col. William Cornwallis West, Lord Lieutenant of Denbighshire, and grandson of the second Earl De la Warr. His sisters are the Princess of Pless and the Duchess of Westminster. He fought in the South African war, gaining distinction at the battle of Magersfontein.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell was married in 1884 to Patrick Campbell, who joined the Imperial Yeomanry soon after the South African war began, and was killed in action. She first won distinction on the stage in amateur theatricals in 1886-7, and was for a time with Ben Greet's company. Her fame, however, came with the production of Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," in which she appeared in the title role. Her magnetism and statuesque beauty took London by storm, and she became identified with a number of well-known problem plays.

Mrs. Campbell has made several visits to this country, and has met with as great a dramatic and social success in New York as in London.

NEW JAPANESE CRISIS.

Viscount Kiyoura Fails in His Attempt to Form a Ministry.

TOKIO, Tuesday, April 7.—Viscount Keigo Kiyoura, who has been engaged for several days in an attempt to form a Ministry, will, it is announced, ask to be relieved of the Premiership.

His efforts to find suitable men to accept the portfolios have proved fruitless.

MOTHER OF THREE MISSING.

Police Also Seek Young Man Who Forced Attentions on Her.

Mrs. Fannie Goldstein, 28 years old, the mother of three small children, has been missing from her home, 912 Glenmore Avenue, Brooklyn, and her family and friends fear that she has met with harm. A young man, an Italian, who knew Mrs. Goldstein, is also missing from the neighborhood, and the police are looking for him as well as for the missing woman.

Friends of Mrs. Goldstein said last night that the young man recently had threatened her and told her that if she did not elope with him he would kill her.

Mrs. Samuel Meyersohn, a sister of Mrs. Goldstein, said last night that the man had several times tried to force his attentions upon her sister, who was last seen a week ago yesterday, when she left her home, saying she was going to the market.

CAILLAUX AT HIS MERCY.

Calmette Held Papers of Highest Diplomatic Importance.

PARIS, April 6.—The extraordinary ramifications of the campaign against Joseph Caillaux, the ex-Minister of Finance, which was conducted by the late Gaston Calmetta, editor of The Figaro, who was killed by Mme. Caillaux, were shown in the course of to-day's inquiry by Henri Boucard, the investigating Magistrate. Louis Latzarus, associate editor of The Figaro, said in his examination:

"M. Calmette talked with me in January about the part played by M. Caillaux in the negotiations with Germany concerning the Agadir incident in Morocco, while he was Prime Minister. M. Calmette had a portfolio in front of him, from which he took two documents. These were of a diplomatic character of extreme importance, and were, he said, so formal and so crushing that their publication would have stripped M. Caillaux of power without any hope of recovery.

"M. Calmette said to me that he could not publish these documents without fear of provoking foreign complications, nor would he give me an idea of what the documents contained.

"Some days afterward my friend Robert de Jouvenel, who knew something about the documents, told me he intended to beg M. Calmette to keep silent."

Other members of the Figaro staff have been summoned to testify at the inquiry.

President Poincaré's deposition in connection with the inquiry was read. His testimony had to do with a visit which Joseph Caillaux paid him on the morning of the tragedy, at which time the President and the then Minister of Finance discussed the campaign which M. Calmette was conducting against M. Caillaux. The President says he was so deeply impressed by the distraught condition of M. Caillaux, upon whom all his reasonings seemed to be ineffectual, that he finally advised him to see M. Bernard, who had acted for him in his divorce proceedings.

M. Bernard was a friend of M. Calmette and would be in a position to ascertain if M. Caillaux's suspicions were justified, and, if so, might be able to stop the threatened publication of M. Caillaux's private letters.

The Minister thanked the President, but said he would be engaged all afternoon in the Senate and would be unable to see M. Bernard.

President Poincaré then remarked that M. Bernard was an old friend of his and that he expected him to call at the Elysée Palace that afternoon. He promised to speak to him, which he did.

M. Bernard agreed to see both Caillaux and Calmette, although he was of the same opinion as the President, that M. Calmette was incapable of publishing the letters. The President learned later that M. Bernard did see M. Caillaux at the close of the afternoon, but it was too late.

FAILS FOR $6,000,000.

Department Store Concern Affected by Princess' Trust Collapse.

BERLIN, April 6.—Bankruptcy proceedings were begun here to-day against the firm of W. Wertheim & Co., whose liabilities abount to about $6,000,000.

The difficulties of the concern began when the "Princes' Trust," composed of Prince Max Egon zu Fürstenberg, a close friend of the Emperor, and Prince Christian Kraft zu Hohenlohe, a kinsman of his Majesty, ceased to finance the undertaking. The "Princes' Trust" itself has now been dissolved after losing sums estimated in some quarters to be as much as $25,000,000.

The firm of Wertheim was one of many undertakings run under the auspices of the trust, which came into existence about seven years ago. It operated three department stores in Berlin.

The assets of the firm are said in newspaper reports to amount to only $715,000.

$2,500,000 LONDON REAL ESTATE DEAL

62½ ACRES TRANSFERRED

Largest Piece of Land in the City Ever to Change Hands at Once —May Be Made a New Mayfair.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—Another great London land deal was effected this afternoon when a contract was signed whereby S. P. Derbyshire acquired the whole of Lord Howard De Walden's Regent's Park estate for over $2,500,000.

In point of size this is the largest transfer of London property that has ever taken place, at least within living memory, for the total extent of the estate is 62½ acres. It contains 750 houses, divided among some twenty streets.

The streets stretch almost from Lord's cricket ground to Primrose Hill, having 1,000 yards' frontage to the Regent's Park and partly overlooking the Zoological Gardens. A police station, St. Stephen's Church, four large schools, and eight public houses are within the area.

Mr. Derbyshire is a Director of several companies and senior partner of a firm of chartered accountants, but in this purchase he is acting for himself alone. Apparently his intention is to demolish the old-fashioned buildings and convert this part of London into a new Mayfair.

LONDON OPERA SUBSCRIBERS

Many Americans Among Them—Season Begins April 20.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—The grand opera season, which will begin at Covent Garden on April 20 with Melba and Martinelli in "La Bohème," promises to be a big artistic and social success.

The long list of subscribers headed by the King and Queen includes many Americans, among them Lady Henry, Sir Charles Waldstein, the Hon. Mrs. John Ward, Mrs. Bradley Martin, J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. McCreery, Mrs. Ronalds, and Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

PRINCE'S WIRELESS PLANT.

Saxon Duke Ernst Will Use It for Communicating with Airships.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 6.—Duke Ernst II. of Saxe-Altenburg, the greatest lover of science among German Princes, is about to have a wireless installation fitted at his castle in Altenburg. It will be used specially for communicating with airships.

The Duke has long taken an interest in wireless telegraphy and telephony. He is also an expert on aeronautics.

THORNTON NOW RETICENT.

Great Eastern Railway's American Manager Reaches London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—Henry W. Thornton, the Great Eastern Railway's new American manager, arrived in London this evening. There was a cold official reticence about him, which was in contrast to his readiness to be interviewed when he sailed for New York in February.

When pressed to say something regarding his plans for managing the railway Mr. Thornton said he had not formed any. He had not read the criticisms of the appointment of an American, did not know when he would start his duties, and had nothing to say about his methods.

Mr. Thornton had an official welcome from the Great Eastern Railway on his arrival at Liverpool. The London freight manager and the local agent at Liverpool greeted him in his cabin and gave Mrs. Thornton a beautiful bouquet of roses.

LATEST MILITANT TACTICS.

"Gen." Drummond's Shrieks and Shouts Stop Proceedings in Court.

LONDON, April 6.—"Gen." Mrs. Flora Drummond, the well-known militant suffragette, shrieked so loudly when she was arraigned to-day at a police court in connection with the suffragette disturbances at the Unionist demonstration in Hyde Park on Saturday that it was necessary to remove her forcibly. She would not allow either the Magistrate or the Prosecuting Attorney to utter an audible word.

When Mrs. Drummond entered the prisoners' inclosure she shouted at the top of her voice that she would not permit any one but herself to speak, because, she said, the Magistrates and the police courts were "doing the dirty work of Premier Asquith." She then proceeded to bombard the court with volleys of verbal shrapnel until she was carried out by wardens.

The Magistrate stated that he would hear the case later in the day. Mrs. Drummond was brought into court three times, but on each occasion she had to be removed, shrieking and struggling, by burly officers. The suffragette's flood of oratory easily drowned the attempts of the Magistrate to maintain order.

"I am going to do the talking to-day for a change," Mrs. Drummond yelled, and the Magistrate gave up the struggle.

When the shrieking suffragette had been removed the case was heard in her absence, and a remand was ordered.

FAMOUS LONDON CHEF DEAD

Davy Was for 47 Years at Simpson's —Refused an American Offer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—London has lost an interesting figure by the death of Mr. Davy, formerly chef at Simpson's in the Strand, whence he retired recently after forty-seven years' service.

Simpson's is world famous for its old English fare cooked by English cooks and served by English waiters, all in the traditional way. For seventy years, in fact, it has carried on the traditions of the historic Fountain Tavern, celebrated by Strype, the seventeenth century historian, on the site on which it stands.

Davy was regarded as the Prince of English cooks. He could serve unrivaled saddles of mutton and sirloins of beef. Dickens, G. A. Sala, Irving, Toole, and William Terris were among those who were drawn to Simpson's by the simple fare Davy provided.

Some time ago he received an offer to become the chef of a proposed "Simpson's" in New York. He could have named his own salary, but he was wedded to the Strand and nothing would induce him to leave it.

Historical Society Escapes Tax.

The Court of Appeals has decided that the New York Historical Society will not have to pay a transfer tax on the $388,377 legacy left to it by Catherine Augusta de Peyster, who died on Jan. 25, 1911. Surrogate Cohalan decided that the bequest was exempt from taxation on the grounds that it was to an educational institution, but his decision was appealed by the State Controller.

FREES I. W. W. CHIEF, ASSAILS THE POLICE

Magistrate Freschi Also Advises O'Carroll's Counsel to Start Assault Prosecution.

WOMEN TELL OF CLUBBING

Big Demonstration from Crowd Outside Court—Three O'Carroll Followers Found Guilty.

There was much jubilation among the members of the "army of the unemployed" last night over the action of Magistrate Freschi, sitting in the Chief Magistrate's Court in the old Mulberry Street Station, yesterday morning, in discharging "Wild Joe" Carroll, the I. W. W. leader, who, with eight companions, was arrested on Saturday, when he started to lead a "parade of protest" from Union Square to Rutgers Square. The charge made against the men by the police was disorderly conduct. Magistrate Freschi, in dismissing the complaint against O'Carroll, arraigned the police for what he termed their brutality and advised counsel for the defendant to prosecute the policeman who he said the evidence indicated was guilty of assault upon the prisoner. Four of O'Carroll's followers were also arraigned before the Magistrate. Adolph Wolff and Vincenzo Minella were found guilty and held pending an investigation of their stories by a probation officer. Joe Gans, arrested for carrying an incendiary banner, was fined $10. Samuel Rapaport, who testified that his only offense was his refusal to "move on" when ordered to do so by the police, was discharged from custody.

At Police Headquarters the decision of Magistrate Freschi in the O'Carroll case was at first received with gloomy silence, but it was evident that the police feared that the release of the agitator—easily the most prominent figure in the trials—might lead to further disorder, especially in face of the threat of the "army" to hold a meeting and parade on Saturday without obtaining a permit. Preparations were made quietly for any demonstration the unemployed might try to make in celebration of the victory they had won.

Commissioner McKay told a TIMES reporter late yesterday afternoon that he would rather not comment on the action of the Magistrate, adding that "the courts should be treated with the greatest respect."

The cases of the nine men were set for 9 A. M., and long before that time there was a crowd of sympathizers about the old Mulberry Street headquarters. At 9:40 o'clock the doors were still closed, and a spirit of discontent spread through the crowd. Justus Sheffield, the I. W. W. lawyer, who was on hand to represent the prisoners, cried out that it was an outrage for people to be kept waiting in the doorway. A few ugly words were exchanged, but there was no disorder of consequence.

But a small part of the crowd was able to get into the court room, and those who were left outside hung about until O'Carroll's case was finished. There was a big demonstration when Magistrate Freschi's remarks were repeated to the waiting throng.

"I am extremely impressed with the stories of the witnesses for the defense told here," the Magistrate said. "I believe that the defendant is guiltless of the charge of disorderly conduct or of inciting to riot. The stories of the witnesses are that O'Carroll and others were brutally assaulted.

The Magistrate then turned to Lawyer Sheffield and said:

"Counsel, there is no doubt that the defendant has been wounded and seriously wounded. I hope you will make it your business to investigate the matter and bring to the bar of justice the man, whoever he may be, who assaulted the defendant. Men have a right to assemble lawfully. So far as the evidence goes the defendant O'Carroll was behaving lawfully."

The Magistrate headed off any demonstration in the courtroom by a warning word, but even the police who were on guard could not prevent the exultant cheers which were given by the crowd outside. This demonstration was accompanied by some slurring remarks about the police, and one man remarked that there would be "real trouble" if the police attempted to interfere with the proposed meeting on Saturday in Union Square.

Capt. Kinsley and Sergt. Cavanaugh of the Mulberry Street Station, with a detail of six men, were on hand to see that there was no disturbance in the courtroom. Deputy Assistant District Attorney Bieler conducted the prosecution and T. D. Roussero, executive secretary to Mayor Mitchel, was also on hand.

Witnesses Sent Away.

At the start of the proceeding Lawyer Sheffield informed Magistrate Freschi that a number of witnesses who had been told to meet at a certain address in Grand Street, with instructions to march from there to the courtroom, had been sent away. He did not know who was responsible, he said, but they had failed to gather at the appointed place. His request for an adjournment, however, was denied, as he had more than a dozen witnesses on hand.

Detective Dawson, who arrested O'Carroll, was the first witness, and he said that when he took the I. W. W. leader into custody he was marching along Fourth Avenue, near Fourteenth Street, at the head of about 300 paraders. He said he had asked O'Carroll for his permit for a parade, and O'Carroll had replied:

"To hell with a permit; we don't need one."

When the arrest was made, said Dawson, men and women in the crowd began to yell "Remember Tannenbaum!" and "Don't be afraid of a little blood."

O'Carroll Takes Stand.

When O'Carroll was called to the stand he said he was on his way to a committee meeting at 72 Washington Square South when he was arrested. He denied that he had said anything like the expressions attributed to him by the policemen and that he had said he was going to lead the unemployed to Rutgers Square. Just after he was halted by the police, he testified, he was surrounded and struck three times on the head with a club wielded by a policeman in uniform, but he could not tell who the officer was. He was also struck a number of times after being thrown into an automobile, he said, and one of his companions, named Caron, who was also in the automobile, was struck several times. He finally attempted to save Caron from further abuse, he testified, by covering his head.

Adolph Wolff, who described himself as a sculptor and poet, was convicted upon the testimony of Detectives Flannery and Connors who testified that he had made himself conspicuous in the crowd and had shouted "Kill Them," referring to the police.

On taking the stand Wolff said that he had seen the police attacking O'Carroll and had run forward to his aid shouting, "This is an outrage; they are killing the man." The evidence against Minella was practically the same as that against Wolff. Then the case against Rapaport was called.

At this juncture Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, entered the courtroom and consulted with the women who had testified in the O'Carroll case. There was a further interruption when this note was brought in to Magistrate Freschi:

"We, the witnesses crowded out here (whose rights are being trampled under foot), refuse to be unlawfully herded out here. We came here to see that justice might be meted out and as citizens we have a right to be treated as human beings of intelligence, not cattle. We have a right to be in court."

It was signed by Bernard Meyer and Herman Goldberg. The Magistrate sent word that there was no room in the courtroom for them.

After Rapaport had been discharged Gans was placed on trial. It was alleged that he had carried a banner during the demonstration and he offered the excuse that he had simply held it aloft to please some newspaper photographers. He said the police wrested it from his grasp and broke it over his head. The remains of the banner, constructed of red cardboard, were offered in evidence.

The other cases were put over until to-day.

"ARMY" HOLDS TWO MEETINGS

O'Carroll Lauded as a Martyr—Protest Rally To-night.

The "army of the unemployed" held meetings in Rutgers Square and at Avenue B and Seventh Street last night. There were at least a dozen patrolmen and as many detectives at the Rutgers Square meeting, and the speakers were careful to temper their words and avoid trouble. However, the programme of activity was outlined, and "Joe" O'Carroll was spoken of as one of the martyrs who suffered in order that the cause might gain strength.

The first big meeting of protest, it was announced by Charles Plunkitt, one of the alleged agitators, who was arrested at the time of the raid on St. Alphonsus's Church, will be held to-morrow evening at Manhattan Lyceum, at 66 East Fourth Street. It will be a protest against the action of the police at Union Square last Saturday.

It was said last night that Magistrate Freschi had a representative at the Rutgers Square meeting but this could not be verified. The police seemed to take the meeting good-naturedly after they found that there was no trouble in sight. There were perhaps 500 in the crowd about the soap box from which the speeches were delivered.

MARGARET ANGLIN, WITNESS

Actress in Court Hears Husband Tell of Auto Accident.

Howard Hull, who is an author and the husband of Margaret Anglin, the actress, testified yesterday before Justice Delany of the Supreme Court in a suit brought against him for $20,000 damages by Margaret Cooper, who was injured by his automobile on Sept. 4, 1912. Miss Anglin and Miss Charlotte Thompson, the playwright, who were with him in the automobile on the night of the accident, were in court and will testify to-day.

The accident happened at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-third Street. Mr. Hull sat with his chauffeur, and the party was bound for the Players' Club, where friends were to be met. All that Mr. Hull knew was that the car was moving along Sixth Avenue, and that when it came to Thirty-third Street he saw a woman about twenty feet away who seemed to be anxious to cross. Then came the accident. J. Arthur Hilton, counsel for the plaintiff, questioned him from every angle, but he knew no more.

FIRE PREVENTION WORK.

Dangerous Conditions Found in 140 Cases in March.

A report of the results of the second month of inspection of buildings by the men of the uniformed force was made public yesterday by Fire Commissioner Adamson. It covers the period from Feb. 28 to March 28. The report shows:

Total number of inspections, 108,716; no cause for complaint, 80,308; minor violations, 28,408; violations immediately remedied, 13,398; not remedied, 14,-161; unusual and dangerous conditions found and report made for action by the Fire Prevention Bureau, 849; cases actually dangerous, 140.

COAST EXTENSION DENIED.

Chicago & Northwestern Not to Build to Pacific Coast.

Reports from the West to the effect that the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company was to extend its line to the Pacific Coast within the near future were denied here last night by Samuel A. Lynde, one of the Vice-Presidents.

"There is nothing in the report at all," said Mr. Lynde. "Reports to this effect seem to rise periodically, and they always seem to come from the West. I can say without hesitation that the Chicago & Northwestern has no idea at this time of extending its road."

UNION LEADER HELD FOR STRIKE MURDER

Max Sigman Accused of Killing Member of Cloakmakers' Organization in 1910.

VICTIM CLUBBED TO DEATH

"Mosher, the Starker," a Strong-Arm Man, Also Arrested—Attacked on Leaving Picket Committee.

Charged with the killing of a member of the Cloakmakers' Union, because the man and four others left New York in the general strike of 1910 to do non-union work in Sullivan County, Max Sigman, Vice President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and Secretary and Treasurer of Local 35 of the Cloakmakers' Union, and Morris Stupniker, or "Mosher, the starker," a strong-arm man, said to be employed by one of the unions, are in the Tombs on indictments charging murder in the first degree. Sigman was arrested Sunday morning at a meeting of the Joint Board of the Cloakmakers' Union and Stupniker was arrested yesterday at 266 Grand Street.

Although the offense for which the two men and one other, whose name was not disclosed, were indicted, was committed on Aug. 1, 1910, so great was the fear of the witnesses to describe what they saw that Assistant District Attorney Breckinridge of the Homicide Bureau was not able to obtain the indictments until last week. The third man has not been arrested.

According to information which came to Mr. Breckinridge, members of the union were dissatisfied with the manner in which the strike fund was being used. They asserted that it was being used for the support of the "starkers," who were employed to attack non-union men. Five of the members went to Hunter, N. Y., where they got work. When the information was received by the union, men were sent to Hunter to bring back the five members.

Three of the five eluded their escort at the Grand Central Station, but the others were taken before the Picket Committee on the night of July 31 at 85 East Fourth Street. What happened inside the committee room no one has told to Mr. Breckinridge, but when the two men came out they were attacked by "starkers." Herman Liberwitz of 532 Henry Street, Brooklyn, was beaten over the head with a club and died of a fractured skull the next day in a hospital. The other man, whose name was not made public, was badly beaten.

Through the second man the police got the name of one of the assailants, but they were unable to get any information about the attack on Liberwitz. At that time all of the witnesses were identified with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Mr. Breckinridge asserted, and were afraid of the "starkers." In August, 1913, members of the union withdrew and formed the International Ladies' Garment Workers of the World. Following the breaking up of the union, Mr. Breckinridge, with the assistance of Max Sulkess, a private detective, got the information which resulted in the arrest of Sigman and Stupniker.

Sigman was arrested on March 17 for an assault upon David Manusavitz, a member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers of the World. He is now out on bail on that charge. Manusavitz was attacked by "starkers," it is charged, because of his association with the rival union.

The rivalry between the two unions and the system whereby the "starkers" are employed will be investigated by Mr. Breckinridge before he has finished the case.

TAMMANY RALLIES VOTERS FOR TO-DAY

Special Election on Constitutional Convention Means Much to Democrats.

FACTOR IN FALL CAMPAIGN

Affirmative Result Is Sought to Divert Attention from Other Important Issues Next Autumn.

Tammany leaders were making energetic efforts yesterday to get out something like the Democratic vote in their districts for the special election which is to be held to-day to decide whether the State Constitution is to be revised next year. It will be the first time in the history of this State that the question has been submitted except at a general election, when something like a normal vote was assured.

The election to-day will be held under a special act passed last December, when the Legislature which impeached William Sulzer was about to expire. Gov. Glynn in a special message to the December meeting of the extraordinary session urged the passage of the law and it was passed practically by unanimous vote.

Since then the Republican organization has taken a hostile attitude toward the proposed constitutional convention next April. The Republican leaders caused to be introduced in the Assembly, which the Republicans controlled this year, a bill repealing the special act passed last December. The Republicans voted for the repeal bill and a majority of the Progressives made common cause with them. The Democrats, of course, voted against the repeal of the special act.

The Progressives, after voting to repeal the law, swung about and at a conference of the leaders held in this city decided to instruct their followers throughout the State that the Progressives vote should be cast in the affirmative.

At Tammany Hall it was said yesterday that Mr. Murphy was confident the Democrats would carry the special election. This meant much to the Democrats. The issues involved in the constitutional convention would render coalition between the Republicans and the Progressives this Fall out of the question, for the party attitude on such questions as the initiative and referendum and the recall is diametrically opposed, and in the Governorship campaign this Fall would divert attention from Democratic misrule in the State and revelations of graft and dereliction in office under Democratic government. From the Wigwam word went out to all the district leaders to do their utmost to get out a big vote.

Ogden L. Mills, prospective Republican State leader, and Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, both indorsed the attitude taken by THE TIMES in opposing the constitutional convention planned for next year.

"I believe," said Mr. Mills, "that nothing should be injected into the election next Fall to becloud the issue relating to State affairs. On the other hand, three or four years more experience will enable us to decide more wisely what should be attempted in the way of revision of the Constitution."

William Barnes, Republican State Chairman, went to Albany yesterday afternoon.

The polls will open at 6 o'clock this morning and will close at 5 in the afternoon. In every district the polling place will be that of last year. All who registered for last year's election and have not since moved out of their election districts, and those who took advantage of the special registration held on Saturday a week ago, will be entitled to vote at the special election to-day.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 6.—Whether a constitutional convention shall be held in New York next year will be decided to-morrow at a State-wide referendum election. If a majority votes affirmatively, delegates will be chosen at the general election this Fall and the convention held next Spring. If the vote is negative, the question will be submitted again at the general election in 1916, and if the vote is affirmative then, delegates will be elected the following Fall and the convention held in 1918.

Indications are that the vote will be light and that the final result will not be known for several days.

Gov. Glynn and the Democratic State Committeemen are anxious that a big affirmative vote be polled, and they are using every effort to carry the proposition. William Barnes, Republican State Chairman, said the party had no position on the question. On the other hand, Harold J. Hinman, majority leader of the Assembly, urged Republicans to vote "no."

Broadly, the convention would consider reorganization of the State's business and financial system, disposition of barge canal lands, agricultural legislation, conservation, highways, woman suffrage, the short ballot, home rule, reapportionment of Assembly Districts, reforms in legal procedure, civil service reforms, and the pardon system. The session probably would last several months.

HILL FAVORS RIVER PLAN.

Railroad Man Suggests Change in T. Kennard Thomson's Project.

T. Kennard Thomson's plan for the filling up of the present East River and the construction of a new East River from Flushing Bay to Jamaica Bay, which Mr. Thomson contended would result in the reclamation of the river from Hell Gate to the Battery, was recently submitted to James J. Hill, former President of the Great Northern Railroad system.

Mr. Hill, in reply, stated that the scheme was entirely feasible, but suggested an improvement which he said would attach Long Island to Manhattan and also cost less than the complete filling up of the river as advocated by Mr. Thomson. This is Mr. Hill's letter:

291 East Third Street, St. Paul, Minnesota.
April 3, 1914.

Mr. T. Kennard Thomson, 50 Church Street, New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Thomson: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 31st ultimo, together with a sketch of your plan for "A Really Greater New York."

The plan is certainly a very feasible one and would create enough land to pay for the work, but the question of consequential damages to property in taking away the navigable water is an unknown quantity and might give trouble. It has occurred to me that leaving a waterway 150 to 200 feet wide which could be covered over from, say, the Brooklyn Bridge up to the Queensborough Bridge, filling in the rest of the channel and keeping the Sound business above the Queensborough Bridge, would practically attach Long Island to Manhattan, and would cost less than the plan proposed in your scheme.

Yours very truly, JAMES J. HILL.

A page story of the Thomson plan was recently published in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DEATH PENALTY ABOLISHED IN BILL

Whitman Asks Gov. Glynn for Hearing on Blauvelt Measures.

COURT MUST TAKE PLEA

"Guilty, but Insane" Would Prevent Sentence of Any Murderer to Capital Punishment.

District Attorney Whitman has requested a hearing before Gov. Glynn on the Blauvelt bills which affect the defense of insanity in criminal cases and the punishment of criminals who plead insanity. According to the District Attorney, the bills substitute in place of the present test of whether the prisoner "knew the nature and quality of his act," a vague and uncertain test which will enable 99 per cent. of prisoners to plead irresponsibility.

"One bill," it was said yesterday at the District Attorney's office, "modifies the Code of Criminal Procedure so as to permit a prisoner at his own election to come into court and plead 'guilty, but insane.' The District Attorney and the court must take the plea. The mere putting in of a plea of 'guilty, but insane' in a murder case requires the court, instead of inflicting the death penalty, to sentence the prisoner for life, and in effect abolishes the death penalty at the prisoner's election. It does not say that a prisoner who pleads 'guilty' and is found insane shall be incarcerated for life instead of receiving the death penalty, but the reduction flows automatically from the mere putting in of the plea.

"Instead of a knowledge of right and wrong, and a realization of his act, being the test of responsibility, the criminal can now say: 'My power to resist was impaired.' 'I suffered from inability to regulate my conduct.' And it should be noted that the extent of the impairment makes no difference. All the accused has to say is, 'I had a slight impairment which prevented me from being able to regulate my conduct.' A man who has a bad temper and lets it go can plead, 'impairment.' A man who covets another's property and steals it can plead that he could not resist—that he was unable to regulate his conduct in that respect. A prisoner would say: 'I was provoked and irritated at the conduct of the man I killed and I couldn't think quite straight at the time, so I killed him.' A bigamist, with an irresistible desire for female society, can escape punishment on the plea that the attractions of the fair sex impaired his ability to regulate his conduct."

Mr. Whitman has assigned Assistant District Attorney James A. Delehanty to represent his office at a hearing on Thursday before Gov. Glynn on the Fairbank bill, which provides for the release on parole of prisoners who are serving terms for every offense except murder in the first and second degrees. According to Mr. Whitman some 900 prisoners may be released under this law.

In a thirty-two page memorandum, which has been filed with Gov. Glynn, Mr. Whitman says:

"One of the objects this legislation seeks to accomplish is to make one year the minimum term in practically all sentences, not only those to be hereafter imposed, but those which have already been imposed. The public official who prostitutes and betrays the public trust imposed in him and and accepts a bribe to influence his official action, stands on exactly the same footing as the imperfectly educated day laborer who, in the moment of passion, strikes another. The bank looter who steals the savings of hundreds is placed on the same footing as the clerk who pilfers the petty cash box. Does this appeal to the public sense of justice and to the public sense of the due execution of penal laws?

"The proposed legislation operates practically as a divestiture of a function which from time immemorial has been vested in judicial offices in regard to punishment, and places it almost entirely in the hands of subsidiary agents of the executive branch of the Government? Is this consistent with the spirit of our law and the spirit of our institutions?"

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 6 A. M. to 5 P. M. All voters registered for the last general election can vote at their old polling places if they have not changed their voting residence.

"MOVIES" TO AID DOCTORS.

French Physician Shows Films Illustrating Action of the Muscles.

Dr. Gustave T. Monad, a noted medical instructor of Paris, entertained a large audience of physicians and surgeons at a meeting in the New York Academy of Medicine last night with a demonstration of the practicability of the moving pictures as a means of studying the human body. He showed two reels of film which had been prepared in the Marey Institute in France. The first film showed the movements of several of the organs of the body under artificial circulation.

The second film showed athletes in action. The ordinary moving picture film, Dr. Monad said, took from 10 to 12 reproductions a second. The film of the athletes took 250 reproductions in the same time and was run through the projecting machine at the usual rate, making the human figures move slowly through the air when they jumped or ran.

A heavy man approached a hurdle and slowly floated into the air as though he was a balloon.

The advantage of the process, which Dr. Monad said was discovered by the late Prof. Marey and would not be commercialized, was that it allowed a close study of the movement of every muscle of the body in each exercise.

Three Years of Building With Style for the Keystone

¶ And this resting on the rock-ribbed foundation of a quarter century of clothes-making experience is the enviable record of this comparatively new Brill Store.

¶ A store where good workmanship in clothes is an absolute necessity, where exclusiveness of fabric is a mere detail, where fit, finish and fair prices are as much a part of the clothes as the four walls are, of the store itself, but where, over and beyond all else, Style Reigns Supreme.

¶ This, then, gentlemen, is the store to which you are invited to select your Easter Clothes, from the widest variety of smart and supremely stylish garments ever exhibited.

MATTY SHOWS FINE CONTROL IN SOUTH

Old Master Lets New Orleans Team Down with Four Hits and No Runs.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 6.—The heavy hitting the Giants have been doing in the Gulf region received a check to-day, but they won without being in danger and by a comfortable margin of 5 to 0, their second shut-out victory here in three days. They had all the patronage this afternoon, for the Chicago Federals practiced instead of playing a scheduled exhibition game.

In the matter of scarcity of base hits on both sides, Styles of New Orleans and Mathewson of New York had a sharp duel. Four hits were made off Matty and three off Styles, but Matty was a vastly superior pitcher to Styles. The old Manhattan master drew the home batters out of plumb with his shifts from speed to slow balls and curled his curves over when they weren't expected.

Matty pitched a splendid game, and his chief point of superiority over Styles was his control. Said control was the essence of skill, while Styles contributed to defeat with his wildness. His wildness, poor support and confusing base running by the Giants gave the latter a goodly supply of runs notwithstanding their pallid batting. Between manipulation of base running and Matty's flawless control the Giants far and away excelled in accepting opportunities for advancement. Mathewson, however, had fine support. The fielding behind him, principally that of Stock and Fletcher, contributed to his finished performance. The only Giant to hit Styles solidly was George Burns, who made two two-baggers, but neither had anything to do with the scoring. Only one hit, that a single by Bescher, which a faster fielder would have converted into an out, was associated with the New York run.

Styles's liberality began in the first inning. He passed Bescher, who stole second. G. Burns struck out, Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball, and Doyle forced Fletcher. On Larry's steal Higgins threw to third to nip Bescher, and overthrew. Bescher scored.

Only a walk by Matty broke the monotony of the Giants' retirement in the second and third. Styles had a wild spell in the fourth. He walked Doyle and Merkle and they forged forward a base on a wild pitch. Murray grounded to Barbare. The latter threw home, Doyle doubled on his tracks, Merkle hoofed back to second, Murray came rushing down to that haven and, with three Giants rampaging back and fourth:, Lindsay made a wild throw, on which Doyle came in. Stock flied out, Merkle died at the plate on McLean's infield grounder, and after Matty was hit, the awkwardness of O. Burns in playing Bescher's drifting fly converted it into a hit and allowed Murray and McLean to run over.

The Giants broke out with another base-running raid in the eighth. Doyle drew a pass and stole second as Merkle struck out. Murray's single sent him to third. Stock likewise ambled. While Styles dreamily held the ball, Stock rushed along the path and was on top of second before Styles woke up. The latter wheeled and threw too late, and Doyle ran home.

The only bunching of hits was done by the Pelicans in the eighth inning. O. Burns whacked a single through the box and Lindsay and Barbaree lifted flies to Fletcher. Higgins drove a single to left, O. Burns tried for third when he saw G. Burns fumble, and that's where O. Burns came a cropper. Otto was pegged out by his namesake, George. The score:

Schauer Gets Revenge at Memphis.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 6.—The Giants' Colts walloped the locals to-day by the score of 6 to 3. "Rube" Schauer was looking for revenge and went in the box again, trying to tame the locals, and had things his own way until the eighth inning, when a hit batsman, an error, and a single filled the bases with one out. Mullen was then up, and as he had obtained two doubles and a single off Rube, the only three hits made until then, Mike Donlin substituted Herring at the bat, who retired the side forcing in a run with a base on balls. Donlin was very much in evidence, with two singles, which brought in two runs, and scoring one himself. Bonura was safe on the left field bleacher featured. The score:

NO NATIONAL MEETING.

Sale of Chicago Club Not to be Taken Up Soon by Club Owners.

Secretary John A. Heydler of the National League returned yesterday from his vacation at Pinehurst, N. C. He said that he had received no notification to call any meeting of the National League. It was reported yesterday that the club owners would meet President Tener here to settle the sale of the Chicago Club before the season opens next week, but Mr. Heydler denied that any such meeting was contemplated at this time.

When Mr. Heydler was asked what he thought of the pennant race in the National League he said that the golfing at Pinehurst was fine, and that he could putt on sand greens just as well as he could on turf. When asked for an opinion of the Federal League, Mr. Heydler admitted that while in the South he could drive a golf ball as far as any of them, but he was erratic on his short game.

One of Mr. Heydler's callers was Umpire Bill Klem, who is recovering from an injured collar bone. Last June at the Polo Grounds Klem was hit just below the neck with a foul tip, but it did not bother him until he was on the trip around the world. An X-ray examination revealed a splintered collar bone which had been duly repaired, and Klem says he will be ready for work on Tuesday.

Klem was injured because he did not wear a chest protector outside of his coat. He wears it beneath his Norfolk jacket, which leaves his neck unprotected. Klem says that over in England they considered him the bravest man on the field, because he had no apparent protection from foul tips. He allowed the English to think so, and didn't tell them that he wore a hidden protector.

Klem didn't have much to say about baseball, but when he was asked how he thought the fight in Mexico would come out, he remarked that he didn't even know who was playing down there.

Kelo Nine Arrives at Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 6.—Kelo University's baseball team arrived here yesterday from Japan. The team will tour the Pacific Coast.

SUPERBAS HAVE CLOSE CALL

Win by a One-Run Margin Against Baltimore Internationals.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 6.—By the margin of one run, the Superbas beat the Orioles this afternoon in the sharpest game played here so far this season. The score was 3 to 2. Both teams were in fine fettle, and the fielding was of the mid-season character. It seemed at first that the Brooklyns would make a runaway race of it, and in the ninth it looked as if the Orioles would make a winning finish, but they didn't, for Dave Danforth got into his stride after the first inning and the Brooklyns were unable to do any hitting again until the seventh, when they added one tally to their score.

Aitchison, the former Newark left-hander, started the game for the Superbas, and had the Orioles guessing throughout the six innings he occupied the box. Pfeffer, who pitched the last three innings, was a much easier proposition. He was touched up for four hits, which netted two runs, and was lucky to get off so easily.

The Orioles had two men left on the bases in the seventh, while in the ninth Bert Daniels, who was sent in to bat for Danforth, offered an easy chance with two men on the bases.

A pass to Dalton, the first man up in the first inning; Cutshaw's sacrifice, a wild throw, and Wheat's single gave the Superbas their start. Their last tally, which came in the seventh, resulted from Fischer's double and Cutshaw's single. The score:

YANKEES WORK IN BROOKLYN

Cook Displaces Gilhooly in Outfield —Boone to be Tried at Second.

The Yankees had a long workout at Ebbets Field yesterday, preparatory to the fourth game of the series with the Brooklyns, which will be played this afternoon. All the pitchers limbered up their arms, with Coach Tom Daly and Ed Sweeney doing the catching. Gossett is still on crutches as a result of an injured leg. Channell practiced for some time in the sun field, where he misjudged fly balls badly during the last game. He wore no sun glasses then, but he will wear the sun "cheaters" to-day.

Gilhooley will probably not get much of a chance in the outfield, on account of his weak throwing arm. He is fast on the bases but is a poor thrower. It looks as if Chance's outfield would be Walsh, Holden, and Cook. Manager Chance said yesterday that he expected to see Cook become one of the best hitters on the team before the season is over. He has been somewhat handicapped by a slight attack of malaria in the South, but Trainer Barrett thinks he will soon recover in this climate.

"Lute" Boone had a trial at second base yesterday, and he may play for a while in that position in to-day's game. The Yankees will go to Baltimore to play Jack Dunn's team to-morrow. The Orioles look something like the old Yankee team, with Daniels, Midkiff, Derrick, and Birdie Cree in the line-up.

Brooklyn Federal Regulars Win.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 6.—The regulars and Yannigans of the Brooklyn Federal League team to-day played a six-inning game after a long work-out. The regulars, with Summers in the box, won, 4 to 1. Long flies to the outfielders were the features of the game. In the absence of Manager "Bill" Bradley from the camp Artie Hofman is in charge of the squad. With the exception of Mackert and Choinard the squad is in splendid physical condition. Bradley is expected to return by Thursday, and will leave with the team the latter part of the week for Pittsburgh, where they play the opening game next Monday. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Yannigans	0	0	0 1 0—1 5 6

Cantillon Refuses Federal Offer.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 6.—Joe Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis Baseball Club and former manager of the Washington Club, has refused a Federal League contract calling for $105,000. He was wanted to manage the Brooklyn Club. The third league emissaries have been after the Miller manager for more than six weeks, but he has given his final answer. A seven-year contract calling for $15,000 per season was the alluring bait thrown at the leader of the Minneapolis team in the largest offer ever made in baseball. There was no question about its genuineness. Officials in the high councils of the new league agreed to deposit the seven years' salary with a trust company if the manager would affix his name to the document. Joe doesn't deny that he gave the offer serious consideration. He said to-day he would remain with Minneapolis indefinitely.

Marsans Not to Jump Reds.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 6.—Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder who was ordered out of a game with Louisville last week by Manager Herzog of the Cincinnati team, and who refused to play in games since then, had a long conference with Herzog to-night and will rejoin the team to-morrow if a game can be played. Marsans has been quoted as saying that he would jump to the Federal League or return to Havana.

Cornell Plays at Fordham To-day.

Cornell's baseball team will play Fordham at Fordham Field to-day. It will mark the first appearance of the Ithaca collegians on the Fordham diamond in many years. Coach Robertson expects to assign Capt. Billy Walsh to pitch. Walsh will pitch only a part of the game, as his poisoned finger has not entirely healed. "Jack" Martin, Captain of the Connecticut Literary Institute team last year, will then go in the box, and, if effective against Cornell's batters, will be taken with the squad on the annual Easter trip South on Saturday.

Harvard Starts Training Table.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 6.—The training tables to the Harvard baseball squad was startrted to-day with fifteen men. Eight of the candidates played on the team last year.

Recreation Centre Athletic Trials.

Preliminaries for the annual meet of the Recreation Centre Athletic League, which is to be held on May 2, are now being held at all the centres. A championship competition will be held in each of the sixty-three centres and the winners in each of the various events will be entered in the city championship games. The entries in the city meet will be limited to one in each event to each centre. The centre championships were started this week and will last until about a week before the city meet.

Daubert Organizes Sunday Team.

Jake Daubert, the Superbas' first baseman, has organized a semi-professional team in Brooklyn to play every Sunday this season, starting next Sunday. Daubert has as associates H. C. Meyers and John Durney. They have leased the Parkway Driving Club grounds at Kings Highway and Ocean Boulevard. Daubert's team will be known as the Oaklands. Doc Scanlon, the former Brooklyn National twirler, is the manager of the team. Daubert has arranged to have his Oaklands play big league clubs every Sunday. The Brooklyn Yannigans, with Kid Elberfeld at shortstop, will be the opponents of the Oaklands next Sunday.

COLUMBIA RUNNERS STRANDED ON BASES

No Hits in Their Bats When They Had Opportunities to Defeat Amherst.

A base hit in any of three innings would have saved the Columbia baseball nine from a defeat at the hands of the Amherst College nine by the score of 2 to 1 yesterday afternoon on South Field. The Morningside Heights players were weak at bat, with men on bases. In the ninth inning three were on the bases and none out, but two were caught in a double play, and the last man fanned under the fire of Robinson, Amherst's star twirler.

After a poor second inning, O'Neale, the Columbia pitcher, seemed to be a puzzle. But the game was lost in that session. Three of the four hits were made off him then, and these netted the Amherst players a lead of two runs. Swasey pounded out a two-bagger, followed by Washburn's sacrifice. Two singles by Sicard and Robinson then completed the victory for the visitors. For the next seven innings the Columbia players made desperate efforts to overtake their opponents, but in spite of six scattered hits they failed. Robinson was strong in the pinches and did not allow the hit that would have changed the score. Columbia scored on passes to Friedrich and Brophy and Haskin's hit.

The fielding on both sides was excellent, although a cold wind swept across the field and dulled the players. A thrilling catch of a long drive by Swasey, Amherst's hard-hitting centre fielder, in the third inning drew attention to Page, a newcomer on the Columbia team. In addition to his batting, Swasey was a good fielder. The score:

Princeton Wins by a Run.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 6.—Princeton's baseball team proved its "come-back" ability again to-day when it defeated Ursinus 3 to 1 in the eighth and ninth innings after the visitors had held a one-run lead for four innings. Ursinus's tally was partly a gift through successive errors by Rhoades and O'Kane of Princeton, coupled with a hit by Johnson of Ursinus. Wood and Johnson pitched through the nine innings for Princeton and Ursinus, respectively, both keeping the game well in hand. For Princeton "Doc" Cook, a recruit this year on the Varsity team, starred at the bat, getting three singles and a double out of four trips to the plate. The score:

Colgate Shuts Out Seton Hall.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 6.—Seton Hall was swamped here to-day by Colgate's ball club, Hicks, the visiting pitcher, scoring a shutout, 11 to 0. Seton Hall was able to get only one hit off his delivery, and that not until the seventh inning, when Joe Shannon poked a hit past second base. Colgate scored two runs in the opening inning, errors by Luty helping them along. Dobbin, Colgate pitching for the local team, was batted hard, and was displaced in the fifth inning by Kerrigan. Hicks maintained fine control throughout and fanned nine of the visitors. He did not give a base on balls. The line-up:

Cornell, 5; Georgetown, 4.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—Cornell batted Pitcher Tyson of Georgetown in the first inning to-day for four runs, and with another mark in the fourth nosed out a clever 5 to 4 victory over the wearers of the blue and gray. Acheson for the visitors and Tyson for Georgetown were both touched up freely, but the first-named was accorded the better support. Grossman's home run in the opening inning was the feature. Princeton Scores Soccer Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 6.—In the first game of the local intercollegiate soccer season Princeton defeated Cornell to-day, 5 to 0. The Tigers were better at every stage of the game. Princeton scored twice in the first half, when Gates shot the ball in from a penalty, and Sinsmore drove over a score on a remarkable shot from the 35-yard line. After these two tallies Princeton did not score again until within fifteen minutes of the end of the game. Bird scored on a long pass from the wing, and Veite scored twice, once on a pass from Boyle and the second after a good dribble.

OUIMET IN ENGLAND.

Young American Golfer Says He Will Be in Form in About a Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—Francis Ouimet of Woodland Golf Club, Massachusetts, whom British golfers seem to think they have most to fear, at least as far as the amateur championship is concerned, arrived off Dover aboard the Lapland to-night. To a press representative who boarded the liner Ouimet said he was slightly ill at the beginning of the voyage, but is all right now and would be glad to get ashore to do some practice.

"The Captain of the Lapland rigged a net on the steamship deck for me to practice shots," said Ouimet, "but it was too low, and I had to give it up, though I have been doing a fair amount of club swinging. Really, I have had no golf since last Fall. I went down to Pinehurst in February for ten days, but it did me no good. I played very little. Then I went back to Boston and have not played at all there. However, I have kept myself in condition with plenty of walking and other exercises. If the climate does not affect me much I think I shall be able to play my game in about a week."

DEWEY STOPPED SULLIVAN.

Main Bout at National Club Lasted Less Than Two Rounds.

"Al" Dewey stopped "Gene" Sullivan in the second round of their ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club last night. Dewey, who is credited with a victory over Jack Britton, scaled at 140, while Sullivan weigher 137. Dewey hit cleanly and hard, judged distance well, and did not waste an action. All that Sullivan showed was willingness to mix, the fact that his brother, Mike, "Twin," and Jack, "Twin," both made reputations in the ring.

As they came together in the first round Dewey feinted Sullivan to a point of nervousness, and a moment later, with a quick left to the face, dropped "Gene" to his haunches. This was about the only important feature of the first round.

The second put Sullivan more to the bad, as he was twice floored with clean punches to the jaw. He made an effort to retaliate, but a stiff right made him drowsy, he folded his slender form over the ropes, was assisted to his corner by the referee, and was still in a state of bewilderment as the crowd was leaving the building.

"Johnny" Marto, the west sider, at 137¾, and "Andy" Cortes of Jersey, weight 137¾, went to it like a pair of stevedores. They stugged and hauled through ten rounds of mighty hard work, but there was little science displayed by either. Marto had the advantage of height. Cortes showed sturdiness and great strength.

Strive as he would, Marto could not gain a decided advantage over the Jerseyman. He tried hard enough and was encouraged by many friends in the crowd, but the combination missed fire, for the Jerseyman always came back. There was an abundance of rough, hard punching, mixed with strenuous clinching. At the end, though the bout was an even break, Cortes gained more appaluse as he left the ring.

Another draw resulted from the meeting of "Willie" Saunders and "Jimmie" Murray, who weighed 114 and 118 pounds, respectively. Saunders was very nimble and boxed skilfully, but he made little impression on his awkward opponent. It was an interesting, lively "go," with action from start to finish.

CLEAN BOXING ORDERED.

Commission Gives Notice That Offenders Will Be Disqualified.

The State Athletic Commission is determined to enforce the rules about fair boxing. The attention of referees has been called to the butting, wrestling, and pushing that have predominated in many recent bouts, and the old kidney punch bugaboo has reared its head again to such a degree that special attention has also been called to it. Notices about all of these objectionable features have been sent to referees, boxers, proprietors of clubs, and others with directions to disqualify all offending boxers and report them to the commission. Speaking on the subject, a member of the commission said yesterday:

"We are constantly receiving communications from well-meaning patrons of boxing, and unfortunately these letters are often in the nature of criticism. Frequently our attention is called to such and such a contest in which it is stated one or both of the boxers had been guilty of unfair tactics.

"Now, you know, we have ruled against the so-called kidney punch, yet it was brought to our attention only a few days ago that in a recent contest the referee after numerous warnings stopped the bout in the ninth round, disqualified both men, and ordered them from the ring. This sort of boxing will not be allowed in New York. We propose to have clean boxing here, so the sooner those interested get wise to the fact the better."

The chief in charge of the contests will be warned to hold all boxers strictly to straight work, and should any undue roughness or breach of the rules be employed you may depend upon it some one is going to hear from us in a way they will not misunderstand."

New York Boys Win Amateur Bouts

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 6.—Abe Friedman of New York gave Philly Krug of this city one of the hardest battles the latter ever experienced in the open amateur boxing tournament at the National Turn Verein to-night. Friedman was coached by Young O'Leary, a New York professional, but even at that Krug, who is the New Jersey State 110-pound champion, got the decision. James Nugent of New York had things all his own way in the 128-pounud class and defeated Henry Conrad, also of New York. Many other New York boys competed. The summary:

110-Pound Class—John Lisson, Puritan A. C., Newark, defeated Paul Hock, National Turn Verein, Newark; Thomas Conley, National Turn Verein, Newark, won from Harry Fitzsimmons, Belleville, by forfeit; Philly Krug, National Turn Verein, defeated Abe Friedman, unattached, New York.

Al Britton Defeats Kennedy.

Al Britton of Staten Island defeated Fighting Kennedy of the West Harlem A. C. in the main bout of ten rounds at the Olympic Athletic Club last night. It was the first show at the club under the new management. For the first four rounds the boxing was even, but then Britton became the aggressor and forced the action to the end. Kennedy tired under Britton's steady attack to the body and face, and several times toward the end of the bout the Harlem boy was hanging on to save himself.

In the semi-final bout of six rounds Tommy Stone and Young Goldie, featherweights, fought a fast draw which bristled with action. The boys took turns at leading, and at times it looked as if one or the other had an advantage. The honors shifted so frequently, however, that neither boxer had an advantage, and both were mixing it up merrily at the end of the bout.

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 6 A. M. to 5 P. M. All voters registered for the last general election can vote at their old polling places if they have not changed their voting residence.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1914.

VOTE "NO" TO-DAY.

The voters will determine at the special election held to-day whether a convention shall assemble next year to revise the Constitution of the State of New York. It was a piece of unconscionable stupidity on the part of the Legislature to provide that a special election for this purpose should be held in the month of April, since it was morally certain that but a small fraction of the voters would go to the polls. The voter who disapproves of the election held to-day and of the holding of a convention next year would stumble into a deeper depth of stupidity, however, if he should stay away from the polls as a mark of his displeasure. That is the way, the one sure way, to get the question to hold a convention next year decided in the affirmative. The agitators who want to overhaul the Constitution, who want to provide for the initiative, the referendum, the recall of Judges and their decisions, the men of Tammany, who think that the earlier the revision is made the better for them, will go to the polls and vote "yes." To abstain from voting is practically to vote with them. If they are unopposed, of course they will have a majority, and the delegates will be voted for this year and a convention held next even though the total vote cast to-day be only a few thousand.

We advise and urge men of sense and soberness to go to the polls and vote "no." If the voters in the negative turn out in sufficient numbers they will make sure not only of the defeat of the foolish convention project, but they will teach the Legislature a lesson as to the folly of ordering a special election in this haphazard way. No voter need have any misgivings about putting off the amending of the Constitution. The matter has been very little discussed, but in the discussion there has been no mention of amendment of sufficient importance and urgency to require the calling of a convention in advance of the date contemplated by the Constitution itself.

GOVERNMENT WAYS WITH RAILWAYS AND TELEGRAPHS.

The session of the Chamber of Deputies of Italy on Sunday gave a good example of the short and easy way to deal with railway wages and rates. Something like 100,000 railway men are threatening a general strike, and the Premier surrenders at discretion. He enlarges the pensions of the employés of the State railways by 11 per cent. He raises the minimum wage, and incurs obligations enlarged by 83,000,000 annually. In the words of the cablegram, "This sum would "be obtained by increasing the railway "rates." It's no harder than that, where Governments own the railways. The Deputies clinched it by a vote of 303 to 122. The reason why it is so easy is that "the unions of rail-"way men transform themselves at "election time into instruments for "collecting votes." Those who like increases of railway rates, and politics dominated by unions, must like the example Italy affords of Government owned and operated railways.

The cable also brings from France an example of the attractions of State telegraphs. The postal authorities were sued for damages by the non-delivery of a telegram. The loss and the non-delivery and the connection between them were proved. The case was taken to the French State Council, and its decision was that the "State is under no responsibility in "regard to private correspondence "by telegrams." Those who work for Government railways get political wages through politics, and that is a worse thing for the State than the exorbitant wages paid. Those who use Government railways or telegraphs get quick decisions with scant courtesy or regard for private interests.

STOP THE MISCHIEF NOW.

Public meetings without permits are prohibited by law. Incitement to riotous conduct is forbidden by law. The police, therefore, will only be performing their duty if they take measures to prevent the threatened meeting of the I. W. W. next Saturday and suppress, by the most vigorous methods, any outbreak of violence that may be caused by their enforcement of the letter and spirit of the law. Now is the time to put a stop to these outrageous demonstrations of a few anarchists whose object is the destruction of all government. This hour is particularly unpropitious for any sort of toleration of the doings of these murderous fanatics. As they captured the open air meeting of the Central Federated Union last Saturday, so they have wormed themselves into many other meetings, held for perfectly lawful purposes by honest workingmen, and endeavored to make the workers believe that they support the cause of labor. In this period of depression there are many discouraged men and women who are likely to become the victims and tools of the I. W. W.'s agitators if the fomenters of riot are not promptly silenced whenever they try to incite to violence the people who listen to them and dispersed whenever they assemble in public places without permission. In doing their duty to this end the police will have the hearty support of the majority of citizens.

The haranguers of Sunday's meetings declared that the police rule here is as bad as it is in Russia. If that is true, then there is no advantage to them to remain in a country which desires no immigrants who are not willing to work for their living and obey the laws. Let the members of the I. W. W., who are not working people but professional agitators, return to Russia or Italy, or whatever other country they may claim as Fatherland. They do not belong here and their methods will not be longer tolerated. It is folly to say that they are protected by the Constitutional right to free speech. No citizen or alien has a right to incite others to violence or to take part in public meetings which are not sanctioned by law.

The tendency has been to treat these ruffians too tenderly, to confuse them with workingmen, and consider them at worst as harmless if mistaken. That tendency should be checked. It seems that the Magistrates, whose continual discouragement of the police is traditional, are not yet awake to the danger that threatens society from the too moderate treatment of these fomenters of robbery and bloodshed. They may hold that there has been no general outbreak as yet, but when we see the avowed incendiary carrying his torch and proclaiming the purpose for which he intends to use it, there is no sense in waiting for the conflagration to get well under way. Stop the mischief now.

DARKENING COUNSEL.

It appears that the campaign of the subsidy men against the repeal of the coastwise subsidy has reached its climax and is beginning to lose force. It has been very ingenious, considering the grounds on which it has necessarily been conducted, but its ingenuity is of the sort that does not take note of the reason or the conscience of the public. A shrewd public man in this city was, on one occasion, discussing the probable future of DAVID B. HILL, then seemingly in command of the politics of this State, and said in substance: "Mr. HILL'S "success may be called self-limiting, "and I think the limit is approach-"ing. His conception of politics has "two serious defects. He appeals "chiefly to the interest of his asso-"ciates and subordinates, and, sooner "or later, he cannot satisfy them, for "there is not enough profit to go "around. And he does not under-"stand the tremendous influence of "a moral issue on public sentiment." Two years later the Hill machine fell to pieces, though in the Senate Mr. HILL showed himself much more of a statesman than he had previously shown himself.

The subsidy men are proceeding on a policy plainly marked by these same defects. Their immediate appeal is to the protectionist greed which the Democratic Party has just succeeded, after long and arduous labor, in eliminating in great degree from the tariff. They do not realize that this is something very limited in its influence now, and that the old protectionist domination perished precisely because there was not enough profit in protection to go around among the innumerable swarm of seekers after it. The secondary appeal of the subsidy hunters is to racial and national and—we are ashamed to say—to religious animosity. They have tried to make it appear that the repeal of the privilege accorded to the coastwise monopoly is opposed by one class of our foreign-born or foreign-descended citizens and by the Church which the great body of them revere. We are gratified to be able to say that this appeal also has not yielded the results that had been expected. The attempt to arouse anti-British feeling among Irishmen at the moment that the British Government is risking its political existence and facing the threat of civil war in the attempt to give home rule to Ireland has awakened the derision and contempt of a good many earnest and rational men with Irish blood in their veins. The more insidious attempt to drag a great Church into a miserable intrigue for the advantage of private interests, already unduly favored, has aroused indignation.

Still more conspicuous is the error of the subsidy-hunters in estimating the real force of the moral sense of the American people and the effect of its activity upon an issue involving the good faith of the nation. Now this is a matter as to which the "schoolmaster" in the White House has shown himself far better informed than the acute politicians who are undertaking to fight him. One reason doubtless is that he has kept vital and active his sympathy with that moral sense. He has, so to speak, superior facilities for understanding how the average honest man feels about a matter of keeping promises. When he reads in the treaty of 1901 the following pledge of the United States solemnly made by our Government for ample consideration he knows what it means to him, and that it means the same to the great body of his fellow-citizens:

I. The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic, or otherwise.

Probably the President has kept himself well informed as to the expressions of public sentiment in the papers and through personal utterance, but he must have felt that that sentiment would not and could not, on so plain a question, differ very much from his own. And he is right. We are entirely confident that the longer the opponents of repeal of the special privilege granted to the coastwise monopoly defer action in the Senate, the more decided will be their defeat. For that reason we do not in the least regret the shallow, dilatory tactics to which they are resorting.

HUERTA AND VILLA.

The only conceivable explanation of HUERTA'S suppression in the City of Mexico of the facts about Torreon is that he fears an outbreak against his Government in his very dooryard. It is impossible that he has not known day by day the conditions existing in and around the city which has now fallen into the hands of his enemies. Communication between the Mexican capital and New York has not been interrupted, even if the telegraph wires southward from Torreon have been out of order. HUERTA also has known that the entire Federal force in and around Torreon was not more than 5,000, though we had been led to believe that the garrison was quite large enough to defend the city against VILLA'S men. Therefore, it seems that he must have felt long ago that the disaster was inevitable.

In certain circumstances, the old Dictator might seem a comical figure. He has falsified persistently about his resources, and his very latest act of denying the authority of a United States Consul, whose work lies wholly in territory where HUERTA'S power is about equal to that of the Ameer of Afghanistan, has the real opéra bouffe touch. But the situation caused by the division of authority in a country so important to the world between HUERTA on the one hand, and a revolutionary force in which an impulsive and brutal leader like VILLA is the chief factor on the other, is too grave to justify a humorous view of it.

THE FOREST FIRE SEASON.

Millions of acres of forest lands in the Adirondacks and Catskills are unprotected from destruction by fire because the Legislature adjourned without appropriating the necessary funds. The fifty watchmen for the observation stations and the seventy forest rangers absolutely needed to patrol the forests may not be provided. Fortunately, the Legislature did pass the Assembly bill introduced as No. 1,233, which authorizes the Controller, upon direction of the Governor, to borrow money in case of emergencies for the extinguishing of fires. If Gov. GLYNN signs this bill some temporary provision may be made until the Legislature meets in its extra session. But April and May are the months in which the most disastrous fires occur. It is to be hoped that the Governor will not only sign the bill now in his hands, but will specially charge the Legislature when it meets to make speedy provision for the forest fire service.

The system now installed under the Conservation Commission is the most efficient and economical ever operated. In the three dry years of 1903, 1908, and 1913 the losses of the first two years were $846,082 and $802,135, respectively, and the cost of extinguishing fires ranged from $153,764 to $189,661; whereas in 1913, under the new safeguards, the damage was only $51,445 and the cost of the service but $43,213.

That is very little to pay for insurance against great conflagrations in the forest reserve counties of this State. Chairman VAN KENNEN of the Conservation Commission has set forth the facts as noted in a letter to Mr. JOHN G. AGAR, President of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks, and that society has the support of the public in its efforts to relieve an alarming situation.

THE NEED OF VACCINATION.

On general principles it is wise to submit to vaccination once in seven years, the time in which immunity to smallpox is assured. It is the custom of vaccination among masses of people that keeps smallpox from scourging modern society. If large numbers of people neglect the precaution the safeguard is removed and the community is exposed to serious dangers. That is why Dr. GOLDWATER of the Health Department has issued a statement advising all who are not personally immune to the disease to do the part of good citizens, for their own sakes and for their neighbors'.

Against smallpox this city is better protected than most others in the United States, the reason being that such campaigns as that now in progress have been undertaken before the danger from an epidemic became too great to control and promptly dispel. But cases have recently appeared in various parts of the State. There has been no general vaccination in this city within twelve years. It is time that every family make itself immune.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Conducive to Naval Efficiency.

Discussion of Secretary DANIELS'S order banishing intoxicants from naval vessels and navy yards might well in every instance begin with consideration of the sentence in Admiral BRAISTED'S letter recommending this action, which reads: "If there is one profession more than any other that calls for a clear head and a steady hand, it is the naval profession."

The truth of that statement must be obvious to anybody who remembers the many and heavy responsibilities that rest upon the officers and crew of a Government vessel—responsibilities extending far beyond the money value of the public property intrusted to their direct control, often amounting to millions of dollars, and far beyond the lives directly dependent on their continuous efficiency, often many hundreds. In addition, great national interests are frequently involved in the exercise of their large discretionary powers.

And the effect of alcohol on mind and body is no longer a matter of assumption or conjecture; measurements as exact as those of the analytical chemist have demonstrated beyond question that even the most moderate drinking appreciably reduces whatever may be the normal competence of every individual. General knowledge of this fact has enabled many of the great employing corporations to enforce practically total abstinence on their workers without exciting a single protest in the name of "personal liberty." Secretary DANIELS has therefore acted in accordance with the intelligence and the tendency of the time, and he will have, in what he has done, an overwhelming amount of public sentiment to support him.

So obviously are sober officers as essential to a ship's safety as a sober crew that the abolition of the present discrimination as to the use of intoxicants fore and aft is only common sense. It must not be supposed, however, that the issuance of the order was necessitated by the prevalence of heavy drinking among our naval officers. Excessive indulgence has long been growing steadily rarer and rarer in this class, and to the great majority of them the new restrictions will produce no change of habits, or one so slight as to trouble them not at all. The order will simply give the finishing blow to an evil already moribund.

The embarrassment as to the entertainment of guests in foreign ports can be easily removed in the way Admiral BRAISTED suggests, with an incidental protection of our officers from a drain on their usually lean purses about which they have bitterly complained for many a year.

Westchester Will Be Eloquent.

Everybody in Westchester County—its tradesmen and real estate dealers not less than its commuters—is intensely interested in the fate of the bill relating to railway rates now waiting Gov. GLYNN'S signature or veto. Upon his action depends, the Westchesterians firmly believe, the prosperity of the county. That its present unsatisfactory condition is wholly due to the big increase in the cost of commutation tickets would hardly be contended, but that this increase added appreciably to the gloom is indubitable.

The bill in question, on which a public hearing will be given in Albany tomorrow, would have the effect, if signed, of putting into immediate force the decision of the Public Service Commission that the advance of rates was unnecessary and unreasonable, and it would compel prompt obedience to like orders in the future.

Westchester County realizes that the New Haven is in special need of money, just now, but it objects to paying for the service it receives more than is exacted by other roads in this vicinity for transportation over like distances, and more, even, than is charged by the New Haven itself at the other end of its line. The claim that commutation business is not profitable at either the new or the old rates the Wise Ones of the county resentfully deny. It is not all of commuting to commute, they say, paraphrasing the ancient angler's famous phrase, for with satisfactory commutation privileges go flourishing suburban towns and the large part of their general business that pays tribute to the railway.

The advocates of the bill now before Gov. GLYNN have prepared elaborate briefs full of detailed information as to the cost of the commutation service. In these documents the recent expenditures for terminal facilities are balanced against the economies due to electrification in what seems to be a convincing manner, while especially impressive are the comparisons between commutation rates, present and past, with those charged for similar transportation over the other approaches to this city.

Could Some Have Been Saved?

Highly probable, almost certain, as it is that men like the sealers who were caught on the St. Lawrence ice in a blizzard would do to save themselves all that was humanly possible in such conditions, yet to remote students of the terrible catastrophe it seems strange that something more and different was not done.

No united action in the way of utilizing snow and ice for the construction of shelters is reported, though that was apparently so simple and easy expedient. Instead the men wandered over the frozen expanse, with the one thought of keeping in motion as long as possible. Wherever they fell, they died unless they were able to rise and go on again, and only the strongest and most warmly dressed survived.

It is stated that no clothing was removed from the dead. The repugnance for doing that is comprehensible, but the objections were purely sentimental, while common sense seemingly dictated a contrary course.

Of course the Newfoundlanders were experienced and skillful, and into these remarks there should be read no suggestion of adverse criticism. The desire is only for information.

MAYOR GILL OF SEATTLE.

Re-elected by the Suffragists on a Reform Platform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of "M. E. N." states that the reason for Mayor Gill's re-election in Seattle was failure on the part of the women to attend at primaries, and the lack of appreciation of the duties inseparable from the vote. Will you permit me to review the case of Gill?

Gill was first elected Mayor on an open-town platform before the women had the vote. The petition for his recall was started by men reformers before the franchise was granted to women. They could not obtain enough signatures until the women were enfranchised, when the combined forces of the men who stood for decency and the women brought about the recall.

This year there were nine Mayoralty candidates. There was an anti-Gill mass meeting of women before the primary election; of themselves the women could not nominate a candidate, but the decent voting was so split up between the number of candidates that Gill and Trenholme were nominated. This year Gill ran on a platform for strict enforcement of law. He financed his own campaign. He claims to have been used by designing friends for their personal gain in the past and to have permitted an open-wide town because he thought the people wanted it. His family life is said to be a model. Trenholme was proved to be a candidate of the corporations which had plundered the city for years, and had openly expressed his approval of licensed gambling houses and brothels. The question decided in the election was not so much personal, but whether or not the city was to be again put into the hands of the plunderers, and strange as it may appear Gill's election was a victory for the right.

Gill's first official act seems to indicate his intention to live up to his promises. He appointed as Chief of Police Seattle's leading social reformer and a man who has stood most strongly for law and order.

ANARCHIST SPEECHES.

Police Urged to be Firm with Inciters to Violence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice with great regret that a few persons who have come to the United States from Europe, seeking liberty, peace, prosperity and the better enjoyment of the rights of man, now seem determined to stir up trouble here. The slothful habits, the bitter envy of the well-to-do, and the hatred of the "rich," (meaning in this case every person who owns property,) which they brought hither from abroad, are now about to bear the same crop of disorder that has made the name "Anarchist" everywhere odious. And more than this. The imported anarchy that has come to us from Europe has developed a crop of neophyte Anarchists, called "Socialists," who are merely assistant Anarchists under a milder name.

The Mayor and the Police Commissioner are doing exactly what the people of this city—all except the Anarchist—expect of them, and they will be supported in every way that may become necessary. The time has come when sedition and incitement to murder by public speeches must cease in this city.

In Chicago, previous to the Haymarket massacre, the Anarchist thought the American people would stand for arson, murder and mob rule. Seven Anarchists paid the penalty of their error with their lives. New York has learned a lesson from that affair. The police force of this city is now called upon to stop all anarchistic propaganda in this city, and break up all black-flag and red-flag meetings. If the police force of this city is not sufficient to keep the Anarchists in order, other means will quickly be found to preserve in this city the lives and property of law-abiding people.

THE LONELY MEN.

Would Like to Know How to Make Congenial Friends.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been very much interested in reading in your columns during the last few days the letters from "lonely women." Now will not some kind readers of THE TIMES offer some good, practical suggestions that would be a benefit to the lonely men of this great city? Perhaps a few of us don't care particularly for churches or Y. M. C. A.'s, although we enjoy the society of refined people and believe in all goodness, no matter of what faith, or no faith.

Many of us, while not living in hall bedrooms, do not possess sufficient means to be able to enjoy any great luxury. We enjoy the society of good, refined people of both sexes, but do not know how to make their friendship and are, in consequence, comparative strangers in a great city. Can any one tell us how to become acquainted?

New York, April 6, 1914. T. H. J.

The Shackles of Convention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"B. E.'s" letter has called down so much reproach that I must not say too much, but when will the American woman learn to interpret that word "bohemian"? In the delightful sense French and English art students interpret it?

Now, the man who is sufficiently a "pal" to be invited to participate in a home beefsteak party would be, to my mind, a very desirable adjunct, unless, of course, one is supposed to read a different meaning between the lines.

Over in England the American woman is held up to us as an ideal type—athletic, independent, and famous for her unconventionality. Yet, really, the greatest disappointment I have experienced this side has been the number of women bound hand and foot by the iron shackles of tradition and conventionality. Just imagine—in this free country—a woman who will not go out alone at night!

Loquacious Diplomats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have often wondered why some of our diplomatic representatives abroad have attempted to discuss political subjects in view of this clear mandate on Page 69 of Instructions to Diplomatic Officers:

Speechmaking: It is deemed advisable to extend a similar prohibition (to public writing) against public addresses, unless upon exceptional festal occasions, in the country of official residences. Even upon such occasions any references to political issues pending in the United States or elsewhere should be carefully avoided.

SERVICE.
New York, April 6, 1914.

A Blind Woman's Need.

A woman blind and penniless, except for a yearly pension of $50 granted her by the city, has won the loyal interest of her neighbors in the tenement by her unfailing cheerfulness and good humor. They have little to give beyond service, but this they give gladly, so she is well off where she is as long as she can care for her two-room home. The change to an institution would bring keen distress to her. Four dollars a week is all she needs to make unnecessary this hardship. The Charity Organization Society asks for $104 for her use during the coming six months.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions sent in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES:

Joseph W. Wenty, $1; "Anonymous," $1; "Miss E. A. C.," $1; through THE NEW YORK TIMES, $7; "Elsie and Betty," $1; "J. H. P.," $1; Mrs. G. B. Satterlee, $5; "A Friend of the Poor," $2; Miss Linette A. Parker, $10; M. K. P., $1; Mrs. Jennie E. Crager, $1; "Montclair," $1; "J. G.," $1.

A MARKET BOARD

Provided in Bill Now Placed Before the Governor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I write to call your attention to a matter which is of great practical public importance—the reorganization of the system of marketing food products which the city is permitted to undertake by the Pollock bill, now in the hands of the Governor, amending the Greater New York Charter. This is in relation to the establishment, organization, powers, and duties of a department of markets.

The bill is permissive, in that the department cannot be created until the Board of Estimate recommends fixing the salaries of the market board, and the Mayor cannot appoint any of the members of the market board until action has been taken by the Board of Estimate. The new department, when organized, in addition to taking over all functions relating to markets now exercised by the Controller and Borough Presidents, is empowered to construct and equip new markets when authorized by the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. To that end the market board receives power to select sites for new markets and acquire such sites with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Within six months from its organization the market board must report to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment detailed plans and specifications for the establishment and organization of wholesale terminal markets, not less than one for each borough of the city. Power is given the board to construct, operate, and maintain all necessary facilities for the convenient transaction of business in wholesale markets, control traffic in and about such markets, and make suitable arrangements with railroads for track delivery into such markets. The board may also establish standards and grades for different classes of foodstuffs and permit labels or symbols to be used by all shippers who conform to such standards. Moreover, it has the power to inspect and certify the condition of food products, investigate delays in transportation, and may dispose of food products when necessary to prevent loss or deterioration.

A bureau of information for the use and convenience of producers and consumers is to be maintained to give exact information as to quantities, qualities, and prices of foodstuffs, &c. One of the most important features of the act is to provide for the licensing of auctioneers, who may receive consignments of food products in the city markets and make sales of such food products under the supervision of the market board. Pushcart and street markets are also placed under the jurisdiction of the board, so that, as soon as the department is organized, all of the functions relating to the food supply on the legal and economic side will be placed under its supervision.

Sanitary supervision and the function of food inspection, now exercised by the Board of Health, are in no way changed nor has any change been made in the functions of the Bureau of Weights and Measures with respect to those matters. This committee is strongly in favor of the establishment of a department of markets as provided in the Pollock bill, believing that the establishment of the department is the first step to a scientific solution of the problem of distributing the food supply.

WOMEN IN THE HOME.

Only 19.5 Per Cent. Are Single and 20 Per Cent. Self-Supporting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Relative to Miss Elizabeth Newport Hepburn's criticism of Mrs. John Martin's "Back to the Home" movement, it is interesting to consult the last United States Census to find out just how many women are out of the home. It tells us that we old maids are a vastly overrated group, constantly exploited by the suffragists.

The census informs us that of the women of 21 years of age and over in this country only 19.5 per cent. are single; of the women of 30 years of age, only 10 per cent. are unwed; and (evidently while there's life there's hope!) of the women of 60 years and over, only 6 per cent. are unappropriated blessings.

"But," cry our suffrage friends, "how about the many married women who support themselves?"

Well, as to this, let's consult the last report on statistics of women at work, issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor. It informs us that while 90 per cent. of the males in the United States of 16 years and over are wage earners, only 20 per cent. of the females of 16 years and over are engaged in any kind of gainful occupation.

The great majority of women are already "back to the home." Those of us who are single and self-supporting are in a hopeless minority, so far as any control of the ballot box is concerned. This is a married woman's country.

The First Girls' High School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE NEW YORK TIMES says editorially: "The destruction of Wellesley was the most disastrous affair in the history of the higher education of young women in America." Is this really true? In its serious effect upon the development of women is it to be compared to the closing in 1828, not by fire, but by popular opposition, of the first American girls' high school, which had been opened two years before in Boston and was pronounced an "alarming success?" This institution did not reopen until 1852. No destruction of college buildings by fire could put back the cause of higher education of women in America for twenty-four years!

TO THE PESSIMIST.

Shall our measure of time all be wasted—
The stretch twixt oblivion's shores—
In crushing life's fruits all untasted
Except for the seeds and the cores?
While the fountains of earth are swift flowing
And run to the overfed seas,
Shall we scorn the full cup of our knowing
And drink but the scum and the lees?

Shall the promise of truth fall unheeded—
The oncoming joy of the days—
While our shadow of sorrow is speeded
To stretch o'er the light on our ways?
Shall the song that earth's fullness is singing
Be shut from our obstinate ears
While each fibre within us is clinging
To echo of fast-falling tears?

Shall we forfeit to-day and its pleasure
And count to-night's offer amiss—
Thrust forth from our souls the one treasure—
The exquisite nearness of bliss?
Shall eternity's span bring but sorrow
And write but a blood-printed scroll,
While to-day, and through every to-morrow,
The wheels of man's victory roll?

LIMOGES ENAMELS SOLD.

"The Crucifixion" Brings $500 and "The Madonna and St. Anne" $400.

The Limoges enamels brought the high prices of the Countess von Zeuner of Berlin, Germany, sale, at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon. From the Le Brun sale, Paris, "The Crucifixion with Three Holy Women at the Foot of the Cross," in the enamel, went to F. Baumeister for $500, and others from the same sale and going to the same buyer were "The Madonna and St. Anne," $400; a number of Limoges enamel medallions of different sizes in one frame, $400; "The Virgin in Adoration," by Jean Landin, in an oval silver reliquary, $290; "Christ the Martyr," $115, and "The Virgin in Glory," $110.

An antique Byzantine triptych, painted on copper, with brass mounting, went to Baumeister for $100. Two royal and one papal key, set with jewels, went to H. E. Muir for $40, and J. Hartog paid $45 for eight small ivory carvings, evangelists and saints on ebony pedestals from the Borghese collection, Rome; $45 for a carved ivory goblet, and $41 for two ivory relief carvings, "Antony and Cleopatra," and "Port Cadix."

The returns for the day were $3,504. Jewelry of interesting design and historic value will be sold to-day.

29 WILL EXHIBIT.

Recognition of San Francisco Fair from Most Foreign Governments.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—To date twenty-nine foreign Governments have signified their intention of participating in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco next year. Notable absentees are two countries which heretofore have been most liberal exhibitors at all American expositions, namely Great Britain and Germany, but there is every assurance that, even if the Governments of those two countries do not relent at the last moment and recall their declination, there will be thousands of British and German exhibits contributed by individuals.

The countries which have so far notified the State Department of their intention to recognize the fair officially, together with amounts of money voted where the appropriation for exhibits is known, are as follows:

The Argentine Republic, $85,000; Bolivia, $40,000; Brazil, $800,000; Canada; Chile, $180,000; China; Cuba, (proposed $250,000); Denmark; Dominican Republic; Ecuador; France, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras; Italy, $040,000; Japan; Liberia; Mexico (accepted invitation in 1912); Netherlands, $150,000; Panama, $30,000; Persia; Peru; Portugal; Siam; Sweden, $160,000; Turkey; Uruguay; Venezuela, $10,000.

The Norwegian Government accepted the invitation, but the legislative body of that country refused to appropriate the $50,000, estimated by the Government as necessary for an exhibit.

Nine Governments, including most of the Great Powers, have signified their intention to send naval contingents to participate in the naval parade from Hampton Roads to The Golden Gate, via the Panama Canal, which is expected to signalize the opening of the Exposition next February. Navy Department officials who are arranging the programme think this number will be increased at least threefold before mid-Summer. The nine countries are: Argentine Republic, Cuba, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Portugal and Russia. Austria has the invitation under consideration.

According to the present programme the international fleet is to gather in Hampton Roads early in January and sail about the end of that month in one long column for Colon. In view of the fact that the season is usually inclement there is some talk of postponing the assemblage of the fleet until early Spring; but no definite proposal has yet been made to change the date.

WILSON SEEKS JUST MEN.

Says Daniels's Appointment Exemplifies His Principle of Choice.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Wilson to-day enunciated the principle guiding him in the selection of public servants, expressing the view that he did not believe in choosing men who would decide questions in a certain way, but those whom he knew to be just and fair. The President remarked that, to him, it seemed that justice was the hardest thing in the world to obtain, and that it required more courage and science than any other one thing.

Mr. Wilson was discussing his appointment of Prof. Winthrop M. Daniels to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The confirmation was obtained only after a vigorous Senate contest. The President referred to Mr. Daniels as a just and enlightened man, whom he had known intimately for twenty-five years and considered a man of unusual ability.

Mr. Daniels arrived here to-day, and was sworn in as a member of the commission.

AIR'S DEATH TOLL HEAVY.

38 Fliers Killed This Year — 462 Since Aviation Started.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Death levied a heavy toll on the aviators of the world for the first three months of this year, according to records kept here. Between Jan. 1 and April 1, thirty-eight men in all parts of the world lost their lives through the uncertainty of air currents or the failure of their flying machines. The United States, with five killed, stands fourth on the list, which France heads, with ten dead. Germany lost eight in the same period, Great Britain seven, Turkey three, and Chile, Spain, Argentine, Switzerland, and Italy one each.

Since Lieut. Thomas H. Selfridge, U. S. A., was killed at Fort Myer, Sept. 17, 1908, the first victim of aviation, 462 airmen in all parts of the world have fallen for the cause.

Of the five Americans killed this year, two were officers, one of the navy and one of the army. One of the civilians was killed in Argentina in attempting a flight across the Andes. Six of the eight German victims and two of the French were army officers, as were four of the British.

ALIENS LOSE DAMAGE SUIT.

Non-Resident Heirs of Man Fail to Recover for His Death.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—A decision by the Federal District Court of Eastern Pennsylvania that non-resident aliens may not recover under the Federal employers' liability law may involve treaty relations of the United States with Great Britain and Italy.

Heirs of Peter McGovern, who was killed in the Reading Terminal in Philadelphia, lost a suit for damages for his death because they lived in Ireland. Their counsel, in asking the Supreme Court for an early hearing to-day, pleaded contravention of treaties governing rights of aliens.

SUFFRAGE BILL IN HOUSE.

Palmer Offers Resolution for a Constitutional Amendment.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Representative Palmer of Pennsylvania introduced in the House to-day a joint resolution proposing a woman suffrage Constitutional amendment similar to one pending in the Senate.

The amendment would provide that upon petition by 8 per cent. of the voters of any State participating in the last preceding general election the woman suffrage question be submitted to the voters of that State, a majority decision to be final.

Brazil Maintains Preferential.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Brazil will continue indefinitely preferential treatment to certain American imports, among them flour and rubber goods. Instructions already have been issued to all Brazilian custom houses by the Minister of Finance to continue the special treatment for the remainder of the current year.

COLUMBIA TO DROP FINE ARTS FACULTY

University Will Also Abandon Plans for Building on the Campus.

ENDS ACADEMY AGREEMENT

Courses Transferred to Other Faculties—Two Directors for Presbyterian Hospital.

The Fine Arts Faculty at Columbia University will be abolished at the end of the school year, according to an announcement made by the Trustees of the university after their regular monthly meeting yesterday in Low Library. The plans for a fine arts building on the Morningside Heights campus, in conjunction with the National Academy of Design, will also be abandoned, and the agreement entered into between the university and the Academy on Feb. 5, 1906, will be terminated on June 30 by mutual consent.

No reason is given for this change in policy and administration, but the authorities maintain that nothing but the heartiest feeling of co-operation exists between the institutions, and that this co-operation will continue.

With the termination of this agreement provision will have to be made for the undergraduate study in music as well as the graduate, both of which departments are under the Faculty of Fine Arts. The undergraduate courses in music will be put under the jurisdiction of the Columbia and Barnard College Faculties, and the graduate under the Faculty of Philosophy. The School of Architecture will be administered by a director and an administrative board, following the precedent of the Summer session, extension teaching, and the School of Journalism.

Accompanying this announcement was one that the managers of the Presbyterian Hospital, which is working in co-operation with the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, had taken action in reorganizing the administration of the scientific and therapeutic work at the hospital so as to provide for single responsibility for both medical and surgical services. Dr. Theodore Janeway, Bard Professor of the Practice of Medicine, was designated Medical Director of the hospital, and Dr. George E. Brewer, Professor of Surgery, was designated Surgical Director. Dr. William G. MacCallum, Professor of Pathology, was appointed Pathologist.

A gift of $2,500 from an anonymous donor for surgical research was acknowledged. Among the other gifts, amounting to $3,100, was another anonymous one for $2,000, one-half to be applied to furnishing the Maison Française, and one-half to salaries in the department of philosophy. The Association of National Advertising Managers gave $375 toward the support of the advertising research fellowship, and Alexander Smith Cochran $932.01 to meet the cost of publishing the catalogue of Persian manuscripts in the Indro-Iranian series. Through Prof. Cohn $150 was received for the French lecture fund. Material for experimental use in the Department of Chemistry, valued at $1,000, was contributed by Jacob Ruppert.

Action was taken to provide for the administration of the University Library pending the selection of a successor to William Dawson Johnston, whose resignation as librarian took effect on Dec. 31. A library council was appointed, consisting of the President of the university, and Profs. Wheeler, Trent, Keyser, Shotwell, Simkhovitch, Nathan Abbott, Weeks, and Harper, with power to direct the library administration until further action by the Trustees.

On the nomination of the Trustees of Barnard College, Emily James Putnam, (Mrs. George Haven Putnam,) formerly Dean of Barnard College, was appointed Associate in History. On the nomination of the medical faculty, Dr. Ellsworth Elliot was appointed Professor of Clinical Surgery at the Presbyterian Hospital. Henry W. Elsassar, B. S., was appointed William P. Trowbridge Fellow in Engineering for 1914-15. S. Alfred Mitchell, Director of the MacCormick Observatory at the University of Virginia, and until recently Assistant Professor of Astronomy at Columbia, was appointed Ernest Kempton Adams Research Fellow for 1914-15.

Dr. Leo H. Baekeland was appointed first lecturer upon the Charles Frederick Chandler Foundation. Dr. Baekeland's lecture will be given at the university on May 29, in connection with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of the School of Mines.

TO WELCOME N. Y. U. MEN.

Fifty Noted German Educators to Pilot Student Tourists.

The services of fifty of the foremost educators of Germany have been enlisted by New York University as committeemen in the different cities to be visited this Summer by students enrolling in the travel study tour. The students will visit the various centres of education in Germany with the aim of studying the political and educational systems in vogue in that land.

MRS. SCOTT PRAISES THE HOUSEWORKER

HECKLED BY THE AUDIENCE

Mrs. Malkiel, Viewing Housework as Drudgery, Would Have Labor-Saving Machinery for All.

Homekeepers disagreed as to the nature of housework at a discussion held last night at the Labor Temple, Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue, under the supervision of the Woman's Committee of the Socialist Party. The question at issue was "Can Domestic Service Solve the Problem of Woman's Unemployment?" The affirmative position was taken by Mrs. William F. Scott, well known as an anti-suffrage speaker, and the negative by Mrs. Theresa Serber Malkiel, who has achieved prominence as a trades union and Socialist worker. Mrs. Scott, who does her own housework, thinks that domestic work is the noblest and most intelligent that woman can accomplish; Mrs. Malkiel does n't. Consequently, Mrs. Malkiel hires a servant to do it for her, and although she admits that she is a good mistress, she says she wouldn't like to be in her servant's place.

Both speakers were inclined to spend the time allotted to them in expounding their views of things in general, returning to the subject only now and then to get a fresh start. Mrs. Scott said the problem of unemployment and the present-day difficulties of woman were due to an inherent fault in the makeup of the universe, and that the best thing we could do was to grin and bear it. Mrs. Malkiel thought all the trouble in the world was due to the fact that the rich got the profits of the labor of the "down-trodden masses."

Mrs. Scott presented the view that women could best serve their own interests by leaving to men the task of changing the conditions imposed by nature from without and setting to work to keep the home together. In domestic service and work allied to it there was room for every woman, she said. Women should learn, she urged, that it was better to work in the home even if the rewards were only spiritual than to slave in the factory for a weekly wage.

Mrs. Malkiel, addressing the audience as "Men and women," said she had no patience with the other speaker's laudation of housework.

"Housework is drudgery," she said; "we Socialists wouldn't send our daughters into other people's kitchens even if there were kitchens enough to go around; which there aren't. The only way to solve the problem of housework is to get rid of it—to give the machinery which the rich can now use to minimize their housework to everybody. Then there will be no drudgery, and there will be real homes. A three-room flat on the East Side isn't a home; if that's the sort of home that they say Socialism will destroy, the sooner the better."

To this Mrs. Scott responded that woman made the home—that a home was not an affair of three rooms or thirty rooms, but of sympathy and affection. She also challenged the figures given by Mrs. Malkiel, who had said that there were 325,000 unemployed in New York City, of whom 25,000 were women.

Soon after Mrs. Scott began to speak an elderly man in the rear of the hall got up and shouted, "Mme. Chairman." Mrs. Meta L. Stern, presiding officer, rapped for order, and hisses and cries of "Sit down!" were heard from all parts of the auditorium. The interrupter refused to be silenced, however, and finally cried out in a loud voice that he merely wanted to request the speaker to talk loud enough so that she could be heard on the back benches. Visions of an I. W. W. outbreak faded away at this, and the disturbance ended in an outburst of laughter.

Mrs. Scott was interrupted several times afterward, and tried to answer these questioners, not all of whom could stop talking long enough to give her a chance. But, though it was clear that 90 per cent. of those present were against Mrs. Scott's side of the question, there was an unmistakable determination to give a fair hearing.

Wm. H. Falconer's 84th Birthday.

William H. Falconer, a New Yorker of New Yorkers, seven generations of his family having lived here since 1703, and one of the oldest members of the Union League Club, celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday yesterday at Garden City, L. I., where he is convalescing from a severe illness. Mr. Falconer has been a reader of THE TIMES since its inception by Henry J. Raymond.

DICTOGRAPH.

THE TURNER

Dictograph Revolutionizing

Business Methods

Adopted by Banks, Manufacturers, R. R. Companies and

THE LEADING BUSINESS FIRMS OF NEW YORK.

Progress and Education go hand in hand. Business methods improve, and it is the most successful man that investigates new methods.

THE DICTOGRAPH METHOD IS

Easy to operate. You simply press a button on a little box in the corner of your desk and instantly begin talking to any department you choose. No receiver to hold—no germ collecting mouthpiece to tie up to. You have the freedom of both hands, freedom of movement about the room while talking or listening.

Insures perfect supervision of your employees, gets what you want the first time, it diffuses your personality all over the plant, securing team work and harmonious action; enables you to inform all important men, at one time, for any concerted action you deem necessary and secures quick execution of any plan.

The Dictograph is the last word in the conservation of business energy.

In the saving of time, steps, temper and money—in facilitating co-operation, a concentration and supervision—in simplifying methods, raising the efficiency and increasing the profits of any business, the Dictograph System of Inter-Conversing has no equal on earth.

Mr. W. J. Fredericks, Assistant-Treasurer of the National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., says: "Our experience in this large office completely equipped, qualifies us to state with authority, and we have no hesitation in saying that the Dictograph System is indispensable where high efficiency is to be attained."

"Brewster's Millions" as a film production with Edward Abeles in the role of "Monty" Brewster will be shown at a private performance at Carnegie Lyceum this morning by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company.

Having added a feature film to the regular vaudeville programme at the Victoria Theatre, William Hammerstein will now present a well-known dance couple each week. This new order of things will begin with the engagement of Mrs. Roberta Menges Corwin-Hill-Tearle in modern dances the week of April 13.

Margaret Anglin will present a Shakespearean programme consisting of scenes from three of the comedies of the bard as her part of the Actors' Fund matinee performances on April 17.

RESTAURANT MEN LIFT THEIR OWN LID

CURFEW RULING A TARGET

Another Hour After One o'Clock Is the Theme of Witty Complaints —Even Governor Quoted.

The restaurant men of New York—that is those who give a cabaret with their meals and some who just serve food without ragtime or toe dancing—dined together for the first time last night. The meal was served in Terrace Garden underneath a giant horn of plenty that was hung from the centre of the ballroom. On the stage there appeared well known cabaret singers, tango experts, and string instrument players.

"Tom" Healy, who is the President of the Society of Restaurateurs, presided, while "Jim" Churchill, who was a police Captain before he went into the food and tango business, was floor manager.

The menu was fashioned after the Amen Corner Axe, and if the restaurant men wrote the songs and jokes that filled its four pages, they had a right to be proud of themselves, for some of the jokes were new and most of the songs worth listening to. The menu was labeled "The Lid." The much agitated 1 A. M. closing was featured in joke and in song and even in the little speech that Mr. Healy made just to prove that he was an orator as well as a restaurateur.

The dinner started at 7 o'clock and was still in progress early this morning. At 12 o'clock it was said that there remained a regiment of cabaret performers to be heard and enough wine still unconsumed to float the dreadnought Texas.

Let "The Lid" tell its own part of that night's story. Among other things it said:

The Society of Restaurateurs is with the Government all the time.

It stands for law, order, good food, drink, music, and the uplift in general.

The regular subscribers of this publication—and these include every man who closes his front door on time—have many friends, as is shown by statistics to prove that during the year more than 70,000,000, or fourteen times as many as there are inhabitants for village, visit the restaurants of New York to eat, drink, see, hear, dance, and be decorously merry.

A Texas man, visiting New York, once estimated that during every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day 60,000 people are eating at the same time throughout the year; and he expressed the opinion, saying that they are as quiet and orderly about it as folks at a church or table d'hote.

He might have added that at midnight, every day of the week, 100,000 people are seen in the restaurants eating and drinking, minding their own business, and enjoying the hospitality of their hosts; that 50,000 are engaged in the same manner at ONE A. M.; 25,000 at TWO A. M., but that at TWO-THIRTY (save on special occasions) less than 5,000 are demanding "just one more."

These facts "The Lid" presented "for the consideration of the city officials, with the suggestion that they might be useful in solving a most momentous problem."

"The Lid" also published a short but pointed "special" from Washington in which it was stated that the Ways and Means Committee had framed a bill to give long deferred justice to the restaurant men of New York. The bill provides that no restaurant man who closes on time shall be compelled to pay any liquor, tobacco or other tax; that every patron must spend at least $80 at a sitting, must praise the food and send the proprietor a Christmas present every year.

Gov. Glynn also sent a little message of good-will from Albany. That is, "The Lid" credited the Governor with doing so, and this what "The Lid" said the Governor said:

I firmly believe that if permitted to pursue their own inclination, restaurant keepers would close promptly at 2 A. M. and take to the hay at once. Evil-disposed persons should be fined at least three dollars and compelled to wait out in the cold for two hours for the purpose of thereby interfering with the health of said restaurant keepers.

Of the many songs, "I'm Crying for You," was perhaps the most popular, and "This Is the Life" was a close second. The chorus of the first went like this:

And if we could get it we'll drink blue;
We're crying for a chance to entertain
The whole world in the hope they'll come again:
We want it, we want it,
Don't make us all go home at ONE—
As once we did.
Please Mister Mayor be good and lift the Lid.

This was the Chorus of "This is the Life":

For me no early closing,
For this is the life, this is the life;
For me no midnight dozing,
When moon is setting
Let me peacefully dine.
Who would care for Heaven
This is the life, this is the life, this is the life for me!

Among the many who dined were George C. Boldt, Fred A. Reed, Gustav Baumann, John McGlynn of Troy, President of the State Hotel Keepers' Association; Adolph Suessking, John W. Butler, John J. Chapin, Adolph Lorber, Lieut. William Kennell, the Mayor's aid; A. H. Meyer, Edward M. Tierney, Oscar of the Waldorf, Louis Ronselot, Frank J. Goodwin, James B. Brady, William A. Brady, Judge Warren W. Foster, County Clerk William F. Schneider, Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall; Madison Corey, Samuel S. Koenig, William J. Tully, and Col. Jacob Ruppert.

Concert for the Bowery.

A concert for the men of the Bowery Mission, 227 Bowery, will be given by Miss E. Eleanor Patterson, American contralto, assisted by Roland Edgard Meyer, violinist, and William Parson, pianist, this evening at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

ARNOLD DALY IN VAUDEVILLE

He Revives "How He Lied to Her Husband" at the Palace.

Although Gertrude Hoffmann has the place of honor on the programme at the Palace Theatre this week, the outstanding number of the bill is provided by Arnold Daly, newly returned from Europe and, for the purpose of this journey into vaudeville, reviving "How He Lied to Her Husband," by George Bernard Shaw.

As the Marchbanks named Apjohn who lies to Aurora's proud husband, Mr. Daly has an opportunity to show how keen and how fine is his sense of burlesque. His supporting company at the Palace is adequate.

LATTAIULA SAFE IN GENOA.

Accused of Swindling Here, but Not to be Extradited.

After a conference yesterday between District Attorney Whitman, Henry Hagemeyer of the Hagemeyer Trading Company, and Louis Fisher of the United States Commercial Company, in relation to the possible extradition of Vincenzo Lattaiula, who is accused of swindling the two companies by forged bills of lading, it was learned that there is little probability that Lattaiula will be extradited from Genoa for trial here. He is an Italian subject and his Government's attitude will be that the case belongs in the Italian courts.

It is charged that Lattaiula obtained from the Commercial Company $36,000 and from the Hagemeyer Company $16,000 on forged bills of lading on goods which were supposed to contain leather. They were shipped to Buenos Aires, where, upon opening the cases, it was found that they contained waste paper.

The case was not submitted to the Grand Jury, but a Magistrate's warrant was issued and the trading companies sent private detectives to Italy after Lattaiula.

THE WEEK IN THE THEATRES.

"Everywoman" is the offering this week at the Grand Opera House, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" is the revival at the Academy of Music, "The Midnight Girl," in German, is at the Bronx Opera House, "Morocco Bound" with the Watson Sisters, is at the Columbia Theatre, "The Social Maids" is at the Murray Hill Theatre, and "The Honeymoon Girls" are at the Peoples Theatre.

A Spring vaudeville festival is the offering at Keith's Colonial Theatre, made up as follows: Jesse L. Lasky's "The Red Heads," a musical comedy, with James B. Carson and a bevy of Titian-tressed young women; Mason, Keeler & Co., in "Hooked By Crook"; Harry Fox and Yancsi Dolly in Maud Lambert and Ernest Ball, in new songs; James Hussey and Al Lee, playing "The New Chauffeur"; Frozini; Minnie Allen, in a vaudeville novelty; the Brackos, Fatima, the Turkish dancer, and Rita Boland and Lew Holtz, singers and dancers. Performances this week commence each day at 1:45 and 7:45 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven headline the bill at Keith's Alhambra Theatre, in a singing and dancing offering. Others include Sam and Kitty Morton, playing "Back To Where They Started"; Hermine Shone and Company, in "The Last of the Quakers"; Sallie Fisher, in songs; Fedeleen Brothers, aerial comedians; Walter Van Brunt, phonograph singer; Kramer and Morton, "The Two Black Dots"; "The Perils of Pauline," a modern picture play, and Black and White, acrobats.

Keith's Bronx Theatre has a programme made up of Joan Sawyer and John Jarrot, dancers; Stepp, Goodrich, and King, Bert Melrose, the clown, with his tables and chairs; Eleanor Ball, the violin virtuoso; Albert Perry and company, playing "Reno and Return"; Emily Darrell and Charley Conway, in "Behind the Scenes"; "The Perils of Pauline," a motion picture play; Ted and Libby and Barton, unicyclists.

At the Palace Theatre, in addition to Arnold Daly, are Gertrude Hoffman, retained for a second week; Carlos Sebastian and Dorothy Bentley, in modern dances; George Evans's (Honey Boy) Minstrels, presenting "Scenes from the Sunny South"; Lyons and Yosco, the harpist and singer; Flanagan and Edwards, Flavilla, a dancing accordionist, and Lee Yost, a sculptor and sculptress, seen for the first time in America, modeling in colored clay.

A combination of vaudeville and minstrelsy is provided at Hammerstein's this week, with the addition of Primrose and Dockstader's organization of thirty-five minstrels. The burnt-cork portion of the bill involves a first part, a spectacular afterpiece, and a varied olio made up of the respective talents of Lew Dockstader, George Primrose, the Four Meteors in "The Country Band," and the Six Brown Brothers, in a medley of tunes and fun. The vaudeville bill includes Florence Tempest, Kate Elmore, and Sam Williams, The Marvelous Richards, Joy Grim, Stelling and Gardon, and moving pictures of Rose, Vallon, and Scheppa.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre offers a bill of vaudeville in addition to the biograph spectacle, "Judith of Bethulia," and other film plays. Special feature plays will be offered in addition to "Judith," these being changed on Thursday.

Proctor's 125th Street Theatre for the first and last half of the week has Harry Jolson, Francis Stevens and company in "The Country Bride," the Duquesne Comedy Four in a sketch, "Yvonne" in a musical novelty, and Jessie Lasky's musical comedy production, "California," with ten people, including Miss Nellie Brewster.

At Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre Clifford Hipple and company in the "Convict 973," and Swain's Cockatoos, a bird novelty, top a list of eight acts for the first half of the week. Ameta, the "mirror" dancer, in "Visions of Fairyland," tops the bill for the last half.

Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre has Ralph, Boyle, and Mellen in "In a Japanese Garden," and The Four Cadets De Gascogne in a singing production on the programme the first half of the week. Francis Stevens and company in "The Country Bride" and the Duquesne Quartet in a novelty act are offered with eight new features on Thursday.

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. All voters registered for the last general election can vote at their old polling places if they have not changed their voting residence.

EDWARD MARSTON DIES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—Edward Marston, the publisher of many famous novels, formerly of the firm of Sampson, Low, Marston & Co., is dead, aged 89.

Edward Marston was a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. He was a member of the publishing firm of Sampson, Low, Marston & Co. from 1856 to 1868 and was educated at Lucton, Herefordshire.

Among his publications were "Frank's Ranch, or My Holidays in the Rockies," "An Amateur Angler's Days in Dovedale," and "Fragments from the Workshop of an Old Publisher," which was written after he left the publishing business. Among other books he wrote during his later days were "Sketches of Booksellers of Other Days" and "Sketches of Booksellers of the Times of Dr. Johnson." In 1907 he wrote a book titled "How Does It Feel to be Old," which attracted wide attention, and in 1908, reverting to his loved sport, wrote treatises on Thomas Ken and Izaak Walton.

JEWISH MILITARY HOLIDAY.

Plans Completed for Passover Celebration for Soldiers and Sailors.

A committee met at the Hotel Astor last night to make final arrangements for the Passover celebration for the Jewish soldiers and sailors whose release on furlough was obtained a few days ago. On Friday at 5 o'clock there will be services at the Temple Emanu-El at Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue. Dr. Silverman will deliver an address, and "America" will be sung for the first time in a synagogue. Dinner will be served at Tuxedo Hall at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, at noon on Saturday, and at 5 o'clock Rabbi Schulman will deliver an address at Temple Beth-El, at Seventy-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue.

Four hundred and fifty soldiers and sailors will take part in the celebrations, including sailors from the battleships Texas, Nevada, Arkansas, Wyoming, Ohio, Wyoming, and Louisiana, and soldiers from Forts Wadsworth, Hamilton, Totten, Hancock, Slocum, Jay, and Wood. The marine corps of the Brooklyn Navy Yard will also send representatives. Prominent officers of both branches of the service will attend the exercises, including Brig. Gen. Robert L. Evans, commander of the Department of the East; Col. Adelbert Cronkhite, commander of Fort Totten; Commander S. Moss of the Texas, Commander Jackson, and Capt. Plunkett of the North Dakota.

PAVLOWA IN NEW BALLET.

Excels in "Amarilla," with Mr. Novikoff, at the Manhattan.

Anna Pavlowa and her company of Russian dancers opened an engagement of two weeks at the Manhattan Opera House last night. The works presented were the familiar "Oriental Fantasy" and a one-act ballet called "Amarilla," which had not previously been seen here. Besides these there were eight divertissements, three of which had not been presented here previously. The company remained the same as was seen in the engagements here earlier in the season, with Mr. Novikoff as the principal male dancer.

The new ballet, "Amarilla," was hung on a slender thread of story, but fulfilled its chief function in giving Mme. Pavlowa several excellent opportunities in dancing both alone and with Mr. Novikoff. She was in excellent form and gave no cause for remembering the injured foot which recently caused alarm. Indeed in her pas seul in "Amarilla" she did some dancing that made as heavy demands in the way of technical accomplishment as anything she has yet shown this public, if not heavier. In these instances she again made it plain that there is no dancer who can do such difficult things with such an appearance of lack of effort.

There was a large audience, and it was greatly entertained by the evening's programme, apparently more by the divertissements than by what purported for in the "Oriental Fantasy" there are exotic features that prevent the enjoyment being absolutely whole-hearted, at least to an American audience, and "Amarilla" is more a string of divertissements than something which succeeds as an organic whole. The "Gavotte Pavlowa," the "Bar and Arrow Dance" of Mr. Novikoff and the "Moment Musicale," together with most of the other short pieces, are little gems which call for untempered enthusiasm—and they got it. The work of the supporting company was, as usual, excellent, and Theodore Stier did well with the orchestra.

ROMILLY BOYS' CHOIR SINGS

South Wales Organization in Native Songs and a Musical Sketch.

The Romilly Boys' Prize Choir of South Wales, an organization of young singers who arrived in this country barely in time to give their scheduled concert, appeared at Aeolian Hall last night for the benefit of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church of New York. The programme was long and varied, the choir being assisted by Miss Gertrude Lathey and Miss Blodwen Norton, soprano and contralto, and Marchant Herbert, pianist.

The selections of the choir ranged from native songs to a concluding musical sketch called "Dame Wales and Her Neighbors," in which songs of Ireland, Scotland, and England, besides Welsh, were sung. The singers are boys only, no adult voices being included. There were also what was called an "action song," in which the instruments of a band were imitated. Master Willie Evans was applauded for his singing of "Through the Gates of Light," by Bounheur. There was an audience of good size which enjoyed the Welsh allusions.

The choir will make a tour of the country, appearing in many of the large cities before its return home.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 6.—A new four-act play by Wilbur Finley Fauley of New York was produced at the Opera House here to-night by the Thompson-Woods Stock Company of Boston. The play was given without a name. It deals with a phase of New York life, and there was an absence of crooks, gun play, and the sex problem. The scene is laid in a flat on the upper west side, and there are only seven characters in the cast.

Verdi's "La Traviata" Sung.

Verdi's "La Traviata" was sung at the Metropolitan Opera House last night with Mme. Frieda Hempel, Italo Cristalli and Pasquale Amato in the principal roles. The others were Mmes. Maubourg and Mattfeld and Messrs. Bada, Reschiglian, Begue, and Ananian. Mr. Polacco conducted.

Swift & Company's sales of beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, April 4, averaged as follows: Domestic beef, 11.53 cents; imported beef, 9.31 cents per pound.—Adv.

ALFRED SETON POST DEAD.

Well-Known Horseman and Union Club Member Expires at 68.

Alfred Seton Post, well known on metropolitan and Canadian turfs when racing was in its prime, died yesterday at his home, 39 Bowne Avenue, Flushing, of paralysis, aged 68 years. He was a member of the Coney Island Jockey Club and the Toronto Jockey Club of Canada. He was known as "Judge" Post to his friends. His last appearance as a judge was seven years ago. He then officiated during the season's racing at Toronto, but since had been in failing health.

Judge Post was born in Manhattan, the son of Walter Blau Post and Eupetta Barnwall Post. In 1862 he entered the United States Navy and served as an aid de camp to Admirals Charles H. Davis and David H. Porter. He entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1863, but resigned a year later to go into business with Russell & Co. in China.

He was married in 1871 to Miss Alice Lee Morgan, whose parents lived for many years in Manhattan. He acquired a fortune upon the deaths of his father and grandfather. He was a member of the Union Club of Manhattan and the Naval Order of the United States.

Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens.

Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union since 1898, and a prominent figure in the prohibition movement since 1874, died yesterday at her home in Portland, Me., of kidney disease after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Stevens was born at Dover, Me., on March 1, 1844. She spent several years as a teacher and in 1874 began her career as a temperance worker. She assisted in organizing the Maine union and was elected its President twenty-two times.

Mrs. Stevens was married in 1865 at Portland, Me., to Michael Stevens. Her husband, her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude S. Leavitt, and Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, Ill., Vice President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, were at her bedside when she died.

Ex-Ambassador Thomas Ryan.

Thomas Ryan, a former Ambassador to Mexico, died on Sunday in Muskogee, Okla., aged 77 years. Mr. Ryan was born in Oxford, N. Y., and lived in Bradford County, Penn., until 1865, when he removed to Topeka, Kan. He was admitted to the Bar in Pennsylvania and enlisted as a private in a Pennsylvania regiment in 1862 and was mustered out as a Captain in 1864. He was Assistant United States Attorney for Kansas from 1873 until 1877. In 1876 Mr. Ryan was elected a Representative in Congress and served six terms. President Harrison appointed Mr. Ryan Ambassador to Mexico in 1889 and he served four years. Since that time he had been engaged in the practice of law.

James Harden.

James Harden, 62 years old, a leader in the handkerchief manufacturing business, died yesterday at the German Hospital after a short illness. Mr. Harden was born in the North of Ireland, near Belfast, and came to this country when a young man to establish a branch office of the Acheson-Harden Company. Shortly after he commenced building the Acheson-Harden factory at Passaic, N. J., which is now one of the largest linen factories in the world. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Club, the Merchants' Association, and was President of the Acheson-Harden Company. Mr. Harden is survived by his widow, two daughters, and four sons.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The weather disturbance of Sunday has moved to Northern Texas, the trough of depression extending northeastward through the Ohio Valley, and marked high pressure prevails to the northward, with resulting general rains and snows from the Rocky Mountains through the lake region and the Ohio Valley.

Elsewhere over the country the weather was fair, except in the Middle Plateau, where there were scattered rains.

It is decidedly warmer to the eastward and southward of the low-pressure area and correspondingly colder to the northward. West of the Rockies temperature changes were unimportant.

The southwestern disturbance will move east and northeastward and the north high pressure area east-southeastward, and there will be rain or snow Tuesday in the Plains States, the Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys, and the lake region, and rain in the Ohio Valley and the Southwest, followed by generally fair weather Wednesday, except in the lake region, where local snows are probable.

There will also be rains or snows Tuesday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States and Tuesday night or Wednesday in in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States.

In the West and extreme West the weather will be generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday.

It will be warmer Tuesday in the Atlantic States and colder in the Central Valleys, the Plains States, and the Southwest. It will be colder Wednesday in the East and probably in the South.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be gentle to moderate south breezes; South Atlantic Coast, gentle east breezes, except variable off the South Florida Coast.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Rain south, rain or snow north portion Tuesday, warmer; Wednesday, rain or snow and colder; gentle to moderate shifting breezes.

Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness and warmer Tuesday, rain by night; Wednesday, rain or snow, colder; gentle to moderate south breezes, becoming variable.

New Jersey—Rain Tuesday afternoon or night and probably Wednesday, warmer Tuesday; colder Wednesday; gentle to moderate to south breezes shifting to north by Wednesday.

Western New York—Snow or rain Tuesday; Wednesday, unsettled, probably local snows; gentle to moderate shifting breezes.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Rain and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday, rain, south, rain or snow north portion; colder; gentle to moderate south breezes shifting to north by Wednesday.

Northern New England—Snow or rain Tuesday afternoon or night and probably Wednesday; colder Wednesday; gentle shifting breezes.

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	41	31	4 P. M.	42	41

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following:

Communication from the labor clerk, recommending that the emergency appointment of certain linemen and laborers in the Bureau of Fire Alarm Telegraph, who were employed in some instances for more than five days because of damage to the overhead lines during the recent snowstorm, be approved.

Report of Mr. Fuld relative to William Herton, an inspector of sewer construction. Mr. Fuld makes certain recommendations for a report on the case by the chief clerk.

Report of Mr. Tighe, certification clerk, requesting instructions as to the list to be certified in response to the requisition of the Board of Water Supply for names from which to appoint six foremen at $1,200 a year. There is a preferred list and a promotion list in existence. Certification of promotion list approved.

Notification from the Bridge Commissioner of his action in rescinding the dismissal of Thomas F. Hickey, foreman brick mason.

Notification from the Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, that Gerald S. Griffin, who was removed on Dec. 31, 1913, on account of lack of appropriation, was reinstated, pursuant to an opinion of the Corporation Counsel.

Notification from the Board of Water Supply of the appointment of Thomas Kelly, Garrison, N. Y., as caretaker, with salary at the rate of $720 a year.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission will hold to-morrow and Thursday an open competitive examination for assistant engineer in forest products, for men only, to fill vacancies in the Forest Service for duty at Madison, Wis., and elsewhere as they may occur, at salaries ranging from $900 to $1,200 a year. No specific statement of the duties to which an appointee may be assigned can be made, but the following description of the purpose and organization of the laboratory will furnish some idea as to the general character of the work.

The Forest Products Labratory deals with economic and technical problems concerning the utilization of the products of the forests of the United States. The work is conducted largely by experimental and research methods and consists principally of investigations of the mechanical and physical properties of wood, processes for the preservation of wood against decay and other destructive agents, practical problems of the pulp and paper industry, the wood-distillation industry, other industries utilizing wood by chemical means, and the naval stores industry. The technical force of the laboratory consists chiefly of men who have had an engineering or a chemical training. The present staff consists of about thirty men. Besides the laboratory at Madison, Wis., offices are maintained at Washington, D. C.; Chicago, Ill.; Denver, Col.; San Francisco, Cal., and Portland, Ore. Laboratories for testing the mechanical properties of timber are operated at Boulder, Col., and Seattle, Wash., and a laboratory for the study of the manufacture of paper pulp by the mechanical process is conducted at Wausau, Wis. Competitors will be examined in the technique of drying, treating, and testing timber; mechanics and mathematics, draughting and machine and structural design, education, training, and experience. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination.

A SUIT FOR $3.60.

75 Per Cent. Wool—Made in England, Brought In Under New Tariff.

A company formed for the purpose of introducing European products to the American market is showing, among other lines, a suit manufactured in England and landed here for $3.60. While the workmanship in the garment cannot be said to be equal to that demanded here in the cheaper grades of merchandise, the material looks very good for the price. Manufacturers and retailers who have estimated the value of the suit have overshot by wide margins, according to the Secretary of the company, the real price. The fabric is made up of about 75 per cent. wool and the remainder shoddy. Taken at 40 cents a yard, 3½ yards, the average amount of cloth used in the manufacture of a suit, would make the first cost $1.40. This would leave but $2.20 for manufacturing, duty and incidental charges, an amount domestic manufacturers would consider far too little for the purpose. It is expected that quite a little business will be done on the product with the mail-order houses that make a specialty of selling the cheaper grades of clothing.

SICK-LEAVE JUGGLING.

An Order to Stop This in the Appraiser's Department.

F. A. Higgins, Appraiser of the Port, has issued an order which has for its purpose the putting an end to juggling in matters of sick leave. For a long time the practice has been growing among many of the employes, women employes in particular, it is said, to absent themselves at times of illness in their families, or for other reasons, and charge up such absence as sick leave allowed by the Government to the different classes of the employes. Annual vacations covering the same periods of time, with full pay, are also allowed by the Treasury Department. The result has been that many employes have not reported for work the sixty days represented by the combined sick and vacation periods.

Counting Sundays, full leaves of absence, and legal holidays, some of the employes are said to have worked only 244 days out of the 365. Saturdays are legal holidays the year around. The Appraiser's order says that hereafter no absence on account of sickness, other than the personal sickness of the employe, will be allowed with pay, excepting as prescribed by paragraph 1,390, and that all absences on account of sickness, other than personal sickness, will be charged to the annual vacation period of the employe affected. An exception is made in the case of a contagious disease requiring the care and attendance of such employe, or where his or her presence in the service would jeopardize the health of fellow employes.

NOTE: There are early indications of a big demand for next Sunday's New York Times containing the Jerusalem and Holy Land photographs issued as an Easter Sunday feature. Orders should be placed AT ONCE.

BEAUTIFUL PHOTOGRAPHS

REPRODUCED IN ROTOGRAVURE

JERUSALEM

THE HOLY LAND

Readers of The New York Times will be agreeably surprised when they see the wonderfully beautiful Jerusalem and Holy Land photographs which will be given as an Easter Sunday feature next Sunday. The full-page photograph of the Garden of Gethsemane was taken on Ash Wednesday, 1914, and as reproduced in rotogravure is probably the most attractive picture of this sacred garden ever printed. This is only one of seventeen photographs taken for The New York Times by Mr. Earle Harrison for this Easter Sunday feature. Sunday School workers will be specially interested. Orders should be placed with newsdealers to-day.

EASTER SUNDAY

THE NEW YORK TIMES

THE BUSINESS WORLD

To Show Balmacaans To-day.

Despite the reported scarcity of good Balmacaan fabrics and the inability of so many of the dress goods operators to deliver the goods for which they have taken orders, one prominent local jobber has made considerable of a collection of these goods. He will put them on view to-day. About a hundred styles, colorings, effects, and qualities are in the collection to be shown, and it is said that they are all "up to the minute" goods. Prices on them range from 35 cents to $1.50 a yard.

Gray Goods Quiet, but Firm.

The recent firmness continued yesterday in the local gray goods market, but buying was not great. There was no feature to the day's business in printcloths, the best sales being put through on some Eastern 38½-inch 60-48s, at 4¾ cents. There were also a few sales of 38½-inch 64-60s, at 5⅛ cents and 39-inch 68-72s, at 5¾ cents. Buyers seem to have bought enough goods at the beginning of the rise to fill their needs for the present, and seem unwilling to contract further at present price levels. There was a fair demand during the day for medium-weight sheetings and drills.

Printing Exhibit for Abroad.

The suggestion was made at a recent meeting of the committee in charge of the National Printing, Publishing, Lithographing, Stationery, Advertising and Allied Trades Exposition, to be held at the Grand Central Palace, April 18-25, that the steamship Kronland be chartered to take to Leipsic, Germany, where the International Graphic Arts and Bookmaking Exposition will be held all Summer, an exhibit of domestic printing machinery and other graphic arts. A movement has been started to defray the expenses of this trip by private subscription. The United States Government has failed to provide for representation at the foreign exposition.

Fall Dress Goods Active.

House business in dress goods is seasonably inactive now with the jobbers, but splendid business has been coming in from the road in the last week. In it are included orders both for Fall fabrics and for lighter goods for more immediate use. Serges and broadcloths seem to be the leaders in the Fall business booked, with plaids going well in the more distant parts of the country, notwithstanding the slowing down of the demand for them nearer by. Fancy Jacquard effects are also taking well. No section of the country seems to be buying goods better than any other, the general buying being one of the most notable features of the season to date. So far as could be learned yesterday Fall business from the road is generally ahead of last year.

Columbia to Give Gem Course.

Another opportunity for business men interested in gems to study them in a scientific way will be offered this Summer by Columbia University, when a course will be offered by the Department of Mineralogy under the direction of Prof A. I. Moses. A similar course was given last year by Columbia, but, because of the inability of the average man to reconcile the hours of the course with his business hours, the enrollment was small. Because of this this year's course will run from 3 to 6 P. M. Laboratory hours will be from 3 to 5 and lecture hours from 5 to 6. It is said that a second course will probably be offered with only one hour of laboratory work and one hour of lectures. The tuition fee for the first course will be $30, with a $5 matriculation fee for those who have never before been registered at Columbia. There will be no preliminary requirements.

Foreign Way of Filling Orders.

The trouble American manufacturers are having with deliveries of orders placed abroad is explained by one who is familiar with the foreign market in the following manner: Manufacturers of piece goods on the other side, he said, are accustomed to sell on the loom, that is, a buyer impressed with a certain fabric contracts for the product of that particular loom for a certain period. This means that orders received after the contract has been let on that fabric, cannot be filled and since the salesman or agent handling foreign accounts generally gets his orders in late, deliveries are not up to the market. Here in such a case the mills deliver a certain percentage on each order. According to this man, foreign manufacturers in general have to be stirred up to business opportunities in this country, as they are inclined to go according to their custom.

Corporation Business Fair.

Fair business was reported yesterday by representatives of some of the leading dress goods corporations. The end of the road season for Fall goods found the yardage disposed of somewhat smaller than last Fall's and a little behind that of the Spring season. Excepting for the fact that prices were not all that could be desired, none of the representatives seen was pessimistic. The feeling was apparent that business was as good as could be expected under the circumstances. Reports to the effect that some of the foreigners have been delivering goods different from the samples they booked the orders on has cheered the producers up somewhat, though the optimism is expressed by some that next season will see the real fight. By that time, it is said, the trade will be definitely posted as to just what the foreigners are shipping, and will have made up their minds where to buy in the future.

The Exporters' April Luncheon.

An unusually interesting programme has been arranged for the current monthly luncheon of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, which will be held at the Whitehall Club, 17 Battery Place, on April 23. E. A. Brand, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, will talk on some of the proposed plans of the bureau and "One Factor in Foreign Trade Development." C. F. Hatfield, Field Secretry of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, has also accepted an invitation to speak. It is expected that he will have many interesting things to tell about the project he represents. Several members of the association are planning exhibits for the exposition, which fact will make Mr. Hatfield's talk especially apropos. It is also expected that further announcement will be made at the luncheon regarding plans for the National Foreign Trade Convention in Washington, which are rapidly being pushed by the association in conjunction with others.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A dinner in celebration of the first world-wide number published by a dry goods trade paper was tendered to the staff of The Dry Goods Economist in the Assembly Room of the Hotel Imperial last night. Covers were laid for eighty-five. An entertainment and speeches followed, the principal speaker being C. G. Phillips, President of the company which publishes The Economist.

The annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men will be held this year at Rochester, N. Y. The convention will be in session from June 23 to June 26.

Goldenberg Brothers of Baltimore have opened a New York buying office at 33 West Thirty-fourth Street. J. Wolf, buyer for the ready-to-wear department, is in charge.

The semi-annual auction of unclaimed and abandoned merchandise remaining in the custody of Collector Malone will be held this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, in the Seizure Room, Appraiser's Warehouse, Washington and Christopher Streets. The offerings are divided into more than 1,000 lots, and comprise about every conceivable article capable of being imported.

The local office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Custom House will be visited this week by two Consular officers for the purpose of conferring with business men interested in extending trade in their respective districts. Frederick M. Ryder, American Consul at Rimouski, Quebec, will be here Wednesday, while Edward I. Nathan, whose Consular district has its headquarters at Mersina, Turkey, will visit the local bureau on Thursday.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Jewelry, Dyestuffs, and Gloves Among Articles Passed On.

Chains and necklaces composed of horn are not to be classified as jewelry under the Tariff acts of 1909 and 1913, according to a decision made yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers. Lippmann, Speir & Hahn, New York, the importers, protested that the proper rate should be 35 per cent. as manufactures of horn. The contention was sustained, and the Collector reversed. This classification will prevail on similar goods under the Act of 1913.

Tanned calfskins made from East India cattle hides imported by the Stone & Downer Co., New York, were held to be properly dutiable, under the old law, at 5 per cent. ad valorem, as rough leather. The Collector's assessment at 15 per cent. as finished leather was reversed.

It was decided that coloring liquid made from insect cochineal, used for staining food products is entitled to enter under the old law at 20 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 480, as an unenumerated manufactured article, as claimed by La Manna, Azema & Farnan, New York. Collector Malone returned the merchandise as a color at 30 per cent. F. H. Shallus, Baltimore, lost in a contention relating to the duty on coal tar products returned as such at 20 per cent. under Paragraph 15 of the old law. The preparation was claimed dutiable at 10 per cent. as an unenumerated unmanufactured product, and at other rates lower than assessed.

Glimbel Brothers, Incorporated, Philadelphia and New York, succeeded in a contention relating to the rates of duty on fancy hatpins. The pins are described as consisting of a long brass pin, tipped or surmounted with an imitation baroque pearl encircled at its base with a row of imitation diamonds. The customs authorities exacted a tax of 85 per cent. ad valorem on the goods on the plea that they are personal adornments within the meaning of the old law. The importers' claim, which was sustained, was for 60 per cent. duty as jewelry. Similar action was taken in a protest by Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, dealing with hatpins, brooches, barpins and like articles. The International Forwarding Company, and Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, also received the 60 per cent. rate on white metal chains set with imitation precious stones, the Collector's assessment at 85 per cent. being reversed.

The board decided that gloves imported by several dry goods firms, were incorrectly assessed at 40 cents per dozen pairs as embroidered with more than three strands of threads. These protests were accordingly sustained: B. Altman & Co., R. H. Macy & Co., Dingelstedt & Co., Schefer, Schramm & Vogel, and Lewis & Locke, New York; A. Letts, Los Angeles, and the Columbus Dry Goods Company, Columbus.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., and at the branch offices, 315 Custom House, by giving the number of the item referred to:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Stationary in Lifeless Trading—Money and the Bond Market.

It was not to the stock market that any one in the financial district looked yesterday for interesting topics of discussion, unless the very dullness of the market supplied such a topic. Trading was by all odds the smallest so far this year, with the single exception of the opening session of March when the storm put a severe check on business. Here and there in the list there was movement enough in prices to take more than a fraction to record, but the general level of quotations was almost stationary. It signified little one way or the other that the change happened to be a net gain. It was too small to be regarded otherwise than as negligible.

Banking and investment conditions supplied ground for more fruitful discussion, particularly as interest was still very keen in the probable appointments to the Federal Reserve Board. The criticism directed against the districting of the country by the Organization Committee has served to heighten rather than to diminish the importance which the financial community attaches to the appointment of the other than ex-officio members of the Reserve Board. It is not at all feared that the proposed apportionment of the country among the twelve Federal Reserve Banks will deprive New York of its just place in the banking activities of the country. The adverse inferences which have been drawn in Wall Street from the division which has been made of the country are based on other grounds. This fact, however, will make it all the easier for the New York banks to co-operate to the fullest in establishing the new system successfully, for, in offering that co-operation, there will be no occasion for misgiving lest New York bankers would thereby be working against their own interests and those of this city. The success of the system as a whole will inevitably mean the enhancement of the business interests of this city.

The investment market continues to broaden, and price improvement to extend to a wider variety of issues. Money, the ease in which is stimulating the demand for bonds, remains very plentiful, although some hardening of the rates for commercial paper was noted yesterday. But this meant that the very prime short term paper which was discounted toward the close of last week as low as 3 per cent. was quoted yesterday at 3¼ per cent., and that in long-time paper the bulk of the business tended toward the higher figure of the quoted range of 3½ per cent. to 4 per cent. Some business was still being done, however, at the lower figure of this quotation. Easy as money is here rates are even lower in London, and our merchants have to some extent been availing themselves of sterling credits to affect even greater economy in the borrowing of money. This, of course, lessens the demand upon this market, and thereby contributes to the ease in discounts here. Commercial banks offered a good deal of money on call on the Stock Exchange yesterday.

The coming New York City bond sale arouses increasing interest as the time for the sale comes nearer. A broad demand exists for the new bonds in the "when issued" market which has been established for them. Wall Street heard reports that at least two syndicates would be formed to bid for the entire issue. Conditions indicate active competition for the bonds with resultant advantage to the city.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Unfettered Business.

Suggestions that with the opening of the Panama Canal the freight charges of steamships between ports in the United States be regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission have resulted so far in only general recommendations by a House Committee which held hearings on the subject last year. The committee members found there were so many elements of the steamship business which they did not understand that they did not feel in a position to make specific findings. The head of one of the big water lines whose vessels will use the Panama Canal said yesterday that in his opinion the best way for the Government to help shippers and carriers would be to leave them alone. To signalize the the opening of the new route by the passage of new shipping laws would result in advancing rates or in driving some ships into other fields, he asserted, and he proceeded to enlarge upon the essential differences between transportation by rail and water.

Peculiarities of Shipping.

The unit of transportation by rail is comparatively small, i. e., one freight car, and the carriers' field is fixed by the situation of lines and the possibilities for extension. Communities grow up around a railroad and are dependent upon it. That is why, even when a road cannot earn its fixed charges, the Federal courts step in to see that the service is maintained. Once built, a railroad cannot go out of business. Industries are built up on the protection of a fixed-rate scheme.

With water lines there is no such necessity for close Governmental supervision. The ocean is free, and if a line cannot make money on one route its ships are transferred to another. The unit is very large, say 10,000 tons, against the twenty-five or thirty tons of the ordinary freight car, and to move economically it is necessary to have almost a full cargo going and returning. For that reason special rates are frequently made to get a shipment. With the prospect of making a trip with an empty hull a ship will make such a low rate as to induce traffic where none has existed before. If a vessel is getting a high rate and making too much money, a single ship can cut into the trade and establish competition.

Brokers May Leave New Jersey.

The measure prohibiting railroads from operating steamship connections is still resting in the Senate Committee, where several hundred Wall Street men hope it will die. If the bill becomes a law the Central Railroad of New Jersey will have to give up its very popular fast-water service to Sandy Hook. A big delegation of men in the financial district makes the trip up and back each day in Summer by water, and will move elsewhere rather than make the distance on a train. It was reported yesterday that leases on Summer cottages at the Highlands had been made with a cancellation clause to become effective at the occupant's option if the boat service should be discontinued.

Looking Ahead for Rumely.

Although the annual report of the Rumely Company gave figures on the operations during 1913 that were far from cheering, the preferred stock advanced nearly a point yesterday and the junior issue was firm. President Funk's frank discussion of causes which brought about a large deficit, and his prediction that another full year would be necessary to bring the company into a condition admitting of profitable operation did not surprise holders of the stocks. They knew before that it would require a long time to work off an excessive inventory and radically alter the sales system. In points where the annual statement revealed weakness of business methods under the old management, stockholders said they saw promises of a decided betterment under the Funk régime because unprofitable operations were so clearly discerned that they could be avoided in the future.

***

The Trend of Immigration.

Aliens admitted to this country in February exceeded by 21,393 the number that left our shores, according to a bulletin of the Bureau of Immigration. If the trend of immigration be considered as a reflection of labor conditions, the activity of our industries was about half as great in the month as in the preceding February, for admissions exceeded departures by 41,236 in February, 1913. In March of last year 90,374 more persons came in than went out, and in April, May, and June the excess of arrivals was well above 100,000 in each month, rising to 140,271 in June.

***

Not Unanimous for Extra Holiday.

The first day's business gave little promise of an active week on the Stock Exchange, and the members who signed a petition a few days ago asking the Governors to declare an extra holiday on Saturday thought there would be slight hesitation about granting the request.

The desire to close the Exchange is far from unanimous. Expenditures for wire service are by no means as great, in the aggregate, as before the market fell into a rut last year, but there are numerous firms which pay out a lot of money for wire leases, and they are opposed to more idle days than absolutely necessary. An income of even a few dollars means something, particularly as a dollar looks larger in the Street than it did three or four years ago.

The fact that the London market will be closed is not considered in forming the opinion of New York brokers, for dealings in American shares in London have had little effect on trading at this centre for many months.

RAPS NEW HAVEN ACCOUNTS

Public Service Board Finds Fault with Road's Vouchers System.

BOSTON, April 6.—The Public Service Commission to-day made its report to the Governor on its investigating of certain "other expenses" of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad in this State.

The report criticises specifically an expenditure of $7,800 by the New Hoven "for the purpose of distributing copies of a publication issued on Dec. 19, 1912, containing an utterly false and misleading statement to the effect that the validation commission of 1910 had found the value of the New Haven Railroad's assets to be $101,000,000 more than its liabilities." The commission says that to publish or to authorize the expenditure of funds of a public service corporation for publishing statements, known to be false and misleading, concerning official findings as to public service corporations should be made a criminal misdemeanor.

"The voucher system of the New Haven Railroad," the report goes on, "is entirely inadequate and inaccurate." It should be so reformed that the voucher will show with substantial accuracy the nature of the service rendered and also show what official is really responsible for the expenditure authorized. The mere multiplication of official names upon vouchers serves but to hide or destroy real responsibility."

$3,000,000,000 DROP IN RAILWAY STOCKS

Security Values Have Declined That Much Since 1906, Newman Erb Estimates.

LOSS DUE TO "REGULATION"

Shrinkage Greater Than Property Valuation of Nine States—Rate Increase Will Help but Little.

Newman Erb, President of the Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Ann Arbor Roads, left for Chicago yesterday for a brief business trip. Before starting for his train he figured out what the decline in security prices in recent years had wiped out in market value and issued this statement:

"Any great catastrophe that would wipe out the assessed valuation of the property of a single State would shock humanity the world over; and yet the shrinkage in the market value of railroad securities since 1906, when the Interstate Commerce Commission was vested with authority to fix rates, now aggregates upward of $3,000,000,000, an amount greater than the assessed valuation of real and personal property, including public service corporations, in the States of Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina combined; more than the assessed valuation of all kinds of property within the States of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, and greater than the assessed valuation of all forms of property in the States of Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho Arizona and Colorado combined.

"This almost unthinkable loss has fallen upon investors, principally of this country, and the public fails to realize its important bearing upon our prosperity and further progress.

"The loss in the aggregate exceeds the entire circulating medium in gold and currency of the country; if distributed it would amount to more than $30 per capita of our population.

"A loss so enormous must necessarily be worldwide in its effect and we must not expect to recover from its serious influence for years to come. If the conditions which produced it are not fundamentally corrected, it will be irreparable in its consequences. Its influence upon the commercial and industrial interests are just beginning to be felt and the application for the increase of rates, now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, if granted, can only in a very small degree repair the injury and damage which has been done."

SOUTHERN ROADS MERGE.

Four Short Lines in South Carolina Combined in One System.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 6.—Four short line railroads in South Carolina, with a combined capital of $3,875,000, have been merged into one system known as the Carolina, Atlantic and Western Railway, with capital of $2,525,000.

The four consolidating lines are the North Carolina and South Carolina Railway; Charleston Northern Railway, South Carolina Western, and the South Carolina Western Extension Railway. The merger was authorized by the General Assembly.

EDUCATION NOTES.

District Supt. Grace C. Strachan, President of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, is among those named as a successor to the Associate City Superintendency made vacant by the death of Edward L. Stevens. The difference in the salaries of the two places is $1,500 a year. When Miss Julia Richman was alive there were three women District Superintendents. Instead of appointing a woman to succeed her, the Board of Education gave the office to William L. Ettinger, despite the protests of the women members of the board and others who believed that there should be a woman on the Board of Superintendents. There are now two women District Superintendents, Miss Strachan and Mrs. Ruth G. McGray. Other candidates for Mr. Stevens's place are said to be District Superintendent Darwin L. Bardwell, John Dwyer, Cornelius E. Franklin, James J. McCabe, William J. O'Shea, Joseph H. Wade, Cecil A. Kidd, and Edward W. Stitt. Mr. Stevens's term of office will expire on Feb. 28, 1916. Miss Strachan's term as District Superintendent will expire on Feb. 9, 1916.

At its meeting to-morrow the Board of Education will probably appoint between 425 and 450 public school teachers. Among them will be a few high school teachers and assistants to Principals in the elementary schools.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Builders Buy Park Avenue Corner at Fifty-fifth Street—Investment Deal on Washington Heights—Madison Avenue Sale—Cathedral Parkway Apartment Sold—Bronx Activity—Duane Street Leases.

A Park Avenue deal below Fifty-ninth Street, which will ultimately lead to the erection of another high grade apartment just above the Grand Central improvements, formed an important feature of the realty market yesterday. The property included the three old buildings at 409, 411, and 413 Park Avenue, forming the southeast corner of Fifty-fifth Street. The plot, 75 by 90, has been purchased by the Swan Brown Company, which owns all the remainder of the block front. On a similar plot forming the northeast corner of Fifty-fourth Street is a new twelve-story apartment lately finished by the company. In the middle of the block is the two-story building, 407 Park Avenue, which will be left as a light and air space for both apartments. Mrs. Almy G. Gallatin was the seller of the house at 409, being represented in the deal by the Cruikshank Company; 411 was sold by Mrs. Frederica Weterau, and 413 by Philip B. La Roche. Moore & Wyckoff were the brokers in the transaction, and they sold the property on the lower half of the block to the same buyers two years ago. Plans are being prepared to improve the corner just acquired with a thirteen-story house, but work will probably not begin until the Fall. Immediately opposite, on the southwest corner of Fifty-fifth Street, a new apartment being erected by the Ogden Goelet estate.

$265,000 Washington Heights Deal.

An investment deal yesterday of over $250,000 in the Washington Heights apartment house section above 160th Street, furnished another of the many indications during the past few weeks of the strength of the market in the locality. One of the new six-story structures lately completed there, the six-story house known as Chambold Court, on the southeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 162d Street, has been purchased for investment by G. A. Walker, a Virginian. It was a cash deal, the buyer paying all cash over the mortgage of $185,000, held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

The seller was the Friedman Construction Company, Henry Friedman, President. The house was finished last October. It has been held at $265,000, and is fully rented, the annual rent roll being about $38,000. The building covers a plot of 100 on the avenue by 150 on the street. The sellers are building two or three other houses in the neighborhood.

In the lower Washington Heights district the six-story apartment house known as the Belvedere on the southwest corner of Edgecombe Avenue and 150th Street, 100 by 99.11, has been sold by J. G. Bassman of the Nicholas-Bassman-Andrew Realty Company to a Connecticut investor. In part payment the buyer gave the flat at 212 and 214 West 141st Street, recently held in the name of the South Bensonhurst Realty Company. The Edgecombe Avenue house was held at $245,000. I. Henry of Axelrad & Feinberg was associated in the deal.

Madison Avenue Sale.

On Madison Avenue, adjacent to Forty-second Street, where there has been marked activity this Spring, another fine old dwelling at 302 was disposed of to an investor yesterday by Pease & Elliman and will probably be altered for business purposes.

The building occupies a lot 224 by 74.27 feet north of Forty-first Street, and was sold by Elijah George, executor of the estate of Sibbel D. Bullard, who paid $50,000 for it in 1871.

Ten-Story Apartment Sold.

Another important transaction on Cathedral Parkway involving over $500,000, the second in the last ten days, was reported yesterday in the sale of Morris Hall, a ten-story apartment house on the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue.

The structure, which was sold to an investor by Eva V. C. Hawkes and Newbold Morris, occupies a frontage of 95.11 on Amsterdam Avenue and 125 feet on Cathedral Parkway. It was built in 1909 by the Yorktown Realty Company.

East Seventy-ninth Street Sale.

The Cruikshank Company sold for Jerome Monks 165 East Seventy-ninth Street, a three-story brick and stone dwelling on plot 15.5 by 102.2, situated 372 feet west of Third Avenue. Title passed yesterday to the Lawyers' Realty Company.

Educational Alliance Sells Building.

The Educational Alliance has sold to Abraham Landberg 624 East Fifth Street, a four-story structure on a lot 25 by 96 feet. This building was originally owned by the Hebrew Free Schools and came into the possession of the Educational Alliance at the time of the merger of the two institutions. The building will be torn down by the purchaser and a Turkish bath establishment erected.

Tenement Property Sales.

O'Reilly & Dahn have sold for Rae Marcus to a client 532 and 534 West 135th Street, a six-story tenement, on a plot 40 by 100. The purchaser gave in part payment his country home in Cranford, N. J.

Mary Jahn sold to Joseph Perasoneni 96 West Houston Street, a two-story tenement, 25 by 90, near Thompson Street.

Margaret E. Walsh sold to Mrs. H. Feinberg 418 East Fourteenth Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 91, between First Avenue and Avenue A.

Another Theatre for Harlem.

A syndicate headed by Samuel Fox has leased for a term of twenty-one years from the Arco Realty Company the buildings at 104 and 106 West 116th Street, occupying a plot 40 by 100. A theatre seating about 500 people will be erected on the property by the lessees.

A Recent Buyer.

Henry M. Toch is the purchaser of the dwelling 29 West Ninety-fourth Street, sold recently by Pauline Frank.

Samuel Untermyer Buys Duncraggen.

Duncraggen, in North Yonkers, the home of Mrs. Anna C. Ewing, wife of Thomas E. Ewing, United States Commissioner of Patents, has been purchased by Samuel Untermyer, whose estate, Greystone, adjoins.

Duncraggen comprises about thirty-two acres of rolling land overlooking the Hudson River, on which there is a fine old Colonial mansion and numerous outhouses.

There are about 170 acres in the Greystone estate, so that Mr. Untermyer now controls about 200 acres, making one of the largest and finest estates adjacent to New York City.

Bronx Sales.

Lloyd Phyfe has purchased from Wynn for improvement with a five-story flat a plot 89 by 105 on the east side of Ogden Avenue, 50 feet south of 170th Street. Louis Meckes and Charles E. Cathie were the brokers.

A client of Phillip Pollak has purchased 961 Simpson Street, a five-story apartment house on a plot 42 by 110, recently completed by the Podgur Realty Company.

Joseph Kurzman and Jacob Langsan have bought from Thomas J. and Mary V. Coyne the plot of over seven lots on the north side of 218th Street, extending through to 217th Street, 105 feet west of Barnes Avenue, with frontages of 100 and 75 feet respectively, and a depth of 228 feet.

The four-story building with stores at 1526 Brook Avenue, on a lot 25 by 100, has been sold by George Becke. In part payment the buyer gave a farm in Montgomery County, Penn. Martin Taendler was the broker.

Arnold, Byrne & Bauman were the brokers in the sale to Edward Collan by August Kuhn of the northwest corner of Third Avenue and 152d Street, reported Sunday.

Buys Brooklyn Union League Club.

The Unity Club of Brooklyn has agreed to buy the former home of the Union League Club of that city for $125,000. The arrangements have just been completed with the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, which bought the club property at Bedford Avenue and Dean Street at the receiver's sale a short time ago. The purchase price includes the furnishings. The Unity Club expects to take possession by May 1. The present Unity Club house on Franklin Avenue, opposite Hancock street, will be put in the market. Julius Strauss is President of the club.

Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company reports a combination of interesting leases on Duane Street aggregating about $250,000. For Daniel P. Morse a ten-year lease of 118 and 120 Duane Street, on a plot 50 by 116, containing about 40,000 square feet of space. The lessee is Lazarus Fried & Sons and the Duane Rubber Company, now located at 116 Duane Street. Nos. 118 and 120 Duane Street will be rebuilt for the Fried company's occupancy from plans of B. W. Stern. Improvements will consist of a new front, an additional story, new elevator, stairs, &c. The Charles F. Noyes Company has also leased 116 Duane Street for five years, and has sub-leased a portion of the building to a large Brockton shoe manufacturing concern. These leases, negotiated by the Noyes Company, following the leasing of six buildings on Duane Street to the U. S. Rubber Company, recently reported, shows the demand for store property on Duane Street. The Charles F. Noyes Company was also the broker interested in the recent sale of the Morse and Rogers Building, at Duane and Hudson Streets, which was sold by Sonn Brothers to Stanley L. Cohen.

William H. Whiting & Co. have leased the store at 186 William Street to Lewis Roberts; the store and basement at 32 Spruce Street to John F. Kalser, Inc., and the store and basement at 111 Avenue A to Richard H. Long.

The Gross & Gross Company has leased the store at 12 to 16 John Street for William A. White & Sons, agents, to R. Longman's Sons for a term of years at an aggregate rental of about $15,000.

Myer Bond has leased the store at 744 Broadway to J. B. Samuels for the O. B. Potter Company.

Country Lease of Stephen Farrelly.

George A. Bowman has leased for a term of years for Maximilian Lewinson his country estate, consisting of twenty-two acres, with large dwelling, two cottages, stables, outhouses, &c., known as Clover Nook, on the Drake Road, Scarsdale, to Stephen Farrelly of the American News Company.

$650,000 Building Loan.

A building loan of $650,000 has been obtained by Isaac A. Hopper, Inc., from David M. Hayman, on the new loft buildings to be erected on the plot, 8 to 14 West Thirtieth Street.

Park at Baldwin, L. I.

The taxpayers and residents of Baldwin, L. I., held a meeting last Saturday evening for the purpose of initiating a movement to establish a park south of the Baldwin Railroad Station, between Grand and Milburn Avenues, near the lake owned by the City of New York. It is estimated that at least $2,000 will be raised for the laying out of the park. The Baldwin Harbor Realty Company will donate a fountain and the tennis court equipment.

Queens Quarterly Building Record.

Supt. Moore of the Building Department of Queens has just completed a report of plans and applications for new buildings filed and acted upon during the quarter ended March 31, 1914.

The figures present interesting reading. There were plans for 1,091 buildings filed in the first three months of the present year. In 1913 there were 1,282 plans filed in the same period. The estimated cost of the buildings in 1914 is $4,382,667. The figures for 1913 were $4,523,141. The total number of plans for alterations filed in 1913 was 503, representing a total value of $206,333.

While these figures for the first quarter of 1914 show a decrease as compared with the similar period in 1913, it is stated by the borough officials that the volume of business is advancing with tremendous strides since the report for the first quarter was prepared, and there is every indication that the next quarter's report concerning building operations in Queens Borough will be very encouraging.

$300,000 Midtown Loft.

Plans are being prepared by George and Edward Blum for a twelve-story loft to be erected on a plot 100 by 93 feet, at 134 to 142 West Thirty-seventh Street, by the Alan Realty Company, owners and builders. The structure will cost about $300,000.

Realty Notes.

George R. Read & Co. were the brokers in the leasing of the Vanderbilt residence at 379 Fifth Avenue, by Mrs. Marie Torrance Hodden to Miss Ida L. Prese, for twenty-one years from June 1 next, at an aggregate of about $500,000. The house will be used for tea rooms.

Justice Page has appointed Samuel Strasbourger receiver of the rents of 1,935 Madison Avenue, a three-story dwelling, pending suit brought by Henry Lorillard Cammann to foreclose a mortgage of $16,735.

The 121st Street dwelling recently sold by George Bretell & Sons was 514 East 121st Street, instead of 314. It was the third sale in this block within a month.

A first mortgage loan of $40,000 for five years at 4½ per cent. has been made by the M. Morgenthau, Jr. Company, to Hirsch Rabinwitch on the six-story tenement at the southeast corner of Rivington and Ludlow Streets, 44.5 by 80 feet.

Richard Heynemann has severed his conection with the H. M. Weill Company, and has opened an office in the Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second Street.

CLUB WOULD BUY PEARY'S POLAR SHIP

Explorers Disclose Plan at Celebration of Fifth Anniversary of Achievement.

MEDAL PRESENTED TO HIM

Congratulations Pour In—Peary Reviews His Trip and Predicts Success for Shackleton.

The Explorers' Club, composed of men who have penetrated to most of the obscure corners of the earth as well as the discovers of the North and South Poles, celebrated the fifth anniversary of the discovery of the North Pole, by Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, last night at their clubroom, 345 Amsterdam Avenue, by presenting Rear Admiral Peary with a gold medal and by disclosing a plan to purchase the Roosevelt, the ship in which he made his journey to the Arctic.

The gold medal bore on its obverse side a portrait of Peary in his Admiral's uniform, done by C. Mayer. On the reverse was the figure of an explorer with an alpenstock and in mountain-climbing costume in a mountainous region in the foreground. In the background was a galleon of the kind which discovered new continents and seas 400 years ago. This was the work of George Wharton Edwards.

On the obverse side was the inscription, "Explorers' Club Medal of Honor to Peary to Commemorate the Fifth Anniversary of the Discovery of the North Pole." At the top of the medal, which was oval-shaped, was the inscription, "1909, Peary, 1914."

Under the figure of the explorer on the reverse side was a map of the world, and near it was a scroll with the words, "Per Mare, Per Terra."

The Roosevelt, which the club proposed last night to buy, was the exploring ship which was built for Peary by the Peary Arctic Club before he started in 1908 on his successful search for the pole. The Roosevelt now lies in the East River on the Brooklyn side, just under Brooklyn Bridge. After Peary's return it was sold, to be used as a wrecker, to the Arbuckle Wrecking Company.

The plan, which was received enthusiastically last night, was to purchase the Roosevelt, use it for exploring purposes for some years, and to retire it, in its old age, to an honorable station as a relic of a great feat.

Evans's Congratulations.

Letters and telegrams of congratulations came from all over the world to Admiral Peary. A long list of explorers of note sent their best wishes. One of the most pleasing of these to Admiral Peary was from Commander Evans of Scott's expedition to the south pole. Commander Evans said:

Please convey my regrets at being unable to attend the dinner, and my congratulations to my late leader's friend, who was not unmindful of Admiral Peary's excellent advice that proved so useful to him.

Telegrams of congratulation were received from President Wilson, the Smithsonian Institution, the National Geographical Society, Prof. Olufsen of Denmark, Gilbert H. Grosvenor, Director of the National Geographical Society; the Scottish Oceanographical Society, the Royal Scottish Geographical Society; James W. Davidson, who was with Peary in one expedition, and who in his telegram won cheers from the club by refering to Peary as "the greatest living American"; Commodore E. C. Benedict, the Buffalo Society of Natural Science, the University Museum of Philadelphia, ex-Prescident William Howard Taft, Secretary of the Navy Josephus M. Daniels, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, and George F. Baker, the banker.

A toast to Admiral Peary, who is President of the club, was proposed by Marshall H. Saville, the toastmaster. This was followed by three cheers for Peary and another three cheers for the north pole. Admiral Peary in turn proposed this toast:

TO THE MEN WHO MADE THE PLANTING OF THE STARS AND STRIPES AT THE NORTH POLE POSSIBLE.

To splendid "Capt. Bob," who conned the Roosevelt through seemingly impassable masses of ice.

To Chief Wardwell who kept the Roosevelt's engine up to its maximum.

To Mate Gushue and Boatswain Murphy, and the sturdy Newfoundland sailors and firemen forward.

To MacMillan, my effective assistant.

To Dr. Goodsell, the surgeon.

To Henson, faithful through many expeditions.

To the faithful Eskimos, without whose aid the work would have been ten times more difficult.

And to the never wavering men at home, Gen. Hubbard and Mr. Crane, Mr. Bridgman, John Flagler, and the rest, who furnished the indispensable financial assistance.

And I ask you to rise and drink in silence a toast to those other men who made the winning of the pole possible, but who have crossed to the other side, Morris K. Jesup, George Crocker, Marvin, Borup, and Percy.

Five Years Ago Last Night.

"Five years ago to-night," continued Admiral Peary, "the long, thin clouds which had obscured the horizon since 10 o'clock broke away at about 8 o'clock, and I with two men, a sledge, and dogs started to reconnoitre the region of the north pole. A blazing, brilliant sunlight and a vast expanse of snow, in all directions the same, was all that was visible, except the dogs, the equipment, and the members of my party. It was 32 degrees below zero, a temperature which, compared with the 60 degrees below of our upward journey, seemed mild.

"There was just enough breeze to flutter the folds of the silken flag when the Stars and Stripes were planted on the north pole.

"We were standing on ice over a sea which soundings later determined to be two miles deep, a contrast to the south pole, which was found to be on ice two miles above the sea level."

Admiral Peary gave an account of his trip to the north pole and the return. The diners broke into a cheer when he told of reaching Indian Harbor on Sept. 6 and sending to civilization the first news that the Stars and Stripes had been planted at the pole.

"The key to success," said Admiral Peary, "was experience—experience gained in previous efforts. If pluck, courage, and endurance alone could have achieved the pole it would have been won years before by some one of the long list of explorers who have essayed it for nearly 400 years.

"We now hear that an ambitious attempt is intended—by Sir Ernest H. Shackleton—not only to reach the south pole, but to cross the antarctic. I do not doubt that it will meet with success if the party takes along enough dogs.

"The poles were won ultimately by those primeval machines, man and dog, unaided by science, struggling along in the savage half-world between God's countries and interstellar space, fighting for existence against a hell of natural conditions as did the cave man, and winning by reason of that God-given flame of intelligence we call brain."

Prof. Marshall H. Saville presented the club's medal to Admiral, and in replying the Admiral said:

"It will give me the greatest pleasure and pride to deposit this medal with the National Museum at Washington, where it will be a record for all time of the Explorers' Club.

"Two dozens of the members of this club are in the field of exploration to-day. For a club no older than this one it is a unique record. Now there are strong men in every field of endeavor. Is it not time now for the club to take another step in advance? I suggest that we get into our possession a ship. In Brooklyn, lying at one of the docks is the good ship Roosevelt, as fit and as seaworthy as the day she came back—the sturdiest ship afloat. Her upkeep and interest on the capital could be met by chartering her for Summer expeditions to the Arctic or elsewhere. She might be used for expeditions of the club to be decided upon by the Research Committee."

A committee of which Prof. Saville is Chairman, and which includes Dr. F. A. Lucas, director of the American Museum of Natural History; John I. Waterbury, Roy C. Andrews, Henry C. Walsh, and others, was appointed to inquire into the advisability of buying the Roosevelt.

Toast to Those in the Wilds.

Toasts were drunk to members of the Explorers' Club who are at this time engaged in explorations in various parts of the globe.

Donald B. MacMillan is heading an expedition of the American Museum of Natural History to Crockerland, the stretch of land that Peary saw through glasses from Cape Thomas Hubbard on his dash for the Pole. Stefansson and Dr. R. M. Anderson are in the Arctic seeking an undiscovered continent.

Ernest Leffingwell is exploring Beaufort Sea, north of Bering Strait. Anthony Fiala and George K. Cherrie are in Brazil with Col. Roosevelt. Algot Lange, another member of the club, is on an exploration of his own in Brazil. Carl Lumholtz has just returned from explorations in New Guinea for the American Bureau of Ethnology.

The honorary members of the Explorers' Club include most of the great living explorers, Amundsen, who discovered the South Pole; Younghusband, the first to penetrate Tibet and open the route through that country since Marco Polo; Sir Ernest Shackleton, the Duke of the Abruzzi, Dr. Sven Hedin, Dr. Nansen, Dr. Nordenskjold, Sir Harry Johnston, Capt. Bartlett, Commander Evans, and others.

Seated at the speakers' table beside Admiral Peary were Toastmaster Saville, Secretary F. S. Dellenbaugh of the Explorers' Club, Gen. Thomas Hubbard, President of the Peary Arctic Club; Prof. Hershel C. Parker, J. H. Flagler, C. D. Jamison, and James B. Ford.

Among those at the dinner were Roy C. Andrews, Henry Biederbrick, David L. Blainard, Henry G. Bryant, James L. Clark, John Henry Cuntz, F. S. Dellenbaugh, Charles W. Furlong, Frederick Grosvenor Goodrich, Stansbury Hagar, George C. Heyl, John C. Hines, E. O. Hovey, B. T. B. Hyde, Rudolf Kersting, F. A. Lucas, Colin McKenzie, William Edward Manning, Louis J. de Milhau, Jackson M. Mills, John T. Nichols, Albert Operti, Howard Palmer, George H. Pepper, Casper Whitney, R. B. Aldcroft, Jr., Robert D. Blackman, Herbert Pomeroy Brown, John Caswell, William Horlick, Jr., P. T. Howard, Henry B. Kane, Frederick Currie McConnell, J. W. T. Nichols, William F. Patterson, Stephen K. Reed, and John I. Waterbury.

Each guest received a bronze reproduction of the Peary medal, which was the first ever given by the club; photographs of the medal and of the Roosevelt, and water-color menu cards, painted by Albert Operti, a member of the club, of Eskimo maidens and men and arctic scenes. The ice cream was served in boxes the shape of a man rigged out in arctic costume.

WILSON THE ISSUE TO-DAY.

Senators James and Lewis Speak in Congress Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 6.—President Wilson took a hand to-night in the last stages of the fight for the election of a Congressman to replace Representative Robert G. Bremner, which takes place to-morrow. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and Senator Ollie James of Kentucky made speeches in the High School auditorium in favor of James J. O'Byrne, the Democratic nominee. They arrived here just in time to reach the meeting in response to a request from the White House.

Senator James spent most of his time in discussing the tariff, the currency bill, and no tolls on the Panama Canal. He referred also to the Mexican situation, and said it was easy to fight battles in editorial rooms, but conflict in the field meant widows and orphans and pensions for three or four generations.

"Not for all the oil wells, not for all the gold mines, not for all the zinc mines, not for all the wealth in Mexico," he exclaimed, "would I give the life of a single factory hand in Paterson."

Free tolls, the Senator described as robbery, and he asserted that the fight was started to create an issue against the man who had the courage to fight.

"Do you want," he asked, "every newspaper in the country to say New Jersey, that man's own State, has turned his policy down after fourteen months' trial?"

Senator Lewis spoke in much the same strain and argued that the failure to elect Mr. O'Byrne would dishonor the State and show contempt for its first citizen.

"Let it be O'Byrne and Democracy," he said, "Wilson and New Jersey for evermore."

At Passaic Senator James and Senator William Hughes spoke in Kanter's Auditorium. The former urged that no favors were due to coastwise shipping, for that tonnage was not the people, not to small owners, but to a great monopoly. It would cost, he said, $10,000,000 to operate the canal, and nearly $1,500 for every vessel which passed through it, and there was no reason why the coastwise shipping should be exempted.

Senator Hughes urged the claims of Mr. O'Byrne on the ground that as his secretary for ten years he had acquired much political experience and was well-acquainted with people at Washington.

The final shot on behalf of Dow Drukker, the Republican candidate, was made here by William B. Stambaugh of New York. He asked how President Wilson and Secretary Bryan could go back on the Democratic platform, and urged that the utterances of the latter in particular prevented him now from supporting no tolls, in the face of what the party had declared to be its principles in 1912.

CLOSE NEW JERSEY MINES.

Thomas Iron Company Acts When Employes Vote to Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

WHARTON, N. J., April 6.—The Richmond mines of the Thomas Iron Company were shut down to-day for an indefinite period following the strike vote taken by the company's 250 employes yesterday afternoon at Hungarian Hall, here.

An announcement made by mine officials said this morning that rather than run the risk of engaging in a contest with the employes it would be better to shut down the mine inasmuch as the laying off of eighty-five men on Wednesday, the cause of the strike, resulted from the depression of business.

The strikers are all members of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, and the meeting was called by Edward Crowe, an Organizer of the Federation. Sentiment among the men was almost unanimous for a strike. A year ago last Fall there was a long and violent strike at the mines, which was finally won by the men when the employers recognized their union.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—A large gray horse belonging to Miles W. Baney & Brother, who have sales stables at 37 Bridge Street, became frightened at a trolley car and broke away from a boy who was leading him to a blacksmith's shop yesterday. The horse ran up the stairway to the second floor of a house at 43 Bridge Street, stuck his head out of the window, and soon attracted a big crowd. Six men and three-quarters of an hour's hard work brought the horse down an improvised runway from the rear porch of the house. Mrs. Mary Thompson, who occupied the second floor, fled, panic stricken, when the horse broke into her home.

HACKENSACK.—At the meeting of the Bergen County Board of Freeholders yesterday the Rev. Father J. F. Dolan of St. Mary's Catholic Church asked for an investigation of the Bergen County Children's Home at Hackensack. Father Dolan recently had a controversy with Supt. James Bratt because three Catholic children were sent to a Protestant church.

MONTCLAIR.—At least four new churches will be erected in Montclair this year, of which three will be Presbyterian. Grace Presbyterian will build a larger church, and the Central Presbyterian Church plans to build one of the largest in town. Cedar Avenue Congregation will build a large stone church on Cedar Avenue. The First Congregational Church will replace their burned structure with a $250,000 edifice.

RED BANK.—Robert Hazard, 15; James Crane, 14, and Thomas Conley, 15, all claiming Newark as their home, are under arrest here charged by Constable G. S. Bucklin with breaking into a number of Summer cottages at Keansburg. They were found in one of the cottages, where they slept and ate.

PHILLIPSBURG.—Petitions were circulated yesterday calling upon the Board of Education to replace Superintendent of Schools L. O. Beers in his position, from which he was removed on Thursday night. His opponents charged that he played favorites among the teachers and was severe on all those who did not side with him.

HIS AVENGER LEADS GUARNIERI CORTEGE

CITY OFFICIALS AT CHURCH

Slain Detective's Widow Kneels with Three Children at Bier—Tribute by Chaplain Sullivan.

Tributes to the memory of a policeman such as have not been paid since the burial of Detective Petrosino marked the funeral yesterday of Detective Joseph Guarnieri, who, like Petrosino, was killed in performance of his duty.

Father Francis J. Sullivan, Police Department chaplain, praising the bravery of Guarnieri, recalled that on last Thursday, only a few hours before he was shot down by William Horgan, whom he sought to arrest in a tenement at 1,880 Second Avenue, Guarnieri passed the bronze tablet in Police Headquarters where the names of the police heroes were inscribed and laughingly remarked that he "hadn't yet qualified for that list." His name, it was announced, would now be added to the list.

The body of the slain detective was borne through the lower east side from the little flat on the second floor of 61 Sullivan Street, where Guarnieri courted and won his wife, to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Anthony of Padua at Sullivan and Houston Streets, and then, after the church service, across the Williamsburg Bridge to Calvary Cemetery. Along this route Detective Lieut. George Haerle, Jr., who shot the slayer of Detective Guarnieri, marched in front of the coffin.

The sight of the coffin with the man who avenged Guarnieri's death by killing Horgan, brought sobs to the thousands of persons who watched the funeral procession.

A pathetic group at the funeral comprised Mrs. Guarnieri and her three children, Margaret, 5 years old; Ruth, 3, and Norma, a baby in arms. The sorrow felt for them expressed itself as early as daylight, when 10,000 or more neighbors gathered about the Guarnieri home to remain there throughout the morning in sympathetic silence.

In the room where the body lay floral tributes banked the walls to the ceilings, the donors including men in every walk of public and private life. There were masses of flowers from Inspector Faurot, the Fourth and Fifth Detective Divisions, Judge Rosalsky, Acting Mayor McAneny, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, the Italian-American Society, and Detective Werthheimer, who had been Guarnieri's companion in work for several years.

Widow Kneels at Coffin.

As the visitors streamed past the bier for three hours before the funeral service began, they found Mrs. Guarnieri kneeling beside the coffin with her three children. Mrs. John Gondolpho, her mother, to whose home the widow had taken her dead husband and little children, tried to console her, but without success.

To clear a space for the removal of the coffin from the Sullivan Street tenement required the services of 124 men from the East 104th Street Station, to which Guarnieri had been attached. The men from this station house acted as a guard of honor. Behind them came the police band of seventy pieces, and 200 Italian boys who had been sent to represent the Italian societies of the city.

The body was borne down the stairway and into the street after a clearing had been made, by Detective Lieut. Haerle, Captain of Detectives William Jones, Detectives Charles Carrara, and Ralph Marcelli, from Headquarters, and the following detectives who had served with the dead officer; John Cassetti, Custanzo Mancini, Edward Elson, and Herman Kahn.

The solemn strains of Rossini's "A Tear on the Tomb," played by the police band, was the signal for thousands to remove their hats, and, in many cases, to kneel in silent prayer. The procession, as it neared the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, was joined by Acting Mayor McAneny, Dock Commissioner Smith, Police Commissioner Mc-Kay, Second Deputy Commissioner Rubin, Inspector Faurot, and Rabbi Abraham Blum, the Jewish chaplain of the Police Department.

Mr. McAneny led the procession into the church, and after the building was crowded, thousands more stood with bared heads outside while the solemn requiem mass was celebrated. In the service the Rev. Alexander Scapigliati was assisted by Father Sullivan and the assistant pastor, the Rev. Anthony Sousa.

Chaplain Sullivan took as his text, "This did this man die, leaving not only to young men, but to the whole nation, a memory of his death as an example of virtue and fortitude."

Men Who Fear Not Death.

"Detective Guarnieri was only one of the great army of the city which fears not death," he said, "but unlike the men of the nation's soldiery he could not be given warning that death was near.

"In the army the soldier, warned of an approaching struggle, is cheered on by his companions, and the enemy's ships may be seen approaching. By the man in the fleet. There is always a leader ready in warfare on land or sea, but our policemen fight with cowards, who strike always in the dark or from behind.

"Since last November there have been several members of this body killed, but their memory lives after them as an example for others to follow. Gathered here, paying their last respect and tribute to the dead hero, are the Acting Mayor, our own good Police Commissioner McKay, and many others. While they are all sad over the loss of their dead hero, they are glorying in his display of bravery.

"Guarnieri died in the discharge of his duties, as every other member of the department is ready to do. Members of the department are in constant danger of similar death, but the citizens need have no fear. An example of their bravery was made only last Saturday when, directed by their Commissioner, they charged a meeting in one of the city parks and put down the red flag. This is the land of the free, but those who have not enjoyed freedom before can not overrun our Government."

After the funeral Dock Commissioner Smith, as Chairman of the committee named to administer a special fund to be raised for the widows and dependent minors of policemen killed on duty, handed to Mrs. Guarnieri $200 for her immediate needs. This was a first payment from a fund toward which Commissioner Smith contributed $1,000 on Sunday and Robert H. Mainzer, a broker, with offices at 5 Nassau Street, contributed $250 yesterday morning. Commissioner Smith stated that while investigating old records to determine who should be placed on the honor roll of the police department he found many stories of attempts to lynch men who had shot down policemen. He said he regretted the recent lapse of this intense loyalty to the police spirit, and that he hoped very liberal donations to the fund to care for Mrs. Guarnieri and for persons similarly bereft would give evidence that New York citizens still know how to appreciate loyal effort.

Mrs. Margaret Greer, the stealing of whose pocketbook indirectly led to the shooting of Detective Guarnieri, returned to New York last night from Perth Amboy, N. J., where she had been with her husband. Her first concern was to call at the East 104th Street Police Station, where she gave a five-dollar bill to be sent to Mrs. Guarnieri.

HIS LETTERS WERE USED.

Thurlow Weed Barnes Particularizes in $3,000,000 Suit.

Thurlow Weed Barnes filed yesterday in the Federal District Court, through his counsel, Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, the bill of particulars asked for in the suit he is bringing against Joseph C. Trees, Michael L. Benedum, Harry S. Grayson, and the J. C. Trees Oil Company for commissions amounting to $3,000,000 for services rendered in connection with the sale of certain Southern oil lands.

In order to effect a sale, he particularizes, he entered into negotiations through C. Korwich of Berlin with G. Zwilgemeyer, an official of the Deutsche Bank, and M. Wernstein, representing a syndicate. A good deal of correspondence and many cablegrams passed during the negotiations, and it appeared that there was a reasonable probability that the lands would be disposed of for a sum exceeding $10,000,000.

However, Mr. Barnes alleges, these cablegrams and letters were used by the defendants without his knowledge or consent and in violation of the agreement with him as an argument or threat to induce the Standard Oil Company to make an immediate purchase of the property.

Voters throughout the State will have the opportunity to-day to vote "yes" or "no" on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State in 1915. Polls open 6 A. M. to 5 P. M. All voters registered for the last general election can vote at their old polling places if they have not changed their voting residence.
